SOCIALISTS ELATED; SEE PROPAGANDA IN ASSEMBLY'S ACT

Issue Statement Declaring Lusk Committee Feared Possible Disclosures.

SUBMIT LIST OF QUESTIONS

Public Men Differ as to Assembly's Attitude—Craig Approves; Hylan Demurs.

Roused by the action of the State Assembly in excluding the five Socialist members at its opening session on Wednesday Socialist leaders in the city worked feverishly yesterday preparing the defense they will make before the Assembly Judiciary Committee on Monday. Besides denying the charge that the platform of their party is inimical to the best interests of the United States and to the State of New York the Socialists will contend that the action of the Assembly was entirely due to the Lusk Committee, which feared important disclosures which the Socialists intended to submit.

After a committee of eight members of the Socialist Party had held a brief session at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, a statement was given out in which it was intimated that the British Secret Service was behind all the activities of the Government officials in this country who are seeking evidence against Russian Soviet representatives here.

It was further intimated that R. N. Nathan, said to be Chief of the British Secret Service here, had participated in the raids on the Rand School and the Soviet Bureau, and that the original papers which he had obtained, which were of "great commercial importance" to the United States, had enabled his own Government "to obtain commercial and diplomatic advantages in its relations with the Soviet Government of Russia." To head off these disclosures, the Socialists said, the Assembly took the drastic action it did.

Commended and Condemned.

The Assembly's action was both commended and condemned by officials here. It was made clear that the Board of Aldermen would not follow the example of the Albany legislators and seek to exclude the four Socialist members of the local board. F. H. LaGuardia, the Republican President of the Aldermanic Board, said he did not believe such measures should be applied here, and warned against steps which might create a real anti-American, anti-Government party in this country.

At the People's House, which contains the New York County headquarters of the Socialist Party, there was excitement all day, the Socialists condemning what they called the Albany outrage. The most important conference was that of the committee of eight, consisting of S. John Block, Jacob Hillquit, William Karlin, Algernon Lee, Julius Gerber, I. M. Chatcuff and Aldermen Beckerman and Viadeck. This committee had the task of preparing the defense, and prominent lawyers, it was said, will be called in. The fight to save their seats in the Assembly, it was said, would be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States if necessary.

No statement was available at the conclusion of their session, but Mr. Block, the Chairman, said the official reply of the Socialist Party to the State Assembly would be made today. "It will be an answer to and an exposure of the falsity of much that is contained in the resolution submitted by Majority Leader Simon L. Adler," he said. "The exact nature of what legal action will be taken has not yet been decided upon."

While the Special Committee and its counselors are conferring on the legal status of the Legislature's action, an effort to arouse the sympathy of working people in this city is to be made at a meeting at the People's House on Monday night. As it was explained by Assemblyman Louis Waldman of the Eighth District, the Socialists, who are particularly interested in the affair, expect to consolidate all the radical organizations "for the purpose of fighting to a finish the usurpation of power by the Assembly." To this conference have been invited representatives of the Labor Party, the Committee of Forty-eight, organizations affiliated with the Central Federated Union, the United Hebrew Trades, the International La-

"Soviet Ark" Reported Near Entrance to the Kiel Canal

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A wireless message received late today gave the position of the United States transport Buford, the "Soviet Ark," in the North Sea somewhat north of the entrance to the Kiel Canal, but not far enough north of the waterway to warrant the assumption that she is making for the straits rather than for the canal.

Wireless messages from the Buford have been picked up by the English stations since the vessel sailed from New York with the 429 undesirables aboard more frequently than is usual in the case of transports. As far as can be learned, however, the reports have referred to the latitude and longitude of the vessel. None of them, it is said, has mentioned untoward incidents as having occurred among the deported throng.

STEEL STRIKE ENDS, FOSTER RESIGNS

National Committee Blames Courts, Press, Troops and Officials for Collapse.

AND THE SECRETARY QUITS

Will Redouble Organization Efforts, He Says, Professing No Discouragement.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 8.—The strike in the steel mills and furnaces, called Sept. 22, and which at its inception involved 367,000 men, officially was called off here tonight by the National Committee of the Steel Workers' Union after an all-day meeting.

Announcement that the National Committee had decided to proceed no further was contained in a telegram sent to the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor in Washington, heads of all international unions interested and organizers and field men in all strike districts. The committee at the same time accepted the resignation of William Z. Foster as Secretary-Treasurer, effective Feb. 1.

Foster was the storm centre of the strike, the alleged vehicle, it was asserted, by which radicals of labor, "boring from within," were aiming to wrest control of the American Federation of Labor from President Gompers and the conservative leaders. He will be succeeded as Secretary-Treasurer by James G. Brown, former President of the Timber Workers' International Union and Foster's chief aid in the conduct of the strike.

"The Steel Corporation, the telegram said, "with the active assistance of the press, the courts, the Federal troops, State police and many public officials, have denied the steel workers their rights of free speech, free assemblage and the right to organize, and, by this arbitrary and ruthless misuse of power, have brought about a condition which has compelled the national committee for organizing iron and steel workers to vote today that the active strike phase of the steel campaign is now at an end.

"A vigorous campaign of education and re-organization will be immediately begun, and will not cease until industrial justice in the steel industry has been achieved. All steel workers now are at liberty to return to work, pending preparation for the next big organization movement."

The telegram was signed by John Fitzpatrick, Chairman; D. J. Davis, Vice President of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers; Edward J. Evans, International Union of Electrical Workers; William Hannon, International Union of Machinists, and William Z. Foster, Secretary of the committee.

Mr. Fitzpatrick declined to discuss the action of the committee, but Secretary Foster said:

"The strike has encouraged the steel trade unions to redouble their efforts. It has been proved that the men in the steel industry can be organized and they have secured the confidence of men in other unions."

Reviewing the strike, Mr. Foster said that it had its inception at St. Paul in 1918 and he was called in as secretary of the committee then formed to organize the steel trades. All preliminary work was completed and the strike called Sept. 22 last. Nine States were affected and 367,000 quit work.

Steel Corporation executives said they were not surprised that the strike had been called off, as the strikers have been drifting back to work for several months. Many mills, it was added, had long ago been able to operate full time with full forces, the principal trouble being the lack of common labor, which formed the backbone of the strike.

CONVENTION GOES TO COAST

To Meet in San Francisco June 28 to Name Party Ticket

COMMITTEE BACKS WILSON

PARTY'S RECORD LAUDED

Democrats Cite Federal Reserve and Farm Loan Systems, as Well as War Record.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations and President Wilson's opposition to reservations, the policy of the Administration in respect to labor and its establishment of the Federal Reserve and farm loan systems were indorsed by the Democratic National Committee today. It was decided to hold the national convention in San Francisco on June 28.

The meeting, one of the most enthusiastic held in years, was attended by leading Democrats, including two aspirants for the Presidency, Attorney General Palmer and former Speaker Champ Clark, both of whom were roundingly welcomed. William Jennings Bryan did not attend the session, but appeared at the Shoreham Hotel where the committee met and held an informal reception. The conservatives apparently avoided him, but he was surrounded by his old admirers.

In effect the resolutions adopted by the committee accepted the challenge of Senator Lodge to make the treaty a campaign issue. They indorsed unhesitatingly everything President Wilson did at Paris and his present opposition to Republican reservations. This action, taken in advance of the reading of the President's letter at the Jackson Day dinner, showed that the national leaders were in harmony with him on his stand on the treaty.

The resolutions, adopted unanimously by a rising vote, follow:

The Democratic National Committee rejoices with the nation at the rapid return to health and vigor of Woodrow Wilson, the leader of democracy, after his physical breakdown, due largely to overexertion in his efforts in behalf of worldwide peace.

We indorse his courageous and patriotic endeavor to bring the nations of the world to peace by such mutual understanding as will enable them to settle their differences by amicable methods rather than by war.

We affirm our approval of the Treaty of Versailles and we condemn as unwise and unpatriotic the attitude of those Senators who would defeat its ratification, either directly or by overwhelming it with reservations that are intended to and will have the effect of nullifying it.

The failure of the Senate Republican leaders to offer or to permit consideration of interpretative reservations that will preserve the general purpose of the treaty and to so permit its ratification condemns them to the criticism of the nation and to the contempt of the world.

Party's Record Praised.

When the Democratic Party came into power in 1913 under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, it found the nation in a condition of comparative industrial and commercial depression, its financial system not functioning and the banking system of the country in the hands of a few men at whose will panic periodically occurred. Banks, both national and State, failed with ominous frequency, causing bankruptcy and ruin, stopping the wheels of industry and deterring enterprise. Farmers were denied reasonable credit for the prosecution of their business by their local banks. Special interests were clamoring for even more power than that long exercised by them. Those and other ills had existed for sixteen years under Republican rule, without any relief.

To remedy these conditions, the Democratic Administration, supported by a Democratic Congress called in special session, entered immediately upon a vigorous constructive program. It established a currency and banking system that distributed money as needed to the localities where it was created, freeing the currency of the country from the domination of a few men, and enabling the nation to finance itself through the greatest war the world has known, as well as to feed, clothe and finance the other countries associated with us in the de-

Text of President's Letter Defining His Treaty Stand

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The letter of President Wilson read at the Jackson Day dinner tonight was as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, January 8, 1920.

My Dear Mr. Chairman:

It is with keenest regret that I find that I am to be deprived of the pleasure and privilege of joining you and the other loyal Democrats who are to assemble tonight to celebrate Jackson Day and renew their vows of fidelity to the great principles of our party, the principles which must now fulfill the hopes not only of our own people but of the world.

The United States enjoyed the spiritual leadership of the world until the Senate of the United States failed to ratify the treaty by which the belligerent nations sought to effect the settlements for which they had fought throughout the war. It is inconceivable that at this supreme crisis and final turning point in the international relations of the whole world, when the results of the great war are by no means determined and are still questionable and dependent upon events which no man can foresee or count upon, the United States should withdraw from the concert of progressive and enlightened nations by which Germany was defeated, and all similar Governments (if the world be so unhappy as to contain any) warned of the consequences of any attempt at a like inquity, and yet that is the effect of the course which the United States has taken with regard to the Treaty of Versailles.

Germany is beaten, but we are still at war with her, and the old stag is reset for a repetition of the old plot. It is now ready for a resumption of the old offensive and defensive alliances which made settled peace impossible. It is no open again to every sort of intrigue.

The old spies are free to resume their former abominable activities. They are again at liberty to make it impossible for governments to be sure what mischief is being worked among their own people, what internal disorders are being fomented.

Without the covenant of the League of Nations there may be as many secret treaties as ever, to destroy the confidence of governments in each other, and their validity cannot be questioned.

None of the objects we professed to be fighting for has been secured, or can be made certain of, without this nation's ratification of the treaty and its entry into the covenant. This nation entered the great war to vindicate its own rights and to protect and preserve free government. It went into the war to see it through to the end, and the end has not yet come. It went into the war to make an end of militarism, to furnish guarantees to weak nations, and to make a just and lasting peace. It entered it with noble enthusiasm.

Five of the leading belligerents have accepted the treaty and formal ratifications will soon be exchanged. The question is whether this country will enter and enter whole-heartedly. If it does not do so, the United States and Germany will play a lone hand in the world.

The maintenance of the peace of the world and the effective execution of the treaty depend upon the whole-hearted participation of the United States. I am not stating it as a matter of power. The point is that the United States is the only nation which has sufficient moral force with the rest of the world to guarantee the substitution of discussion for war. If we keep out of this agreement, if we do not give our guarantees, then another attempt will be made to crush the new nations of Europe.

I do not believe that this is what the people of this country wish or will be satisfied with. Personally, I do not accept the action of the Senate of the United States as the decision of the nation.

I have asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the treaty, and my impression to that effect has recently been confirmed by the unmistakable evidences of public opinion given during my visit to seventeen of the States.

I have endeavored to make it plain that if the Senate wishes to say what the undoubted meaning of the League is I shall have no objection. There can be no reasonable objection to interpretations accompanying the act of ratification itself. But when the treaty is acted upon, I must know whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it.

We cannot rewrite this treaty. We must take it without changes which alter its meaning, or leave it, and then after the rest of the world has signed it, we must face the unthinkable task of making another and separate treaty with Germany.

But no mere assertions with regard to the wish and opinion of the country are credited. If there is any doubt as to what the people of the country think on this vital matter, the clear and single way out is to submit it for determination at the next election to the voters of the nation, to give the next election the form of a great and solemn referendum, a referendum as to the part the United States is to play in completing the settlements of the war and in the prevention in the future of such outrages as Germany attempted to perpetrate.

We have no more moral right to refuse now to take part in the execution and administration of these settlements than we had to refuse to take part in the fighting of the last few weeks of the war which brought victory and made it possible to dictate to Germany what the settlements should be. Our fidelity to our associates in the war is in question and the whole future of mankind. It will be heartening to the whole world to know the attitude and purpose of the people of the United States.

I spoke just now of the spiritual leadership of the United States, thinking of international affairs. But there is another spiritual leadership which is open to us and which we can assume.

The world has been made safe for democracy, but democracy has not been finally vindicated. All sorts of crimes are being committed in its name, all sorts of preposterous perversions of its doctrines and practices are being attempted.

This, in my judgment, is to be the great privilege of the democracy of the United States, to show that it can lead the way in the solution of the great social and industrial problems of our time, and lead the way to a happy, settled order of life as well as to political liberty. The program for this achievement we must attempt to formulate, and in carrying it out we shall do more than can be done in any other way to sweep out of existence the tyrannous and arbitrary forms of power which are now masquerading under the name of popular government.

Whenever we look back to Andrew Jackson we should draw fresh inspiration from his character and example. His mind grasped with such a splendid definiteness and firmness the principles of national authority and national action. He was so indomitable in his purpose to give reality to the principles of the Government, that this is a very fortunate time to recall his career and to renew our vows of faithfulness to the principles and the pure practices of Democracy.

I rejoice to join you in this renewal of faith and purpose. I hope that the whole evening may be of the happiest results as regards the fortunes of our party and the nation.

With cordial regards,

Sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

BOOM FOR HOOVER STARTS PROMPTLY

POSITION REMAINS UNKNOWN

Friends Say He Represents Best Opinion in East and West and Would Get Women's Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The selection of San Francisco as the city in which to hold the Democratic National Convention has given a decided impetus to the movement to bring about the nomination of Herbert Hoover for President on the Democratic ticket.

That was generally admitted today in political circles after the announcement of the decision had been made. Later, when it became known that President Wilson and William Jennings Bryan had taken almost directly opposite positions on the question of making the Treaty of Peace and the League covenant an issue of election, the belief was expressed that this situation would aid the Hoover candidacy.

Talk of Hoover for President was heard on every side as soon as it became known that the California city had been selected as the scene of the convention. Hoover is a Californian, although most of his career has been staged in other parts of the world, and his friends are urging that he is not only of the West but representative of the thought and desires of the Middle West and the East as well and an international figure at the same time.

It is likely that a "favorite son" boom for the nomination of Hoover will be started soon in California and will spread to other parts of the West. In his speech tonight James W. Gerard, who has announced himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination, quoted

Supreme Council to Go Out of Existence—Armenian Mandate May Be Offered to Norway—Memorandum to Italy Put Fiume Under League.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—It was announced by the French Foreign Office tonight that the Versailles Treaty would be put into effect Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This announcement came after the new date of Jan. 18 had been tentatively set earlier in the day.

It is understood that Premier Clemenceau decided suddenly to let pending disputes with Germany go over until after the exchange of ratifications, thus restoring the policy the Council had been pursuing. The "Tiger" does not want the new conference tied up with the German situation.

The following nations will participate in the ceremony: France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Guatemala, Peru, Poland, Siam, Czechoslovakia, Uruguay, and Germany.

Resent Our Aloofness.

I speak conservatively when I say European diplomats regret America's absence from the conferences of the powers. In fact, they resent it. It is causing the sharpest comment which has thus far greeted America's rôle as peacemaker. One allied diplomat remarked:

"The Allies wish to act in accord with Washington on all of the portentous questions before us. America has largely determined the Adriatic issue up to this time, and she is responsible for our having to pass on it now. America has a vital interest in the Russian problem, and recognized her responsibility there by making an accord with Japan on Siberian action. America has had to do with the Turkish situation being in its present ugly state, and her co-operation is needed for its settlement. Let these facts sink in.

"Now the world needs that our labor be done quickly. Clemenceau will probably be President of France on Feb. 17, and we want to finish before that interruption comes.

"Now look at the Adriatic situation. This is the time for all concerned to make concessions and reach an agreement. America has played and still does play a big rôle. How are we to know what concessions America will make, how are we to negotiate with America, if she has no representative at our conferences?

"It may be said that we can reach our conclusions and then submit them to America. But suppose they do not suit Washington? What then? Must we start all over?

"The same holds true for the Russian and Turkish questions. We have to have America's accord, and it looks as if America is making it hard to get it."

Ambassador Wallace thinks that he has no authority to sit in at these conferences of the Premiers and has asked Washington to instruct him. If the Premiers should send an invitation to Ambassador Wallace to attend some of their sessions, as they did send to Ambassador Davis at London, he would attend. However, it should be pointed out that the London Conference was different from the pending meetings, because at these definite and final conclusions are expected to be made.

The allied diplomats give every indication of being sincere in their complaint that America occupies the position of a world power without wishing to shoulder the responsibility of helping to shape policies to the success of which her assent is regarded as essential.

The Temps tonight expressed regret that the American Government will not participate in the coming conference, and says:

"Peace is not achieved. Neither in the Adriatic nor the Orient can the question in suspense be settled without the co-operation of the United States. The United States on its side cannot disinterest itself from European affairs. Whether one wishes it or not, from henceforth all affairs of the world are in a pool.

"It is today true of the nations of the modern world as it has been for a long time true of individuals within a na-

CLASH AT JACKSON DINNER

BRYAN FOR CONCESSIONS

WILSON SILENT ON 3D TERM

Democratic Presidential Aspirants Claim Record of Achievement by Party.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A sharp clash of views over the Peace Treaty between President Wilson and William J. Bryan developed tonight at the Jackson Day dinner here, following a meeting of the Democratic National Committee at which it was decided to hold the party's national convention at San Francisco, beginning June 28.

The President, in a letter read at the dinner, came out squarely for the treaty "without changes which alter its meaning," although he said that "there can be no reasonable objection to interpretations accompanying the act of ratification itself." He declared unequivocally that if the meaning of the treaty were changed by the Senate he would favor an appeal to the country with the treaty and the league covenant as an issue.

As one of the guests of honor at the dinner Mr. Bryan made a speech which contained a plea for keeping the treaty out of politics. He argued that the treaty should be ratified without delay; that there should be compromise on the part of the Democratic Senators if necessary to bring this outcome.

To Mr. Bryan the main thing was to ratify the treaty and establish peace with Germany. With the Republicans controlling the Senate, he held, there should be the responsibility and the Democratic minority should not put obstacles in their way. Thus the issue between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan was definitely drawn.

The President has taken up the challenge of Senator Lodge to bring the treaty into the Presidential politics campaign. It is evident also that his letter is intended as notice to the Senate that if the treaty's meaning is changed or it is so ratified as to require its reaubmission of the allied powers the President will refuse to resubmit it. We cannot "rewrite this treaty," he said.

Lodge Says Treaty Hopes Fade.

Senator Lodge accepted the challenge of the President. He issued a statement tonight after learning what was in the President's letter, in which he said that the issue was clearly drawn.

"The President has made his position very plain," said the Senator. "He rejects absolutely the reservations adopted by a decisive majority of the Senate. He says we must take the treaty without any change which alters its meaning, or leave it. He will permit interpretations, whatever that may mean, expressing its undoubted meaning, when there is hardly a line of it which has not been questioned and received many meanings.

"This permission is valueless. He stands as he has always stood, for the treaty just as it is.

"The issue is clearly drawn. The reservations intended solely to protect the United States in its sovereignty and independence are discarded by the President. The President places himself squarely in behalf of internationalism against Americanism.

"I have hoped that in the Senate we might have come together and ratified the treaty, protected by the principles set forth in the fourteen reservations. The President, I fear, has made this hope impossible. If it is impossible, then we must bear the delay inseparable from the President's attitude and appeal to the people, which I for one shall most cordially welcome."

Big Demonstration Over Letter.

The reading of the President's letter was punctuated by the wildest enthusiasm at both sections of the dinner, which was held at two hotels, the Willard and the Washington, with the same speakers at each. Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who presided at the larger of the two dinners, which took place at the Willard, was obliged to pause time and again in his reading of the letter until the enthusiastic Democrats present had given vent to their enthusiasm.

Several times the diners rose en masse and cheered. The women present in that great gathering of men were quite as enthusiastic as those of the other sex.

What was perhaps the greatest burst of cheering came at the Willard dinner when Chairman Cummings read the portion of the President's letter suggesting the submission of the treaty issue to a referendum of the American people if the Senate altered the covenant. We

TO KEEP UP WORK FOR COMPROMISE

Underwood and McNary Hold the President's Statement Leaves Way Open.

PARTY LINES ARE TIGHTENED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Most Senators who discussed the President's statement and the Jackson Day dinner speeches agreed tonight that the result will unquestionably be the stiffening of the lines of the Lodge reservationists and a consequent handicap to any compromise movement.

Senator Underwood, after learning the President's position, said he still thought his resolution for a conciliation committee offered the solution of the difficulty. He pointed out that Mr. Wilson did not entirely close the door to Senate action, although he conceded the President left the opening very small. Mr. Underwood indicated that he intended to go ahead.

Senator McNary, leading Republican worker for a compromise, holds that the President's attitude need not prevent a compromise, and for that reason he would not abandon his efforts, he said. Most mild reservation Senators, however, took the view after hasty readings of the President's statement that he had made it all but impossible for treaty ratification, except through a Democratic revolt against his leadership and acceptance of the Lodge reservations. Such ratification, they pointed out, would be futile, for Mr. Wilson would not accept it.

Friends and supporters of Senator Lodge said they welcomed the issue. The difference between Mr. Bryan and the President, they said, greatly must take the treaty, said the President, without changes which alter its meaning or leave it, and "then, after the seat of the world has signed it, we must face the unthinkable task of making another separate kind of treaty with Germany."

A minute afterward the diners rose to their feet, waving flags and napkins and cheering loudly, when Chairman Cummings read this sentence from the President's communication:

"If there is any doubt as to what the people of the country think in this vital matter, the clear and single way out is to submit it for determination at the next election to the voters of the nation, to give the next election the form of a great and solemn referendum, a referendum as to the part the United States is to play in completing the settlements of the war and in the prevention in the future of such outrages as Germany attempted to perpetrate."

Can't Risk Delay, Says Bryan.

In expressing the contrary view Mr. Bryan, in his speech, said that he had stood with the Democratic Senators in their support of President Wilson's policy of treaty ratification without change, but that plan had been rejected, and the situation must be faced as it is.

"We must either secure such compromises as may be possible or present the issue to the country," said the man who had thrice stood for President of the United States and thrice been defeated. "The latter course," he went on, "would mean a delay of at least fourteen months, and then success only in case of our securing a two-thirds majority in the Senate.

"We cannot afford, either as citizens or as members of the party, to share with the Republican Party responsibility for further delay; we cannot go before the country on the issue that such an appeal would present. The Republicans have a majority in the Senate, and, therefore, can by right dictate the Senate's course. Being in the minority, we cannot demand the right to decide the terms upon which the Senate will consent to ratification."

Bryan Fails to Applaud Wilson.

Mr. Bryan made his first appearance at the dinner at the Hotel Washington. When he heard the sentence in the President's communication in which Mr. Wilson said, "I do not accept the action of the Senate as the decision of the nation," Mr. Bryan turned his head sharply and gazed at Bruce Kremer of Montana, First Vice Chairman of the National Committee, who was reading the letter.

Although tremendous cheers from the audience greeted this declaration of the President, Mr. Bryan remained perfectly silent. When Mr. Kremer finished reading the letter, although the diners rose and waved flags, and every one else at the guest table stood, Mr. Bryan remained seated with Senator Owen of Oklahoma.

Mr. Bryan was ready with a prepared manuscript which he had handed to the newspapers in advance. However, he began his speech with a digression, praising the President for "carrying our ideals to the world."

Mr. Bryan was greeted with thunderous cheers after being introduced by Mr. Kremer as "a beloved Democrat who stands on the eve of the campaign ready to render any honorable service to the cause of Democracy." The diners cheered and applauded lustily, but Mr. Bryan himself checked the demonstration.

Not Asking Party Nomination.

Mr. Bryan had not proceeded two minutes when he startled the diners by saying:

"You are not inspired by the thought that you are hearing from a candidate. Your attention is therefore not yielded to me on that account. Possibly because I have nothing to ask of you, I may be more free to speak than those who have something to ask.

"I speak from gratitude and in fulfillment of a debt I have never been able to pay. It is said that republics are ungrateful. But I am a living evidence that republics are grateful. I am going to spend the rest of my life paying back my debt in installments. And I am here to pay one installment to asking you to face the future."

Mr. Bryan alluded to the record of the Democratic Party, and said sternly:

"But that splendid record was written before 1916. When we went before the people we would have been defeated had it not been for the woman when the men had turned us down. We cannot expect, therefore, to win the next election with arguments which have not been accepted when presented.

"I am going to state the situation as I see it whether you approve it or not," he said firmly. "And in stating it I yield to no man in this country or in my party in my devotion.

Didn't Know of Wilson Stand.

"What I am going to say was written out before the letter of the President was read. Therefore any difference that may be manifest was not known or contemplated before I wrote what I have given to the press, and when I get to portions of my address I shall digress."

At this point Mr. Bryan swung into his prepared speech. But when he reached his declaration that the Democratic Party could not go before the country on the treaty issue, he said:

"I made more speeches for ratification without reservations than any other man in the United States. But when you remember with what anathemas the Republican Party was greeted, what will be our answer if for fourteen months we ask Europe to wait?"

Scattering applause greeted this statement, and Mr. Bryan went on:

"No person in this country has dared to say that Congress should have taken from it the right to declare war, and the Democratic Party can never afford to go before the country on that issue. And if I know the American people, they will never transfer to any foreign nation the right to send our boys into war. And the Democratic Party should never go to the people on such an issue. I mistake the sentiments of the American people if they would forgive us for not going to the rescue of Europe for fourteen months."

Prohibition Raises a Laugh.

These utterances were all which Mr. Bryan had to say directly upon the treaty issue. When he came to the sentence in his speech which reads, "I assume the party will accept prohibition as the permanent policy of the country," laughter broke out in the room. Many of the speakers and other guests at the table of honor smiled broadly.

"My friends," said Mr. Bryan, "I was prepared for silence on this point."

Louder laughter greeted this statement, but Mr. Bryan interjected with a continuation of his sentence thus:

"I knew if the words of the woman, Mrs. Peter Olesen, could not stir you my cold logic could not. And if this does not appeal to Philly drunk, will appeal to Philly sober, and will submit the issue to the voters of the country."

Waves of Retying on the Past.

Near the end of his speech Mr. Bryan said that "he rejoiced in his party's past and in the leadership of President Wilson. But, my friends, I would not turn my face to the past," he added.

Mr. Bryan closed by saying:

"I believe in the spirit that wrote the treaty. As I examined the reports by cable but a few days since, there were some of the things I wished to see discussed. One question constantly arose in my mind. What was the underlying spirit of the treaty? I looked to see whether the spirit of Nietzsche or the spirit of Christ controlled the treaty. If ever the Nazarene had triumphed, I want my party to take the philosophy of universal brotherhood and bring peace to the world."

In his speech at the Willard, Mr. Bryan said he was glad to follow the "active politicians," but felt "like the superannuated minister to whom preachers used to turn, asking that he pronounce the benediction." Were there no other considerations, he went on, he would be glad to sit down.

"But I have passed the age," he added, "when I'm soliciting your favor, and I'm not so much interested in what may happen to myself as I am in winning the fight that is before us."

After Mr. Bryan sat down he was asked by a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES if he meant that he would not be a candidate for the presidency.

"I am not a candidate," he replied.

"Does that mean that you will not be a candidate?"

"I am only trying to do my duty to my country; I do not care who approves or disapproves," he answered.

When Mr. Bryan voiced the opinion that the party should endeavor to reach a compromise with the Republican majority in the Senate on the treaty, he was interrupted by a shout of: "Stand by the President." This was followed by cries of "hurrah for the President," and a shout of "hurrah for Bryan."

When the excitement had subsided a bit Mr. Bryan said that he was determined to speak for himself under all conditions, but intimated that in the course he was pursuing he did not consider himself in the light of a candidate.

Shifts Treaty Fight in Senate.

The plain meaning of the President's declaration, as understood here, is that the Peace Treaty is dead as far as the United States Government is concerned, and the United States will not become a member of the League of Nations unless the Senate changes the Lodge ratifying resolution so as to eliminate its textual amendment of the original treaty preamble. The Senate must also, to meet the President's views, abandon its alteration of the Shantung section of the treaty.

"I have endeavored to make it plain," said the President in his letter, "that if the Senate wishes to say what the undoubted meaning of the League is I shall have no objection. * * * But when the treaty is acted upon I must know whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it. We cannot rewrite this treaty."

What does all this mean? was the question asked immediately by those who heard President Wilson's letter read or were told of its contents. The answer, judged by the most general view, is simple.

It means that if the Senate detaches its "interpretations" from the treaty itself and adopts them merely as the expression of the Senate's construction of the Versailles agreement, leaving the treaty stand as it was signed by President Wilson and the other American peace commissioners in the great Hall of Mirrors at Versailles on June 28, 1919, the President will accept the Senate's action and notify the allied powers of the treaty's ratification by the United States. But if textual changes are retained, if the Senate reservations are made an essential part of the treaty, requiring, as the Lodge ratifying resolution requires, the concurrence of three of the four other great powers, the President will pigeonhole the treaty, thus leaving the United States out of the peace settlement with Germany.

While those Democratic Senators who are seeking compromise with the Republicans on the majority reservations are confused and full of uncertainty over the situation created by the President's letter, the President's position has been materially strengthened in his party by action taken by the Democratic National Committee today.

The President's letter caused comment among the diners from another angle. To them it appeared to show that he possessed his old-time mental force and flinty ability. The sentences of the letter seemed to have the Wilsonian spirit of his speeches and writings prior to the time he became ill, more than three months ago.

Wilson Revised Letter.

The manner in which he prepared the letter in his sick room gives an interesting sidelight on his attitude toward the treaty contest. It was explained at the White House this evening that he had prepared the letter several days ago, writing it in shorthand. When he had finished it he dictated his shorthand notes to Mr. Cloes, who had accompanied him to Europe as his principal secretary. Today he revised the manuscript of the letter and inserted three sentences, those beginning:

"We have no more right to refuse now to take part in the execution and administration of these settlements than we had to refuse to take part in the fighting of the last few weeks of war which brought victory and made it possible to dictate to Germany what our settlements should be."

The treaty issue was injected almost at the start of speeches began at the Washington Hotel dinner shortly after 8 o'clock. When Bruce Kremer, Vice Chairman of the National Committee, who presided, said that the Republicans had made the world's peace a party issue, and "we accept the gage of battle," tremendous applause burst forth, and there were cries of "Continue! Bravo!"

Great Cheering for Wilson.

President Wilson's name when first mentioned by Mr. Kremer, was cheered to the echo. The Vice-Chairman, who read the President's letter put emphasis into the sentence, and applause punctuated the reading.

The many women present took as active a part in the demonstration as the men. President Wilson's name seemed to stir the women and they clapped and cheered each time a speaker lauded the President.

Mrs. Peter Olesen of Minnesota, the one woman who spoke, proved to be an effective and spirited orator. She was one of the features of the evening's program. In her speech she said:

"Thank God, the Democratic Party has done its duty, and there are no saloons in the country, from coast to coast!"

Mr. Bryan clapped his hands warmly. Murmurs arose simultaneously in the rear of the room, and Mrs. Olesen said, "Quiet! Quiet!"

She said at another time:

"I believe God has provided Woodrow Wilson for the hour and the purpose. This will not be a political campaign, it will be a crusade for forward-looking measures. If they make the Peace Treaty the issue, the women of America will rise and we will justify our great Woodrow Wilson before the world."

Governor Cornwell, introduced as the law and order Governor of West Virginia received an ovation at both sections of the dinner.

"You have been friendly to labor, but be fair to the American people who are not organized," he exclaimed in the course of his speech. He said that he favored the basic eight-hour law, but deplored the passage by Congress of the Adamson act.

Ovation to Champ Clark.

Champ Clark received an ovation, and as he left the hall to go to the Willard Hotel, the diners rose and cheered him again. In his speech he said:

"If we do any good in this campaign, we have got to have good team work."

Attorney General Palmer was introduced by Mr. Kremer as "an American whose Americanism cannot be misunderstood." The Attorney General was enthusiastically received. His allusions to President Wilson as the "greatest Democrat since Jefferson" made a pronounced hit. When he spoke of the Republican offer of $10,000 for a model platform the diners burst into laughter.

"I have got a Republican Party platform with me," continued Mr. Palmer. "I will not ask them for the $10,000; they will need that to get a vote or two in Michigan."

Mr. Palmer said that he counted himself in a favorable position when he was absent during the war to "hit the Hun when he raised his head in Americ..." The Attorney General's allusion to the necessity that aliens must become Americanized produced an emphatic "Good!" from Mr. Bryan.

Eight hundred sat down at the section of the dinner held at the Willard. Seven hundred and fifty sat down at the Washington Hotel section. The dinners began at both hotels at 8 o'clock and the speechmaking began at each shortly after 9 o'clock. Democratic notables from all over the country were present. Vice President Marshall sat next to Chairman Cummings at the Willard when the dinner began but left early. Secretary of War Baker and other Cabinet officers, Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, and others of prominence were at the head tables at the Washington. The Governors of seven States were among the guests at the twin dinners.

In the course of both functions a letter from William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, telegraphed from Texas was read. Mr. McAdoo discussed domestic issues and criticized the Republican Party, but said nothing to indicate that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

There had been expectation that some of the Presidential aspirants who made speeches at the dinners would cast their hats in the ring, but none of them did in any direct way. A report has circulated unsupported by anything that President Wilson would state in his letter that he was not a candidate for a third term, but the statement telegraphed to THE NEW YORK TIMES recently that the President would do nothing of the sort was verified by the President's omission from his letter of anything that pertained to his political future.

There were twelve speakers at the two functions. The six who spoke first at the Willard spoke last at the Washington. The six who spoke first at the Washington spoke last at the Willard, half a block away.

Every reference made by the speakers to President Wilson was cheered with great enthusiasm.

Candidates Marshalled.

Six of the eleven men speakers are declared to be candidates for the Presidential nomination or are regarded as receptive. These are Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard of New York, ex-Speaker Champ Clark of Missouri, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio and Mr. Bryan. The other speakers were Senators Hitchcock and Underwood, Governor John J. Cornwell of West Virginia, Secretary Daniels and Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

President Wilson's declaration in his letter in favor of a national referendum on the Peace Treaty was the keynote of both dinners. Nearly every speaker digressed from his prepared remarks to refer to it, and each reference was cheered wildly. Senator Hitchcock, who spoke first at the Willard dinner, had prepared a speech which was in line with the attitude expressed by the President and he made a decided hit in its delivery.

Cummings Assails Republican Record.

Chairman Cummings, in his introductory speech, contrasted, from his point of view, the records of the Democratic and Republican parties. He said:

"For the present, we are enduring, with what patience we may, an interlude of Republican incapacity. The American people have paid, and are still paying, a staggering penalty for the election of a Republican House and Senate in November, 1919. Since that time all the processes of government have been impaired, the work of reconstruction delayed, the development and extension of American business has been prevented and the peace of the world has been postponed.

"Contrasted with their patent ineptitude we place our unparalleled record, in peace and war, enriched by a leadership which has carried America to greater heights of prosperity and honor and success than she has ever known before. During our control of the Government prior to the war, we placed upon the statute books more useful and constructive legislation than the Republican Party had placed there in a generation.

"When the war came our party leadership rose to still greater heights. It was not by mere chance that an army of more than two million men was safely transported across 3,000 miles of U-boat infested seas, where, well-equipped, well-trained, well-officered, and indomitable in spirit, it turned the tide of battle, won imperishable glory, and triumphed in the greatest war that the world has ever known.

"As I reflect upon the period, 144 years ago, when Thomas Jefferson drafted the immortal document that made America free, I am glad also to think in our own time, under the previdence of God, another great Democrat, touched as was Jefferson by the divine fire, has participated, as one of the master figures, in the preparation of a document destined to set the whole world free. To him, at this hour, worn and stricken by his service to humanity, our hearts flow out in love and loyalty. I ask you to raise your glasses in honor of the foremost citizen of the civilized world—Woodrow Wilson."

Speech of Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan, in his speech, said:

"Seldom has such an opportunity for great service come to any party as now presents itself to our party. But opportunity brings responsibility. Much is required of those to whom much is given. A soldier is a soldier until his day of opportunity comes—after that he is either a hero or a coward. So with the party, opportunities improved become stepping stones to success, opportunities neglected are millstones about the party's neck.

"The opportunities now offered are as large as the nation and as wide as the world. In this hour when we take counsel together for the coming campaign it is the duty of each member of the party, as I take it, to present the situation as he sees it, without stopping to inquire whether his views are shared by others. One cannot call a mass meeting to determine what to think. The theory of democracy is that all think and give expression to their thought and then conclusions are reached by comparison of views.

"Permit me, therefore, to present the more important of these opportunities as I see them. The nations are entering upon a new era; old systems are passing away, democracy is dawning everywhere. Our nation is the only great nation in a position to furnish the moral leadership required.

"The nations of Europe are busy with their own problems. Our people are the only ones disinterested enough to be trusted for all, and the Democratic Party is the party whose ideas best fit it for the task of leadership in such a work.

"A Democratic President was the spokesman of the United States in holding out to a war-worn world the hope of universal peace, and he brought back from Paris the covenant of a League of Nations that provides means for settling international disputes without a resort to force. He did the best he could and succeeded better than we had any right to expect, when we remember that he fought single-handed against the selfish interests of the world.

"The Republican Party in control of the Senate, instead of ratifying at once or promptly proposing changes that it deemed necessary, has diddled while civilization has been threatened with conflagration. It could have adopted its resolution as well twelve months ago as later, but it permitted endless debate while suffering humanity waited.

Wants Quick Treaty Compromise.

"The Democratic Senators stood with the President for ratification without reservation, and I stood with them believing that it was better to secure within the league, after it was established, any necessary changes, than to attempt to secure them by reservations in the ratifying resolutions.

"But our plan has been rejected and we must face the situation as it is.

"We must either secure such compromises as may be possible, or present the issue to the country. The latter course would mean a delay of at least fourteen months and then success only in case of our securing a two-thirds majority in the Senate.

"We cannot afford, either as citizens, or as members of the party to share with the Republican Party responsibility for further delay; we cannot go before the country on the issue that such an appeal would present. The Republicans have a majority in the Senate, and, therefore, can by right dictate the Senate's course. Being in the minority, we cannot demand the right to decide the terms upon which the Senate will consent to ratification.

"Our Nation has spent 100,000 precious lives and more than $20,000,000,000 to make the world safe for democracy and the fundamental principle of democracy is the right of the majority to rule. It applies to the Senate and to the House as well as to the people. According to the Constitution a treaty is ratified by a two-thirds vote, but the Democratic Party cannot afford to take advantage of the Constitutional right of a minority to prevent ratification.

"A majority of Congress can declare war. Shall we make it more difficult to conclude a treaty than to enter a war? Neither can we go before the country if the reasons raised by Article X. If we do not intend to impair the right of Congress to decide the question of peace or war when the time for action arises, how can we insist upon a moral obligation to go to war which can have no force or value except as it does away with the independence of Congress? We owe it to the world to join in an honest effort to put an end to war forever, and that effort should be made at the earliest possible moment.

"A Democratic Party cannot be a party of negation; it must have a constructive program. It must not only favor a League of Nations, but it must have a plan for the election of delegates and a policy to be pursued by those delegates.

"What plan can a Democratic Party have other than one that contemplates the popular election of these delegates, who in the influence they will exert will be next in importance to the President himself? And what policy can the Democratic Party have within the League of Nations other than one of absolute independence and impartiality between the members of the league?

"Our nation's voice should at all times be raised in behalf of equal and exact justice between nations as the only basis of permanent peace. It should be raised in defense of the right of self-determination and in proclaiming a spirit of brotherhood as universal as the peace we advocate.

Urges Domestic Problems.

"We have domestic problems also which offer an opportunity to render large service, and one objection to thrusting the treaty into the campaign is that it would divert attention from questions demanding immediate consideration. We are confronted with the organization of new parties, on the theory that the old parties do not meet the issues that have arisen.

"Our party is the one party that can qualify for the meeting of these issues. It can oppose a class party because it is not itself the party of class, but the party of the whole people, regardless of class. The Republican Party has become a capitalistic party and has permitted tariff barons to write the tariff laws; trust magnates to control the policy of the party on the trust question; railroad presidents to dictate its policy on the railroad question, while packing house companies and other profiteers have used it as their own. It would divide the country into class parties and by its own attitude compel the formation of a farmers' party and a laborers' party.

"The Democratic Party, on the contrary, stands for the protection of the rights of every class, dealing with each citizen as an individual instead of one of a number of a class. It has since it has been in power given the commercial classes a splendid currency law; it has given the farmers a rural credits law; it has given labor an eight-hour day and greater security in its rights, and has given to all the people relief from the high tariff burdens that had been placed upon consumers. Democracy contemplates co-operation between all elements and the promotion of the welfare of society in general.

"It would prevent strikes not by prohibitory laws, but by the creation of machinery which will investigate disputes and thus secure a peaceful settlement of differences before the controversy reaches the stage of strike or lockout.

"The Democratic Party will distinguish between evolution and revolution, guaranteeing freedom of speech and the press to every one who advocates governmental changes by constitutional methods, and at the same time prevent the use, either for or against, of speech or freedom of the press for the overthrow of constitutional government.

Call for Fight on Monopoly.

"The Democratic Party has for twenty years denounced private monopoly as indefensible and intolerable. It cannot surrender its position on this subject now when the beneficiaries of all the private monopolies are mobilizing under the banner of the Republican Party for a united attack upon the right of the people to own and operate all necessary monopolies in the interest of the public.

"The Democratic Party will continue its fight against the profiteer. A government that restrains the individual from the use of force in the protection of his rights assumes the solemn obligation to protect the disarmed citizen from every arm uplifted for his injury. We need machinery in every State and in each community that will give to the consumer a tribunal before which a dealer accused of profiteering can be brought for examination.

"The Federal Trade Commission is a step in the right direction, but the subject is too big to be handled by the nation alone, or by a national commission. The remedy must be as complete as the evil, and it cannot be complete unless States and communities as well as the Federal Government are prepared to deal with this subject.

"I assume that the party will accept prohibition as the permanent policy of the country. Three-fourths of the Democrats in the Senate and two-thirds of the Democrats in the House voted to submit the national amendment, and every Democratic State voted for ratification—and every Republican State except three.

"It is inconceivable, therefore, that our party should antagonize the moral sense of the nation. John Barleycorn is dead. The Democratic Party cannot tie itself to a corpse or become the champion of an outlawed traffic.

"I assume that the party will accept woman suffrage also as an accomplished fact. The women saved our party from defeat in the last campaign, and we need their aid to hasten the triumph of every righteous cause.

"I venture to suggest three new propositions, for which I ask consideration:

"1. A national peaceway, running into every State, wide enough to accommodate both passengers and freight and permanent, so that it will be a lasting tie, binding together the forty-eight commonwealths. It will be a memorial to the soldiers and to all others who took part in the war, and a monument in commemoration of peace restored. It will not only be an expression of patriotism, but it will be educational as well as useful. It will bring the word 'peace' into the thought and conversation of all our people for centuries.

Proposes a National Bulletin.

"2. We need, above all other things just now, a national bulletin—not a newspaper, but a bulletin—under bipartisan control, furnished to all who desire it at a nominal cost—a bulletin which will present to the people the issue upon which they must act, with editorials presenting the arguments for and against the action proposed, so that every citizen may intelligently exercise the duties of citizenship and give to his Government the benefit of his judgment and his conscience.

"The avenues of information are at present in private hands, and the editors, being human, have a bias which makes it impossible for them to present both sides fairly, and to make the situation worse the great predatory interests are in position to influence many newspapers in addition to those which they absolutely control. If there is anything for which a Government like ours can afford to spend money it is to inform those upon whose will the Government rests.

"3. The initiative and the referendum are not new. For a quarter of a century the idea has been growing and spreading. Since the reform has been put into operation in States like Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, and Massachusetts it has ceased to be a thing to be ridiculed. Instead, it now excites the determined opposition of those who are not willing that the people shall be the masters of their own destiny through a Government entirely within their control.

"The progress that democracy is making throughout the world ought to encourage our party to make the adoption of the principle of the initiative and referendum the next great reform, a reform entirely in harmony with the election of Senators by the people and the primary. The people are the source of authority, and any machinery which betters put the popular will and puts into the hands of the majority the right to determine the course of the Government is antagonistic to our institutions and must give way before the progress of popular government.

"We have become the world's teacher in the science of government, and we must not hesitate to express in practice our own faith in the principles that we proclaim. Our party must respond to the call that comes from every State and from across the sea to apply to every problem the principles of democracy. Faith in the people—faith in their capacity for self government as well as in their right to self government—must be our party's policy now and always."

Hitchcock Ready for Treaty Issue.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska discussed the fight over the Peace Treaty in the Senate, asserting his belief that the obstacles to its ratification would be overcome.

"When, on the 5th day of January, 1918," he said, "the President of the United States in his address to Congress stated his fourteen objects of the war which must be included in the peace settlement, one of them was the proposition for a League of Nations to secure the peace of the world. That was two years ago today, when we were in the midst of war, and the President's declaration met with an electrical response, not only in the great audience to which it was delivered before the Senate and House of Representatives, but throughout the United States, and not only throughout the United States, but throughout all the nations of the world except those with which we were at war.

"For eight months the declaration went practically without criticism and without attack, and not until the war was ended and politics began to creep into the situation did opposition develop in this country. Meanwhile the President, proceeding on the justifiable assumption that he was backed by the public opinion of the United States, went to Paris and succeeded in incorporating in the Treaty of Peace a covenant of the League of Nations.

"This great document, which is the first and perhaps the only effort of the nations of the world to organize for peace and do away with the horrors of war, is acceptable to every other nation. It is acceptable to the people of the United States, but, unfortunately, in the Senate of the United States it has found obstacles. I hope they will be overcome. I believe they will be.

"In any event, the Democrats are on solid ground. They have worked earnestly for ratification, first without condition and, finally, with reasonable reservations. They have refused to accept reservations that nullify and destroy, forced on the Senate by the votes of fifteen Senators who want to kill the league. But they are willing to meet half way in honorable compromise Republican Senators who favor the league.

"If, however, Republican leaders defeat this plan and throw down the gauntlet for a fight to the finish before the American people, we are ready to take it up. An issue will then exist between the two parties that will be paramount to all others.

"There can be but one result. To suggest any other would be a slander on the American people. If the test comes in this campaign on that issue we shall win. We shall win because the business men, the laboring men, the churches, the independent voters and, above all, the women of America are for the league and for peace. We shall win because America is a land of hope and not of despair."

Cornwell Wants Radicals Checked.

Governor Cornwell of West Virginia said that the people of this country "would not stand for a money autocracy" and that they will not accept a labor autocracy.

"If the Democratic Party is to win, or is to deserve to win," he continued, "if it is to continue to have the support of the great mass of middle people, those who are neither plutocrats nor agitators, the people who are the backbone and strength of the American Government, then the Democratic Party must stand squarely where Thomas Jefferson placed it, on the platform of equal rights for all and special privileges for none.

"I am not afraid of the followers of Lenin and Trotsky overthrowing this Government. I am afraid of the weakening of the people's chosen representatives when the political terrorists come around and attempt to bulldoze them. I am afraid of the modern-day tendency to compromise with nationalization and socialization schemes.

"I honestly and sincerely believe that it is now, as it ever has been since its founding, the mission of the Democratic Party to stand by the principles of individual rights, individual liberty and the individual ownership of property, when that property is lawfully and honestly acquired, and to stand, as it always has stood, against all crazy schemes of opportunists, all schemes of socialization which have been tried out and proved failures in many countries and in many ages."

Cox Declares Congress Has Failed.

Governor Cox of Ohio attacked the record of the present Congress, asserting that "every disloyal group" had helped the Republicans elect it in 1918. He continued:

"At the beginning of the present Congress the majority leaders met and resolved. In skillful phrase, they sought to make the great war, and particularly our Government's conduct of our part in it, an unworthy affair. What will pass as a priceless legacy to the generations to come, they would have discredited by irresponsible charge. The nation, they avowed, was ill from maltreatment and had only to be taken into their fostering arms for remedies that would surely cure.

"It is unnecessary to run over the long list of things that were promised, but it is fitting that the country be reminded of the fact that not a single constructive thing has been done, and that the extravagance and corruption so flippantly alleged, have not been found.

"Instead of making manly apology to those who hazarded all in the waging of war, or of giving some explanation to the American people of the unkept pledges, we now hear through their chairman, Mr. Hays, a new affirmation of faith. In phrase quite as solemn as Holy Writ, he declares that 'in the future a political platform is to be regarded as a sacred covenant.' And then, not finding anything in the Republican storehouse to meet these saintly requirements, a reward of $10,000 has been offered in the public prints for its concealment, from the children of the democracy have been appealed to, to the days and policies of Lincoln, this was the work of statesmen.

"As the ranks form for the contest near at hand, there are manifestations which must be regarded as danger signs. The old guard, so-called, is in control of the party which it well-nigh wrecked by its greed.

"With little understanding of the principles of a democracy in government, they believe our institutions are safe only in the hands of a class, and once more today is procured, efforts are to be shaped as to make government the agent of its self-anointed saviors. No man who gives unprejudiced view to present conditions will in conscience deny that the counsels of the Republican Party are now in reactionary hands; nor will the challenge of the charge now made, with a full understanding not only of the awful indictment but the facts justifying it, that the dollar and the bayonet are the transcendent things in the reactionary thought of the nation.

"We find two radical movements under way—one which is impatient with the processes of orderly government. The things that are, and ought not to remain, unchanged, it would destroy altogether. The reactionary, on the other hand, resents progress, and the eagerness with which he offers his purse to maintain the existing status quo, carries with it the inference that he is doing very well under it.

"Between these two contending forces stands the Democracy of the nation, opposed to both forms of radicalism, committed to the principle of evolution, and believing that if we vigilantly but judiciously conduct it, revolution is impossible."

Gerard Brings Up Hoover's Name.

Former Ambassador James W. Gerard brought the name of Herbert Hoover as a possible Democratic nominee before the diners in the course of his address. Here is how he did it:

"If we stand by our old ideals and our old friends," he said, "we can win the victory. I want only to see a candidate named by the people in the party and by no other influence.

"I myself have no particular delusions of grandeur. There are plenty of good candidates in our party. For instance, I understand that when a friend was advocating my name before the proposal men of North Dakota he said: 'I am for Judge Gerard, but he is not the best candidate. The best candidate is Herbert Hoover.'"

In opening his address Mr. Gerard said that if the Administration might well be proud of the manner in which a great army was sent abroad to win the war. He then went on:

"One fact we cannot deny—the Republican Party is today confident of success, and so its leaders are looking for a candidate warranted in case of election to stand without hitching—while the wicked and of Wall Street is sharpening its knives for the slaughter.

"For there is a good and a bad Wall Street—a good Wall Street composed of brokers and banks and corporations doing business honestly in the financial affairs of America, necessary hands to the development of the richest country in the world, and its foreign trade; but there is also a wickedly speculative Wall Street, wrecking railroads when it can and fleecing the public—that speculative band of money changers has no place in the temple of Democracy.

"There is no use catering to them—most of them are naturally Republicans, and money no longer wins elections. Witness the $3,000,000 slush fund which failed in the last Mayoralty election in New York.

"If the railroads are to go back to private ownership the rights of the public and honestly invested money must be protected and security holders and stockholders must be safeguarded against these pirates.

"The railroad workers must have a share in the profits and a voice in the management, and the road of promotion must be kept open for them."

Favors Compromise on Treaty.

Mr. Gerard then discussed the Peace Treaty, saying:

"I have been for the League without change, but a great danger threatens Europe. Without peace the red flag will again be seen in the old capitals of the Central Empires—a fire kindled that may spread over the earth. Our country senses this—it is sick of talk. It demands that both sides get together, that a compromise be made, and peace given to the world. After all the reservations are in favor of America, and if the other powers accept no harm can come to us by adopting them.

"But if the League fails utterly, if no sensible compromise is made, then let the world accept the peace treaties of William Jennings Bryan."

After urging justice for labor and saying that the unions must not be allowed to usurp the functions of government Mr. Gerard said:

"But perhaps our paramount, immediate need is the ending of Government extravagance and the reduction of taxes, a chance for that forgotten, choked, neglected individual—the American business man."

Underwood for Treaty Issue.

Senator Underwood spoke of the permanency of the Democratic Party, saying:

"No other party has lived through the decades of the past, and the Democratic Party has lived because it stood for certain fundamental principles. If it had not stood for these principles it would have passed into obscurity.

"In the coming campaign the most important thing for the Democratic Party is not to be vituperous, but to remain true to its principles and preserve in its integrity the American form of government. We may have an issue of the moment. In fact, we have a superior claim to the votes of the American people to that of any party that has confronted an electorate.

Mr. Underwood said that the President in his letter had "defined the issue beyond cavil."

"The Democrats of the Senate," he continued, "stand to ratify the treaty with reservations or interpretations. If they fail in their effort they will fail because the Republicans are unwilling to ratify the treaty and allow the League of Nations to live in the world. Then the issue is clearly defined. There is but one course to pursue, and that is to send the issue to the people and let another Congress determine what shall be done with the treaty."

Mr. Underwood said that another big question before the country was to prevent the American form of government from being crushed by Socialism.

"If Socialism winds itself around the American form of government democracy will be destroyed and the nation will die with it," he concluded.

Daniels Lauds Wilson and Bryan.

Secretary Daniels in his speech gave Bryan credit for helping to bring about the League covenant through arbitration treaties he negotiated when Secretary of State.

"The Declaration of Independence and the covenant of the League of Nations," the Secretary said, "are the two living light fountains of liberty and peace. It is the glory of the Democratic Party that through Jefferson and Wilson we have given these safe charts for all time for safe navigation upon all seas.

Democratic Leaders Discuss Nation's Problems of Today and Tomorrow

"Just as surely as Jefferson's declaration and Lincoln's emancipation glorify American statesmanship, the covenant will yet bring free nations into such accord that reason and not force will rule among nations as among individuals. A long step toward this ideal was reached in the celebrated and beneficent European treaties which, Germany alone of European nations refused, and forecast its action in 1914 in precipitating the war. The principles and spirit of the Bryan treaties expanded and enlarged are embodied in the treaty of peace."

The Secretary attacked what he called the "hyphenated politics" of Republican leaders. He said:

"When the President returned with the treaty of peace and debate began it required only a few days for the dullest to perceive that it was not to be discussed wholly upon its merits, but from the standpoint of whether it would please the German-Americans, the British-Americans, the Irish-Americans, the Italian-Americans and others of foreign descent who have votes in this country which certain politicians must reckon with in November.

"He discussed at length the efforts which he said Republicans had made to arouse the hyphenates against the President. Of the Irish he remarked:

"The Irish as a people came to America to be Americans. No matter how deep their sympathies may be for their kin back in Ireland, or how deep their hostility to any other people or Government, they are full-fledged, red-blooded, 100 per cent. Americans. They will vote upon American issues as Americans, and give no countenance to the hyphenated politics certain Republican politicians have made their stock in trade for the coming campaign."

Of the Republican Congress he said:

"They are so busy scouring for faults, hunting, as it were, for new reservoirs of mud to throw, that they apparently have had no time to consider what they should do, were they in our place, let alone what better ways of doing the very things that they object to they would inaugurate if given full power to administer the Government. They have the courage of a lion in criticism and the courage of a jackrabbit in performance."

He sounded this note of warning:

"Let us all remember that the great thing for the Democratic Party today is to forget that we are Democrats. Never will our Republican friends forget that they are Republicans first and patriots afterward. Let us remember that our first duty is as Americans, and not as Democrats. The man always serves his party best who serves his country first.

"It is certain that no man who has the smallest appreciation of the changing conditions in our country believes the election has been predetermined for any party or any candidate. If I have sensed to the smallest extent the trend or drift of public sentiment it is that more voters are uncommitted nine months before the election to party choice than at any time in half a century. . . .

Only one thing is sure about the November election; that fixed star is the resolve of the people, hardly yet articulate, not to go back to standpat methods or to following wabbling leadership."

In conclusion he said of the President:

"In this hour the same malevolence of those who think themselves born booted and spurred to ride on the backs of others is aimed at the world-leader in the White House. Those Republicans who think they inherited the right to exclusive and perpetual rule at Washington, like the Admiral at the Washington Navy Yard who, many years ago, bequeathed the residence at the navy yard to his descendants, may forgive Woodrow Wilson everything else, but they will never forgive him his supremacy of mind, his supremacy of world confidence, and his supremacy of success in waging the world war and his vision splendid of concluding a noble world peace.

"These last seven years of accomplishment by the National Administration will live as the golden era of American power, American wisdom, and American vision."

Clark Tells of Laws Enacted.

Ex-Speaker Champ Clark reviewed accomplishments under the Democratic Administration, saying:

"In the impending campaign we stand proudly on our splendid and unimpeachable record in peace and in war. Anybody save a stark idiot can successfully uphold that record from alpha to omega. It is wise, progressive and patriotic. It has raised our country to an exceeding height of glory abroad and to unprecedented prosperity at home.

"In his spectacular oration nominating General Grant at Chicago in 1880, Roscoe Conkling said:

"'General Grant's fame rests not alone on things written and things said, but also upon the arduous greatness of things done.'

"That sentence fits the Democrats like a glove.

"It is only sober truth to say that during the six years in which we controlled both the executive and legislative branches we put more constructive legislation on the statute books than was put upon the statute books in twenty-four years of Republican control. For years and years before the Democratic Party finally achieved its triumph the Income tax law for which some of us had been struggling for a quarter of a century.

"Election of United States Senators by the people, a great progressive measure, for years promised by both parties, was finally achieved by the Democratic Congress and Democratic President.

"We admitted Arizona and New Mexico—a performance long promised by Republicans and at last accomplished by Democrats—a great boon to those nascent commonwealths.

"We passed bills for the prevention of corrupt use of money in elections. We established the Trade Commission. We established the War Risk Insurance Bureau—a splendid benefaction. We passed the Ship Purchase bill which has given us a fine merchant fleet; the first we have had since 1861. We passed the Clayton Anti-Trust law, better and more liberal Philippine bill, and the Underwood Tariff bill—the best tariff law ever put upon the statute books; a conservation bill; the Land Bank bill; and the Federal Reserve Bank law.

"For two decades and more Republicans had been tinkering with the currency system—always promising to reform it, but never achieving anything worth while. Democrats not only promised monetary and banking reform, but they accomplished it speedily and well. We had a system of shreds and patches; we enacted a law established a system which works so well that panics are no longer feared and we have an abundant and elastic currency—a great national desideratum. The old Republican system was a panic breeder; the new Democratic system, according to the best opinion, renders panics impossible.

"A Democratic administration participated gloriously in the most colossal war of all time, and our brave soldiers, acting under direction of a Democratic administration, brought that war to a successful and glorious conclusion.

"Surely the things which we accomplished entitle Democrats to a long lease of power. The outstanding feature of our six years' work is that we accomplished so much in so short a time."

Palmer Speaks of New Problems.

Attorney General Palmer, in his speech, declared that great problems raised by the war had not disappeared, and that the Democratic Party must continue to do its part in attempting to solve them.

"The great war is still a living fact," he said. "The hope of the world for peace has been blasted by the jealousies of men who hold their political fortunes above the world's need.

"Despite our efforts to put the war and its problems behind us and to devote our energies to the questions of the next day which has opened up, we must recognize that the war will not be over in fact, even if in name, until the issues which it has raised are passed upon by the great court of appeals in America and the judgment of the people is entered on the record. There has been too much evidence submitted on the question of our preparation for the war, its conduct and its outcome, to permit this case to be withdrawn from the jury now.

"The issues which we shall gladly meet before this year is out are these:

"Were we adequately prepared to do our part in the conflict of nations? Did we do that part aright? Shall we accept the spirit of the decree which civilization entered when the nations laid down their arms? Shall we have fought and won for naught? Shall we build for the future on the foundation already laid, or destroy the foundation and start anew?

"While these questions may seem to relate to the war, they, in fact, cover the whole range of the problems which beset mankind and which, by these difficult days. The political, economic and industrial structures which the war has shattered must be repaired and strengthened according to the principles which have carried up through the years of war or there will inevitably be weakened or shattered by the policies of those who deny those principles.

"The record which has led to the issue of the war was written by the Democratic Party. Upon that record we shall stand. The part which the Republican leaders have chosen to play has been to criticise our methods, belittle our achievements, investigate our victories and rob America and the world of their fruits.

Leadership "Never Surpassed."

"Let history begin to tell the truth now, and it will say that the common courage of our men and women, the combined effort of capital and labor, the joint support of city and farm, all were melded into an irresistible force by a leadership never surpassed in the history of popular government and that was the leadership which the Democratic Party gave to the world when it made its practical achievements square with its high ideals behind Woodrow Wilson.

"If the Republican Party will meet with honesty and courage the issues which that record has made, they will need to give no money prize for a model platform, or enlist the service of a committee of respectables to define what the party stands for. They have but to review their course since 1912 and stand upon their record. If they do, they will write a platform which in effect will say something like this:

"If intrusted with power, we pledge ourselves to undo all the Democratic Party has done. We will immediately repeal the Federal Reserve law, amend the Constitution to make an income tax impossible, destroy the Department of Labor and the Children's Bureau, wipe out the Workmen's Compensation law, abrogate the eight-hour-day, legalize child labor, consign the parcels post to the scrap-heap, stop the Federal aid to public highways, take the savings bank out of every Post Office, destroy the rural credits system and demolish the Farm Loan Banks, repeal the Clayton anti-trust law, destroy the Federal Trade Commission, strangle the Merchant Marine by removing the Shipping Board, reinstate the coal strike, let the profiteers go free, refuse to ratify the Peace Treaty, put the country back on a war basis, and surrender to Germany. To prove our good faith in this policy of scuttle and crawl, we will nominate as United States senator for President."

"On such a platform the Republican Party will get all the votes it is entitled to get; it will carry almost as many States as it did in 1912.

Says Aliens Must Be Americanized.

"The combination of capital and the organization of labor must alike recognize the authority of the law, which will secure to each its just rights; but these rights must always be sought through the orderly processes of the law and never by substituting for them the weapon molded by might or power.

"No Government is any longer free which is not strong enough, by lawful process, to protect itself or the people which it is designed to serve. Real Americans understand this; others must be made to understand it.

"We cannot back track on the policy hallowed by more than a century of usefulness. Through all the years the oppressed of every clime have found here a refuge from trouble, disorder, and distress. But we insist that those who come to our shores shall come in the right spirit and with the right purpose; that those who remain shall stay with intent to become Americans in every sense.

"Speaking of the alien in this country Mr. Palmer said:

"He must realize that his revolution has been fought and won when he sets foot on American soil. The time for the use of force is then behind him. His time for the use of intelligence has come.

"Those who will not come here in this spirit, those who will not seek to promptly learn what democracy means, those who refuse to believe that a Government of the people can be different from the rule of Kings under a bogus claim of divine right, should go back to fight their battles where their foe is real."

Mrs. Olesen on Party's Ideals.

Mrs. Peter Olsson of Cloquet, Minn., associate member of the Democratic National Committee from that State, said:

"Women do not scoff at ideals: they believe in putting ideals into action. The Democratic Party calls today as it did in its beginning, forward-looking men and women into its ranks. During the war period when money was spoken of in billions and America's armies in millions of men, the women of America will never forget that this Democratic Administration, true to its high ideals, threw around the army camps every precaution for clean living for the soldier, and they will never forget that intoxicating drinks were banished from American warships.

"Ideals are tested in the time of war. The Democratic Party has stood the test. Its ideals are not that property rights are supreme, but that human rights are paramount."

Pomerene Urges Ratification.

Senator Pomerene in his address advocated the ratification of the treaty, with or without reservations, and opposed Government ownership of the railroads. "Ratification of the treaty, he said, was the first step toward the chief need of the hour," stabilization, not agitation."

"The American people demand ratification," he continued. "They believe it to be the first step toward a world peace. I don't doubt our Allies will accept the best they can get at the hands of the Senate. Opponents of the League of Nations should not forget that there already is a 'league of nationalists, Bolshevists, and I. W. W.'"

"It is with extreme regret that I learn an effort may be made to commit the Democratic Party to Government ownership of railroads," he said on turning to railroad legislation. "If there ever was substantial sentiment in this country for Government ownership it has disappeared in the face of the experiment we have had in the last two years."

He denounced the "plumb plan" as akin to Russian Sovietism, and said it would mean the sale of billions in bonds, depressing other Governmental obligations, and would create involved legal questions between the States and the Federal Government.

He pointed to the Federal Reserve Bank system, the merchant marine, the Federal Trade Commission, the Tariff Commission, and the export trade law as examples of constructive Democratic legislation.

"War itself is extravagance," he said, taking up Republican charges of war extravagance. "Let them remember that in the War and Navy Departments commissions were appointed to aid the Council of National Defense. Most of their membership consisted of men of the highest order of ability and integrity, and if they committed blunders, let our critics remember that most of them were Republican business men, and if the Government paid too much, some one got too much. Most of the great industries which were engaged in furnishing the military supplies were owned and manned by Republicans."

The economic situation, he contended, was not "half as bad," as depicted, with workingmen getting the highest wages in their careers, and having more savings accounts than ever.

Owen Appeals to Liberals.

Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, urged liberals of all parties to unite with the Democrats in the coming campaign.

"The Democratic Party," he said, "is the one great liberal party of the country, and it should invite into its ranks openly, frankly, earnestly, all Progressive Republicans and progressive and liberal citizens of all parties in order to pass the great reconstruction acts required at the end of the war.

"We should pass the Peace Treaty immediately; take concrete steps to finance the sale of our excess products to Europe; should increase production; improve distribution; repeal the excess profits tax; require profits on necessaries to be reasonable; put a firm hand on profiteering; deal firmly and thoroughly with organizations advocating destruction of government; sustain law and order, at the same time promoting liberty, organizing Governmental publicity and putting the powers of the Government in good faith at the service of the people.

"I believe we should demand a Department of Public Health; a Department of Education, and resolutely endeavor to unite all progressive men under the Democratic flags in the service of the people of the country."

McAdoo Assails Republican Record.

In a telegram from Wichita Falls, Texas, William G. McAdoo said:

"Republican leadership has demonstrated startling incapacity to deal with the great problems confronting America and the world. Nine months of Republican leadership declines no constructive, humanitarian or statesmanlike act.

"Peace defeated, war prolonged, and hundreds of thousands of needless deaths inflicted upon helpless children, women, and men in Europe—a ghastly toll to exact for partisan political ends.

"The railroad problem boughted and no promise of a real or permanent solution through bills now in conference. The public interest is not protected, while increased rates, inefficient transportation, and general disappointment will result.

"War taxes have not been reduced as they should have been if Republican leadership had proved equal to the task. The great problems of international finance have not been grasped. In consequence, serious peril to our foreign trade and to our domestic prosperity is rapidly approaching.

"The important questions of social justice which cry aloud for attention find no spokesman or champion among the Republican leaders.

We must keep up the fight for the prompt restoration of peace throughout the world. We must stand for the relief of human suffering wherever, in the lands of our Allies as well as in the lands of our late enemies. Democratic leadership must seek to bring about reduction of war taxes, efficient treatment of pressing international financial and economic questions, sympathetic and vigorous consideration of the problems of social justice, constructive effort to improve relations between labor and capital.

We must strive earnestly to promote the welfare of our soldiers and sailors and labor and patriotism saved the nation, and we must not stop until equal civil and political rights are secured for American women in every State.

"Democracy must permit no infringement of the constitutional right of freedom of speech and freedom of the press in times of peace. Advocacy of doctrines or reforms through the ballot is not freedom of speech—it is crime. Such crime must be prosecuted remorselessly.

"Conscienceless profiteering must be resisted by every lawful means. We must adhere to the Democratic principle of the largest measure of Governmental non-interference in the legitimate affairs of the people.

"We must stand for the vigorous protection of the just rights of American citizens in every foreign land."

UNDERWOOD NOT IN RACE.

Announces He Will Not Seek Nomination for the Presidency.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Senator Underwood of Alabama, in a statement today announced that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"My friends have complimented me," the Senator said, "by suggesting that I be a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, but I am in no sense a candidate. I have announced my candidacy for the Senatorship from Alabama and I hope and expect to represent that State in the Senate for the next six years."

SAY SAN FRANCISCO CAN HOUSE CROWDS

A Total of 60,000 Rooms Will Be Ready for Convention Guests.

CITY OTHERWISE EQUIPPED

Civic Centre Structure, Seating 12,000 in Auditorium, Is Available—Will Bar Profiteers.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 8.—There will be no lack of hotel accommodations in San Francisco next June when the Democratic national convention is held here. Hotel men said today that 60,000 rooms will be made available for the thousands of delegates to the convention and their families who are expected.

Immediately after the news was flashed to San Francisco that this city had been selected for the big gathering by the Democratic National Committee, telegrams began pouring into all the large downtown hotels, asking that reservations be made for the convention period. The large news associations were the first on the ground, requesting the management of the Palace Hotel to set aside large sections of that hostelry for their use.

These associations usually bring a large number of trained newspaper men and telegraph operators to report the transactions of the convention, and they require much hotel space, which also is used as office space.

Thomas J. Coleman, general manager of Hotel St. Francis, said last night that he would set aside 500 rooms for the use of the visitors during the convention period. This is half the hotel. He said the telegrams have been pouring into the hotel and reservations for the 500 rooms will be filled in a very short time.

According to John F. Shea, Secretary of the Northern California Hotel Association, there are approximately 60,000 rooms available in the city for the purpose.

Shea said the Hotel Association would do as it had done heretofore when large gatherings came to the city. A rooming bureau will be opened at which all the available rooms in the city will be listed.

According to Shea, the Hotel Association will guarantee the prices of all rooms. He said steps would be taken immediately in cases where attempted overcharges are reported. He said no holiday would be permitted if the Hotel Association could prevent it.

All the hotels in the city are expected to co-operate in housing the large number of visitors, Shea continued, and every effort will be made by them to see that every one is well taken care of.

"The convention will present no problem to the citizens," said Frank Batturs, Assistant Passenger Traffic Manager for the Railroad Administration here. "San Francisco's strategic location with regard to transcontinental service is ideal. Our lines radiate from this city as spokes from the hub of a wheel, carrying the gateways of Portland on the north, Ogden and Chicago on the east, El Paso and New Orleans on the southwest, and Los Angeles on the south.

"When the selection of San Francisco was first suggested one of the things that was urged in our favor was the record established at the San Francisco-Pacific Exposition, when people were brought from all over the country in comfort and security. More recently our lines have stood the brunt of the greatest military mobilization in history and record-time freight record that was without precedent. Right now we are handling the biggest tourist travel California has ever enjoyed. Whenever the Republicans want to come we'll handle them too.

With a main auditorium seating 12,000 persons and two auxiliary halls each with a capacity of 1,500, to say nothing of numerous smaller rooms for committee meetings, the Civic Centre structure is considered ideal for a great political convention. Only a few cities in the entire country could offer anything as modern.

The immense amount of organization work necessary to prepare for a convention will be begun at once with the aid of civic associations and individuals not usually interested in politics. That generally accepted statement that a national political convention is worth $3,000,000 to any city has not been lost sight of either by the politician or the business concerns.

Already a strong sentiment has developed to swat the first profiteer to rear his head, and to swat him hard, as an example of what others may expect. Much preliminary work was done along this line by inserting promises from the lines of business that will profit most from the convention that prices will not advance when the delegates arrive. As headquarters for the delegates will have to be selected. Nothing has been done yet in this respect, but that one of the larger hotels will be picked is probable. The entire hostelry may be commandeered for the convention headquarters.

A rapidly working system of intercommunicating telephones throughout the convention auditorium and in the committee rooms, and connected with the convention headquarters will be turned over to expert telephone engineers for solution.

Telegraph officials say that facilities are such that the news matter of the convention can be handled without trouble. Special accommodations for writers will be provided at the auditorium.

a friend of his in South Dakota as saying in discussing the Presidential race:

"I am for Judge Gerard, but he is not the best candidate. The best candidate is Herbert Hoover."

This quotation caused no little comment among political leaders and was taken to indicate that Gerard would accept a nomination on the Democratic ticket.

Has Not Indicated His Position.

Mr. Hoover did not attend the dinner tonight and did not send a message. It is said that the matter of an invitation was brought to his attention and that he asked that his name be kept out of the affair. He has not indicated (unless the fact that he has been writing on national and international problems for magazines may be accepted as putting him in the race) that he is a candidate for the nomination either as Democrat or Republican. He has frequently been referred to by political leaders as a "neutral candidate," a man in a position where he could accept the nomination from either party.

It was argued in some quarters here tonight that if the differences between Wilson and Bryan over the treaty as a campaign issue caused a split in the party ranks during the contest for delegates Mr. Hoover might be a good compromise. Some hold that if the President were to select a candidate after his liking he would name Hoover.

Advocates of Hoover are contending that he is the best man to "go out and win with" that has appeared. It is suggested that the women of the nation are with Hoover because of his work as Food Administrator and that he is respected in almost every household. His knowledge of European affairs also is put forward as an asset.

Says Hoover Voted Republican In 1896.

Copyright, 1920, By The Chicago Tribune.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Will Irwin, The Saturday Evening Post correspondent, who was Herbert Hoover's roommate at Stanford University, says that Mr. Hoover cast his first and only vote for McKinley in 1896.

Since that time Mr. Hoover has not lived long enough in one place in the United States to vote. As he has done most of his work for the present Administration he could run on either ticket.

fense of civilization and of human liberty.

The Federal reserve banking system entitled the party to the everlasting gratitude of the country, while the farm loan banking system gave to our agricultural interests the relief long demanded by them.

A Democratic Administration gave the people the right to elect their United States Senators by popular vote. It enfranchised the women and for the first time gave labor the fair showing to which it was entitled.

Then came the encroachment of foreign autocracy interrupting the peace-time progress of remedial legislation and our people rose in their might, under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, to the defense of our rights and to save democracy for the world.

The gallant fight made by our soldiers at the front, backed by every loyal American at home, won a victory for democracy and civilization that gained the admiration of the civilized world, which promptly turned to this country to lead it to the path of universal peace and good will, at the end of which there would be no more slaughter by war, but instead a system, effected by universal agreement, that would enable nations to settle their differences by peaceful methods.

Demands Treaty Ratification.

A treaty to this end was negotiated and for seven months it has been throttled by the Republican leadership of the Senate that is so arrogant that it even refused to let the Senators of its own party who desire to have the treaty ratified with certain reservations that seem reasonable to them vote accordingly, and thus to make at least a start toward worldwide peace.

In the meantime our own business conditions are unsettled, a definite proclamation of the end of the war is delayed, we are still in a state of war when the country is clamoring for peace, the exchange market of the world is falling to a basis that threatens paralysis of our foreign trade, and the war-torn nations of the world, struggling under the fearful burdens of their unprecedented losses, are faced with still greater difficulties growing out of the uncertainties of their pitiable situation. Had the peace treaty been ratified with reasonable promptness, as all of our associates in the war were willing to do, the world, once again at peace, would now be engaged in the fruitful work of reconstruction, in which the vast resources of our country would have been called for to an extent that would have brought untold benefit to every section of the country, and that would have put our flag carrying our commerce in the ports of every country of the world.

We join the demand of the pulpits of this country, and of its agricultural interests, of labor, and of the great business, industrial and commercial organizations of America, that the Senate quit playing politics with this sacred question and give to the world the word that America is ready to at least make a trial for universal peace. We repudiate the infernatial suggestion that, having joined our associates in war in creating the conditions which are now leading them to chaos, we are to withdraw and leave them to a merciless fate, in order that we might maintain a so-called traditional state of "isolation" that we surrendered when we went to the defense of our own rights and to the aid of struggling humanity. If this is to be our attitude, then the 50,000 Americans who now sleep in France gave up their lives in vain, and the 2,000,000 more who willingly offered their lives for the cause that called us there have a right to ask for what they were summoned to the colors.

The resolutions were signed by a committee consisting of Clark Howell of Georgia, Chairman; Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, Patrick Henry Quinn of Rhode Island, John Gary Evans of South Carolina and A. R. Titlow of Washington.

San Francisco Bids $125,000.

While Arthur J. Mullen of Nebraska offered a resolution recommending to the convention that the two-thirds rule be abolished, the committee declined to act. Ex-Senator Saulsbury suggested that the subject be referred to a subcommittee for consideration, but on motion of Thomas B. Love of Texas, seconded by Secretary Glass, the motion was placed on the table.

Chairman Homer S. Cummings struck a note of confidence and aggressiveness in his formal opening address.

"So far as I am personally concerned, I look forward to the contest of 1920 with confidence," said Mr. Cummings, after relating the committee's activities in connection with recent State and Congress elections.

"There is no reason why any Democrat should be discouraged," he continued. "There is every reason why Democrats should be confident, courageous and aggressive. This meeting, which occurs on Jackson Day, should be the signal for renewed Democratic activity throughout the country and the revival of the militant spirit of Old Hickory. The full machinery of the committee will be in operation, and there is not the slightest reason in the world why we should not proceed to the work of the campaign of 1920 with confidence and dispatch."

Five new members to fill vacancies in the committee were seated as follows:

M. G. Patterson, Alabama; A. P. Pujo, Louisiana; Dr. F. W. Morrow, Oregon; Thomas B. Love, Texas, and A. R. Titlow, Washington.

Three cities sought the convention—Kansas City, San Francisco and Chicago. Former Mayor Carter Harrison, former United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, and Roger C. Sullivan represented Chicago. Mr. Sullivan said Chicago pledged $75,000.

Isadore B. Dockweiler, National Committeeman for California, who urged San Francisco's claims, caused a stir when he waved a certified check for $125,000. Besides this lump sum, Mr. Dockweiler announced, San Francisco would pledge the free use of its new auditorium, which is capable of holding 15,000 people. He said that the hope of Democracy lies in the West and the holding of the convention on the coast would strengthen the party there.

Miss Mary E. Foy, Democratic Assistant Committeewoman from California, and Bruce Kramer, member of the National Committee from Montana, supported the argument of Mr. Dockweiler.

E. F. Goltra, Committeeman from Missouri, appeared in behalf of Kansas City. Others who urged the selection of that city were Dr. Burris Jenkins, editor of The Kansas City Post; Breckinridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State; former Speaker Clark, and Samuel B. Amidon of Kansas City.

Why?

A lot of men who have bought suits at our season-end sale are still wondering why we ever reduced them.

Most of these men are regular Customers who knew the previous prices of these suits were almost low enough to be lower than current wholesale quotations.

So why the reductions?

Again, we repeat—Because we are merchants, not speculators. Hence—

Our Entire Stock of Hart Schaffner & Marx Winter Suits REDUCED

Including every Blue, Black, Grey, and Fancy winter-weight suit in our four big stores, ONLY dress clothes excepted.

There are about 5000 co-workers in this business who, in one way or another, help to make this quasi-public service institution a daily reminder to the buying public that dependable merchandise can be bought here for less money than elsewhere. And the people who come here daily carry evidence of that fact in their pocketbooks and memories.

Missed the Station

Did it ever happen to you? Reading your paper as you ride down to work, you look up to find that the world looks like a London Fog through your reading glasses. Or when at the theatre you peruse your program and looking up miss the 'croocial' moment—annoying, Oh, very! But enter science with a lens which enables you to see far and near and restores youthful vision.

The Remedy

Our own invisible Bifocals are prescribed by our five registered optometrists and ground in our own shop on the premises or are made from your own glasses or upon the prescriptions of others. We feature painstaking service, satisfactory results and moderate prices. Oculists' prescriptions are given very careful attention.

By the way, how long is it since you had your eyes examined? Doctors agree it should be done at least once every two years.

EXPECTS EXPULSION OF THE SOCIALISTS

Attorney General Newton Is Confident That the Assembly's Charges Will Be Sustained.

HEARING OPENS WEDNESDAY

Speaker Sweet Expects Democratic Recommendations Tomorrow and Will Then Name Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Attorney General Charles D. Newton, who drafted the resolutions under which the Assembly yesterday took action to suspend its five Socialist members-elect pending an investigation of their fitness to serve, said today that he had no doubt the charges against them embodied in the resolutions would be sustained.

The five Assemblymen-elect, should they decide to avail themselves of the opportunity, will be given a hearing on the charges before the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly. The members of this committee will be named by Speaker Sweet when the Legislature meets again on Monday night. The Speaker said this afternoon that Assemblyman Louis M. Martin of Oneida, who was Chairman of the committee at last year's session of the Legislature, would be continued in that position. Assemblyman Martin is Vice Chairman of the Lusk Committee, which for several months past has been investigating seditious activities in this State under a legislative mandate.

Attorney General Newton said that those who had suggested that Speaker Sweet acted hastily in calling the five Socialists before the bar of the Assembly and taking the initiative in having them suspended had better withhold judgment until after the hearing before the Judiciary Committee.

"As I understand it," said the Attorney General, "the charges are not made against the five Socialist members in their individual capacity, but in their capacity as members of the Socialist Party of America and subscribers to its rules and doctrines.

"If it should not be overlooked that the Socialist Party places party obedience above obligations of any public office to which one of its members may have been elected, that the Socialist Party is not a political party at all, but a membership organization which under its loose rules might readily come under alien control, for citizenship is not a qualification for membership either of the party or of its governing committees. Its doctrines are un-American and opposed to organized government, and to those doctrines, as I understand it, these five men have subscribed."

When Mr. Newton's attention was called to the fact that the five suspended Socialists claimed membership in the so-called "right wing" of the Socialist Party, which is ostensibly an exponent of evolutionary rather than revolutionary Socialism, he said:

"After several months of active participation in the investigation of the Lusk Committee, which has gone into the matter pretty thoroughly, I think I am in a position to say that there is not enough distinction between the three brands of Socialism—the Communist, Left Wing, and Right Wing—to make any vital difference. They all come within the charges and specifications embodied in the resolutions under which the five members are suspended."

Assemblyman Martin, prospective Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has been asked by Speaker Sweet to come to Albany early Monday for a conference on the coming hearings. The first session, it was stated unofficially tonight, will be held on Wednesday.

It is expected that a mass of evidence collected by the Lusk Committee, and not as yet made public, which will have a distinct bearing on Socialist Party activities, will be submitted to the Judiciary Committee at its hearings. This, it was stated here tonight by a person in a position to know, would go a long way toward disapproving the claim set up by the Right Wing Socialists that they are advocates of evolutionary socialism solely.

Senator Lusk, Chairman of the committee, said tonight:

"The Socialist members of the Assembly have simply been denied seats pending an examination and determination of their qualifications and eligibility to sit as members of that body. The charge made against these men is that they are pledged to the overthrow of established government in this country by force and violence. This charge is to be investigated by the Committee on Judiciary of the Assembly. If sufficient evidence is produced to sustain the charge, no loyal American will contend that they should be permitted to sit in this body. If, on the other hand, it appears by the evidence that they are not pledged to the overthrow of our established government by force and violence, but believe in and stand for socialism to be accomplished by the ballot through legal and orderly procedure, they should be permitted to take their seats."

HILLQUIT ASSAILS EXPULSION.

Says Assembly's Action Is un-American and Set Electorate at Naught.

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Morris Hilquitt, Socialist leader and member of the Winter colony here, issued a statement tonight in regard to the action of the New York State Assembly in moving to bar the five recently elected Socialist members from their seats, which in part said:

"The Socialist Party is primarily a political party. It seeks to bring about a radical change in the existing economic and political system by lawful and constitutional methods, so long as such methods are open to the citizens. The party is opposed to all forms of profiteering in industry and combats all institutions by which the workers are exploited and crucified in the interests of capitalist profits. It is opposed, on principle, to war among nations and particularly to wars bred by the commercial rivalry of the dominant classes in competing countries.

"This program of the American Socialists is also the program of the Socialists of all advance countries. It is more than half a century old. It has long become a recognized integral part of modern political life throughout the world. Today more than half of Europe is directly governed and controlled by Socialists, and the remaining part of it recognizes the Socialist movement as a dominant, if not the predominant, political factor.

"Viewed purely from its effect upon the political life and morale of this country, the action o the Assembly is the most shameless attack upon the very foundations of democracy and representative Government. It sets at naught the expressed will of the electorate. It substitutes arbitrary power for constitutional Government and the popular mandate. It is the most cynical and undisguised exercise of that 'tryanny of the majorities' which the best American statemen and thinkers have always dreaded. It is 100 per cent. un-American, and beats the autocratic methods of Czardom in its blamest days."

OPPOSES NATIONS' LEAGUE.

Not Acceptable in Present Form, Says Report to Union League Club.

The Committee on Political Reforms of the Union League Club presented last evening to that body a report relative to the League of Nations in which it voiced the opinion that the League in its present form should not be accepted. The committee is thus made up: William D. Guthrie, Chairman; Martin L. Stover and J. Van Vechten Olcott.

"Nor should the Republican Party permit itself to be driven into a false attitude," the report concluded. "Its leaders have for many years been in favor of a safe, sound, practical and conservative League of Nations or League to Enforce Peace. The issue at the present time is not as to the fundamental and vital principle of a League of Nations, but solely whether this particular draft in its present form, avowedly tentative and subject to amendment and revision and clearly imperfect and dangerous as its wording now stands, shall or shall not be adopted and ratified. That the Senate may wisely and patriotically advise.

The following officers were elected: President, Henry P. Davison; Vice Presidents, Class F, 1892, Benjamin B. Odell, Frederic J. Middlebrook, William H. Remick and Henry C. Quinby; Secretary, Harry A. Cushing; Treasurer, Gates W. McGarrah.

WOMEN FOR PEACE TREATY.

Resolutions calling upon the Senate to ratify the treaty of Versailles "with only such reservations as will not send it back to the Allies or require a separate treaty with Germany" were passed unanimously by 2,000 persons at a dinner given last night in the ballroom of the Commodore by the Women's Nonpartisan Committee for the League of Nations.

Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve presided, and other speakers were Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, General John F. O'Ryan, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, and Senator McCumber of North Dakota, the leader of the mild reservation group in the Senate.

"The President of the United States," said Senator McCumber, "unable to secure ratification of the treaty, has so far thrown the weight of his great office in opposition to the ratification of the instrument as modified by Senate reservations with the hope of a milder type. And while the is watchfully waiting, divers candidates for Presidential nomination are touring the country with the hope of engendering such a public animosity toward the compact as shall prevent the adoption of any League of Nations provision.

"If the President would say tomorrow it is up to the Senate as a treaty-making power to exercise its constitutional prerogative, there is no reason on earth why the treaty could not be put through with the League of Nations provision within twenty-four hours.

"If these two forces continue obdurate it is up to the people of the United States to bring about results."

WOULD NOT BAR SOCIALISTS.

Senator Harding Criticises Action of New York Assembly.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Interviewed tonight regarding the refusal to seat five Socialists in the New York Legislature, Senator Warren G. Harding said:

"Mere disbelief in Socialist doctrines is not good ground for excluding any Assemblyman in any State when properly elected. We still adhere to popular government and its liberties. If the majority in this republic wish the adoption of the Socialists' plans and policies there is provision for lawful adoption. We should dangerously abridge American liberty to deny a place in any State Assembly or in Congress to any man eligible to the office and honestly elected thereto.

"We had better seek understanding than attempt unconstitutional denials."

strengthened the position of the Lodge reservationists before the country by showing that in Mr. Wilson's own party his view of the situation and what it demands was not accepted.

Senator Borah said President Wilson's message provided for settlement of the League of Nations issue in the only way it could be settled right. "Mr. Wilson has taken the right means of settling the question," said Senator Borah. "His position is consistent. He could not do otherwise, inasmuch as he went to Europe and told those Governments that he was commissioned by the American people to do certain things. He must now go to the American people for their verdict. He, of course, is the logical candidate of the Democrats in a campaign in which the treaty is an issue. I am very glad he has taken this position."

Senator Borah has all along contended against most of the Republicans, that the treaty must be put into the campaign. He felt he had won a victory, he said, through the injection of the treaty as an issue by President Wilson.

Most Democratic Senators were extremely chary about expressing their opinions until they had had time thoroughly to analyze both the Wilson and the Bryan statements. The attitude of several, however, was one of dejection. The Senators who do not agree with the President that the treaty should go into the campaign do not see how it can be kept out with the President insisting on that course and the Democratic National Committee going on record as supporting his position unqualifiedly. They feel, most Democrats said, that the outlook for adjustment was exceedingly gloomy.

The Republicans were not in the main any better pleased that Mr. Wilson should desire to make it a campaign issue. Their feeling is that the question should be settled before the election. This seems to represent the view of that group of Republicans who have been classified as middle-grounders and mild reservationists. Mr. Lodge and his small group of near-irreconcilables and the Borah-Johnson group of out-and-out bitter-enders of course were jubilant over the President's action.

Income Tax Made Easy

A firm of prominent lawyers have perfected the simplest, quickest and most easily understood method of calculating an income tax so far discovered. It is in the form of a little series of practical questions.

Any person whose time is worth taxing can save money by using it.

The method is embraced in "Made Easy" Questionnaires—No. 1, individual; No. 2, corporation (income tax); No. 3, corporation (excess profit tax). Whether you, your auditor or your attorney make out your returns you'll find that with the "Made Easy" Questionnaire your report can be made out in half the time and the way is made plain on many money saving angles.

WENT LIKE HOT CAKES

Recently a motion picture concern filmed the baking of griddle cakes in a CHILDS window; and, to make it interesting, a large number of cakes were baked.

"How much do we owe you for the cakes?" asked the movie man, when the picture was completed.

"Nothing," replied the manager. "When the crowd in the street saw those tempting cakes steaming on the griddle, they rushed right in and ordered every one."

Good, old-fashioned buckwheat cakes, with plenty of delicious butter and syrup.

Wayfarer Captured My Heart, Says D. W. Griffith

It was a privilege to attend your production, "THE WAYFARER."

When I went to Madison Square Garden to see this pageant, I was prepared for something pleasing and impressive, for I had heard much of its beauty.

It proved bigger than mere beauty. It impressed me with its power; captured my intellect as well as my heart with its message.

I became a "Wayfarer" myself and the message gripped me.

Such a message should go far. With the Church using the Arts in their best forms it will go far. The appeal is not limited to any special public. "The Wayfarer" is for the whole world.

I should like to see the screen aid in the delivery of this message. In a motion picture "The Wayfarer" could have the world distribution it deserves. It could be delivered in a hundred places, a thousand places, at once.

My best wishes to "The Wayfarer"—may he deliver his message to all peoples for all time. Sincerely,

D. W. GRIFFITH.

The black model
Sizes 6-10, in D and E Widths.

Cut on the same last as the tan, but in lighter weight; made without rubber heel or insert between soles. Also solid leather soles, heels and uppers; Goodyear-welted. This model answers the need for a strong shoe that is refined in last and lines.

A PAIR of each style—tan and black—has been cleanly bi-sected so that its internal make and materials stand out in critical clearness. Every man will be interested to see what actually goes into the making of these shoes.

ONE of the world's largest manufacturers found on his hands a limited quantity of a special leather which was not sufficient to make a "full run" of his regular high grade shoes. Socialists in Good Spirits.

The five Socialists appeared in the best of spirits at the People's House, for they had the distinction of being the first to be expelled from any Assembly in the United States.

"If they had left us alone," said August Claessens, the Socialist Assemblyman from Harlem, "we would have been a minor minority and could have done no harm, but now we feel that we have accomplished more for the strengthening and progress of socialistic and radical movements in this country by being expelled. I believe that this action of the Assembly has done more to bring new members to the party than perhaps twenty years of agitation could do. They may rescind their action, which we hope they will not. We trust that they fire us out."

The preamble of the statement issued by the ousted Assemblymen, which was written by Charles Solomon of Brooklyn, said:

"The Assemblymen contnd that they would probably have been the sole obstacle in the way of the Lusk Committee in its application to the Legislature for an extension and an additional appropriation, and that their removal from the Assembly has cleared the way for the committee.

"The suspended Assemblymen were prepared to introduce a resolution for an investigation of the committee on the basis of charges that it had perverted its mission, exceeded its powers, and violated the law. They say that such an investigation would have yielded sensational disclosures and would have rallied support from many influential sources.

"At the same time the Socialists were prepared to present a series of ten questions to the Lusk Committee in the shape of a privileged resolution. These questions have been sent to members of the committee and are as follows:

Questions They Had Prepared.

"Be it resolved by the Assembly of the State of New York that we request the following information from the legislative committee currently known as the Lusk Committee:

"1. Is it true that on June 12, 1919, the committee, through its direct wire and over the switchboard of the Prince George Hotel, New York City, called up Bowling Green 9606, which is the phone number of the British Military Attaché, Colonel Thwaites, and spoke to R. N. Nathan, arranging for the raid on the Soviet Bureau in New York City?

"2. Is it true that Mr. R. N. Nathan is the chief of the British Secret Service in this country?

"3. Is it true that the raid on the Soviet Bureau was executed on the following day, June 13, in accordance with arrangements made between the committee and the chief of the British Secret Service, Mr. Nathan?

"4. Is it true that the papers obtained in the raid were removed to the office of a private detective at 30 East Forty-second Street?

"5. Is it true that Mr. Nathan joined the raiding party in the office of the private detective and in the presence of representatives of the committee, including its associate counsel, Mr. Archibald E. Stevenson, took original copies of these papers and carried them away with him?

"6. Is it true that these papers were never returned to the committee?

"7. (a) Is it true that the remaining papers were turned over to the firm of Oliver Lippincott & Co., photostaters, at 230 Broadway, New York City, where about thirty-five hundred copies of duplicates were ordered to be made?

Hints at Commercial Advantage.

"(b) Is it true that in the month of August, 1919, a package of these photostats were delivered to Mr. Nathan at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City?

"(c) Is it true that the bill for these photostats, approximating $1,300 was paid in two installments, one with a check drawn by the committee on the Harriman National Bank for $500 and the other some time later with $800 in cash?

"(d) And is it true that prior to the cash payment to Oliver Lippincott & Co., Mr. Nathan, handed a roll of bills to the sergeant-at-arms of the committee?

"8. Is it true that Mr. Nathan also participated in the raid on the Rand School?

"9. Is it true that shortly after the aforementioned incidents Mr. Nathan, in full possession of the original papers and photostats, left the United States for England?

"10. Is it true that the original papers obtained by Mr. Nathan were of great commercial importance to the United States and that his possession of them enabled his Government to obtain commercial and diplomatic advantages in its relations with the Soviet Government of Russia?"

Before his departure for Washington yesterday afternoon, Victor L. Berger, unseated "Congressman" from Milwaukee, issued a statement in which he assailed the "capitalistic, ignorant politicians who are outdoing the former Czar in brutality, shortsightedness and terrorism."

A number of Socialists were jubilant over the action of the Assembly, asserting it would enhance their cause by attracting the attention of the people to their propaganda and would give them the sort of advertising that could not be purchased.

"This is the best stroke of propaganda in our favor that has been effected in a long time," said one Socialist.

"It out-Prussianizes anything the Kaiser ever did and out-Czarises anything the late Nicholas ever did," was the way S. John Block, one of the committeemen and several times candidate for office on the Socialist ticket, characterized the expulsion.

Mayor Hylan commented thus:

"I regret that such hasty action was taken in excluding the Socialist members of the Legislature. These members were elected by the vote of the people and should be extended every possible consideration that the duly elected members of the other political parties are given.

"If after charges were preferred, an investigation made, and a fair hearing held it was then found that they were guilty of any act or in any way actively connected with any organization whose purpose is to destroy the Government, then the action of the Legislature would be upheld by the State and the nation.

"I admire the nerve of Speaker Sweet and the Assembly in taking this action. More power to them," was the comment of Controller Craig.

The Assembly's action created a storm of protest last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Socialist Party of the Eighth Assembly District, at 142 Second Avenue. About fifty members were present, including many women and Assemblyman Louis Waldman, one of the expelled Socialists, who lives in the district.

When Waldman entered the hall he was greeted with applause, and every one rushed forward to shake his hand and assure him of support. Resolutions protesting against the expulsion of Waldman were adopted, and copies will be sent to the Governor and both houses in Albany.

More than 300 Socialists of the Seventeenth Assembly District met last night at 50 East 107th Street, where they were addressed by August Claessens, one of the five Socialist members ousted.

Assemblyman Claessens, after giving a detailed report of the unseating, said the Socialist Party as well as the members will be on trial. He said the action taken by the Assembly answered the question whether there is representative government. He considered the ousting the greatest Socialist propaganda.

It was announced that an outdoor mass meeting would be held tomorrow at 2 P. M. at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue. The five ousted Assemblymen are to speak.

Dr. Maurice S. Talman, ex-Alderman, who represented the 17th Assembly District last year, issued a statement, in which he said:

"If John D. Rockefeller's wealth was at the disposal of the Socialist Party for the purpose of carrying on our propaganda among the people of this country the result would, for from measure up to those we are now getting from the result of the unseating of Berger from the Congress of the United States, the five Socialist Assemblymen at Albany and the additional result to us from the intended unseating of the four Socialist Aldermen."

VIEWS OF THE NEWSPAPERS.

Merely a Test, Says The Sun—Two Newspapers Regretful.

From The Sun.

The Sun thinks this quick judgment on the course of the Assembly with regard to five individuals elected to membership in it will be indorsed and sustained by the public generally. It must be borne in mind that the Socialists have not been expelled. Their entrance to the chamber has merely been held up. They may be seated later, and before they are all that is required is that proof shall be presented that they are properly qualified for office.

Good Time to Go Slow.

From The Herald.

The five Socialist members of the State Assembly from this city having been suspended by their associates pending an investigation of their loyalty to American institutions, there is need for calm and dispassionate attitude on the part of the public while these cases are being investigated. The State Bar Association does well to call attention to the increasing tendency in this country to ride roughshod over the individual liberties guaranteed all American citizens under the Constitution of the United States.

The Socialists took a bad slump in the last election. If the Assembly leaders are not careful they may get a new lease of life from the incident of Wednesday night. It seems a good time to go slow.

An Issue of Fact.

From The Tribune.

The propriety of the unexpected exclusion, while an inquiry is conducted, of five duly elected members of the Assembly depends on a question of fact. The Tribune exhorts its readers, disregarding all extraneous considerations, to concentrate attention on this question of fact.

What is it? The issue is the simple one of whether or not the suspended legislators are "force" Socialists or not. Do or do they not believe in the Bolsheviki principle that government rests not on free consent, but on tyrannical violence?

If the five are "force" men they may not be received as legislators. The law, the Constitution, and the whole fabric of free institutions forbid their acceptance.

Democracy cannot argue with those who will not submit to the mandates of the ballot box. It can only meet them and overcome them. It does not tolerate plotters for monarchy. It shows no greater tolerance to those who would introduce similar tyranny under another name. All despotisms look alike to it.

A Blow at Government.

From The World.

The most revolutionary blow ever dealt to representative government in the United States was struck by the New York Assembly when five Socialist members were suspended because, as Speaker Sweet said:

"You have been elected on a platform that is absolutely inimical to the best interests of the State of New York and of the United States."

That is what every political party says about the political platform of every other party. If the action of the New York Assembly can stand as a precedent representative government has ceased to exist in this State because all the rights of the minority have been destroyed. No minority party can be represented in the Legislature except on a platform that is satisfactory to the majority party.

The doctrine that the New York Assembly has enunciated under the leadership of Speaker Sweet is not a doctrine of republican institutions. It is not a doctrine of democracy. It is a doctrine of despotism, in defiance of every principle upon which representative government rests.

A MISSES SUIT IN A NEW MODEL

Of Duvetyn Velour with Real Beaver Collar

A Suit for To-day, Tomorrow, and Long After the First Crocus Announces the Spring.

IN between the "cold snaps" of New York weather, there are many days "fair with rising temperature," when a Miss may put aside her heavy Winter coat and venture forth in a smartly fashioned suit. The correct suit for this purpose fulfills all youthful demands for smartness and meets all Winter needs for warmth. Because it does both, this suit is correct. It is fashioned in a box coat model with snugly fitting sleeves, narrow string belt, and large beaver collar as generous as it is genuine. 14 to 20 yrs.

REVIEWING the present situation in young daughter's wardrobe, mothers will probably find—that the school coat shows signs of wear, that the "best" coat is no longer quite fresh enough for special occasions. That leaves a hiatus, for which Franklin Simon & Co. have wisely provided. This is a coat that may be worn as a dressy coat at all times, as a school coat at any time, as the right coat at the present time, and until the trees begin to bud as a token of Springtime.

HITCHCOCK READY FOR A COMPROMISE

Tells Boston Man Democrats Would Meet the Republicans Half Way on Treaty.

KING DEFENDS PRESIDENT

But Utah Senator Says Ratification Is Impossible Without Some Reservations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—With few exceptions Democratic Senators are willing to meet Senate Republicans in a reasonable compromise on the Peace Treaty, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Administration leader, said today in a letter to R. M. Washburn of Boston, which he had placed in the Congressional Record.

The letter was a reply to a resolution adopted by the Roosevelt Club, of which Mr. Washburn is Vice President, urging President Wilson and Democratic leaders in Congress to make concessions which would bring about immediate ratification of the treaty.

"I beg to assure you," wrote Senator Hitchcock, "that Democratic Senators generally, with probably two or three exceptions, are ready to meet Republican supporters of the treaty half way in an honorable compromise of differences. I beg to say, however, that so far as can be ascertained there are not over a dozen or fifteen Republican Senators who have shown any desire to take this course. The others continued to hold with Senator Lodge that the resolution which he presented and which received only forty-one votes, represents an irreducible minimum in treaty ratification so far as they are concerned.

"On a reasonable compromise of existing differences on reservations I feel justified in saying that of the sixty-four votes necessary the Democratic Senators will be able to furnish more than two-thirds."

Protracted discussion in and out of the Senate has demonstrated that the Treaty of Versailles cannot be ratified without reservations. Senator King, Democrat, Utah, declared today in advocating its prompt disposal. Only a few Democratic Senators were present when Senator King spoke.

"A solemn obligation rests on the Senate to dispose of the treaty, which is still an issue of transcendent importance," he said. "The country is stirred as seldom before, and the question of ratification grips the people of every section, by reason of the important issues involved."

The Senator said he did not agree that the Senate's failure to act rested wholly upon the Republicans. He defended President Wilson's attitude toward the treaty, asserting he could follow no other course than to insist upon ratification without reservations, in order to be true to the Allies, from whom he wrung concessions in the framing of that document. The President did his duty, Senator King said, and continued:

"He presented the treaty to the Senate, and we failed to discharge our duty. The obligation rests on us now to take the treaty from the table and proceed with consideration of the ratification resolution. There ought to be prompt and speedy action, for conditions in Europe and the world demand it."

It would be a fatal mistake, he added, for the President to recommend modifications of the treaty before the Senate acted, and would only tend to lower his prestige with the Allies.

BRONX WANTS FOUNTAIN.

Park Commissioner Would Remove Landmark in Front of City Hall.

If the Board of Aldermen will grant the request of Park Commissioner Joseph Hennessey of the Bronx for $3,500 in special revenue bonds, the old iron and granite fountain that has been in City Hall Park for fifty years will be removed to Crotona Park in the Bronx and a new fountain designed by Frederick W. MacMonnies will be placed in position.

Park Commissioner Francis B. Gallatin brought the matter before the Sinking Fund yesterday by saying that the architect who has the contract to put the new fountain in position had offered to remove the old fountain, foundations and all, at his own expense and pile it up in City Hall Park until it could be removed. Park Commissioner Hennessey said the Bronx would like the fountain. He was told to present his request for revenue bonds to the Aldermen and, if it were granted, the fountain could be taken to the Bronx.

JOHN T. KING QUITS WOOD'S CAMPAIGN

Republican Leaders See Hand of Perkins in Retirement of Connecticut Man.

SAID TO BE "FATIGUED"

Politicians Expect Col. Procter Also Will Be Supplanted in Few Days.

John T. King, Republican National Committeeman for Connecticut and General Leonard Wood's leading supporter in the pre-convention campaign to make the General the Republican candidate for President, has resigned his connection with the Wood campaign, it was officially announced last night at the headquarters of the Leonard Wood League at the Imperial Hotel. Overwork in the interest of the Republican candidate had resulted in a temporary breakdown, necessitating his retirement, it was said.

Republican leaders did not place much credit in the breakdown report last night. They professed to see the hand of George W. Perkins in the retirement, and it was predicted that within a few days Mr. Perkins would come into the open as General Wood's real campaign manager, succeeding both Mr. King and Colonel W. C. Procter of Cincinnati, who has been business manager of General Wood's campaign.

It was reported some time ago that Mr. Perkins was actively, although not openly, working in the interest of General Wood's nomination, and it was recalled that he and Mr. King have had several disagreements during the last two years.

King Displaced Perkins.

When the late Colonel Roosevelt was being seriously considered as the Republican candidate for the Presidency Mr. King displaced Mr. Perkins as the Colonel's political adviser.

Mr. King, at that time, made elaborate plans to have a Roosevelt Presidential movement started this year, but the Colonel's death last year changed the situation. Mr. King, it was said, then turned his attention to General Wood. Although he was successful in giving the Wood boom a good start became very active as the General's field manager, he stirred up considerable opposition, complaint being made that he had overstepped his powers by becoming active in several States scheduled to be left to others. Leaders opposed to Mr. King, it was said, were unanimously in favor of having him supplanted by Mr. Perkins.

When informed last night that it was reported in Chicago that Mr. King had resigned, Frederick Moore, director of publicity for the Leonard Wood League, said:

"I got in touch today with Colonel Procter and learned that the report that John T. King had retired is correct. In my opinion, the support which has come to the General Wood campaign from every quarter of the country has been so extensive that it has overwhelmed Mr. King and Colonel Procter temporarily.

King Admitted Fatigue.

"When I recently saw Mr. King in New York, before his departure for Chicago, he not only seemed overworked but stated that he was fatigued. On one occasion recently he stated that the support which was coming to him for General Wood had amazed him and that it was also coming too fast for Colonel Procter, who had hardly sufficient time to give to callers who wished to enlist for the Wood campaign at the newly opened headquarters.

"It is my opinion that the action of Mr. King is a temporary thing, because I know that his successful work has been fully appreciated by all members of the Wood Campaign Committee. I believe that as soon as Mr. King has seen General Wood again he will join in the tremendously successful movement.

"One of the most important editors in the country said to me only last week after a tour of the various States that he had never seen a finer class of strong, clear-thinking, truly patriotic Americans rally to the support of any Presidential candidate in the way they have sprung up to support the candidacy of General Wood. And this, he stated, was remarkably significant in view of the remoteness of the election."

WILL H. HAYS PREDICTS A REPUBLICAN VICTORY

Tells Colorado State Committee Party Will Carry Presidential Election by a Wide Margin.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 8.—Will H. Hays, Chairman of the National Republican Committee, addressing the Colorado State Central Committee today declared that the Republican Party would win the next Presidential election by a big margin. He said this conclusion was based upon observation covering eighteen months.

Mr. Hays was severe in his criticism of the Administration. He declared that Government employes were "so thick in Washington you have to kick them out of your way." He said that the name of every buyer of Liberty Bonds in the United States was put on the Democratic mailing list for the forthcoming campaign.

"We were shut out of the war jobs in the main," said Hays, "and now we are excluded from all these records which are available to the opposition." He declared Postmaster General Burleson had ordered a rural free delivery census of all admits and he predicted that this list would also be used by the Democrats to "flood the country with campaign literature."

Hays referred to the Republican organization as the "real war party, after all," lauding the party for its "patriotic endeavor during the period when civilization was on trial. He said, "We stood beside the President when he needed aid and no man will ever accuse the party of failure in the crisis."

He warned of "the menace we face in America as a result of the wave of Bolshevism which sweeps onward with a rush." He said that nothing would stop this danger but a change of policy throughout the nation, a change which a Republican victory would bring about.

Hays predicted that the newly enfranchised women voters of America would hold the balance of power. He pleaded for an organization to which "they would be proud to own."

The Republican Party stands first for the "faithful, efficient and honest administration of the business of the country," Mr. Hays declared tonight at a party banquet attended by Republicans from the Rocky Mountain district.

"With all our power," he continued, "we will strive to prevent the further spread of Socialism, and set this nation's feet once more firmly on the path of progress.

"The Republican Party recognizes that labor constitutes the country's chief asset. Labor will receive fair representation in all the councils of the nation. We will have just remedial legislation for the betterment of this group, not only because it is their due, but because by justice always we can prevent the insidious influence of the criminal element of the I. W. W. from taking hold in the ranks of real labor.

VANITY FAIR

the magazine of leisure interests for men who know enough to have them

In an era of perplexities and solemnities, Vanity Fair keeps intact its keen, tolerant, amused viewpoint . . . . Vanity Fair maintains its cheerful outlook on Life, Art, and Letters,—its light, sure touch of farce—its direct appeal to men and women of leisure, intellect, and sympathetic appreciation.

In the Darkest Hour—

VANITY FAIR sails along on the crest of every new movement in Life, Art, and Letters.

IF a painter soars up from the chiaroscuro of Greenwich Village with something called "Three Black Orchids on a Nude Ferryboat" Vanity Fair knows all—or at least enough—about it.

IF a new motor comes out with a diamond-studded cam-shaft, Vanity Fair refers carelessly to the luxurious new cars.

WHEN a one act play composed chiefly of long, tense silences, interspersed with sudden murders, appears, Vanity Fair will tell you what it means—if anything.

Not even the most carefully constructed human being can know every phase of this whirling world. Vanity Fair eliminates for you the mediocre, the gross, and the dull. The result is a brilliant resumé of the month's interesting happenings, which happen more frequently than you think.

MOTHER NOW SORRY SON EVADED DRAFT

Mrs. Bergdoll to Advertise for Prisoner's Brother to Return and Face Same Charge.

DENIES HE IS A DESERTER

Pleads Mother's Privilege in Shielding Sons—Explains Her Possession of a Pistol.

Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, widow of a wealthy Philadelphia brewer, yesterday visited her son, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who is now locked up in Castle Williams on Governors Island charged with desertion as a draft dodger after a sensational arrest on Wednesday in Philadelphia. After a three-hour talk with her son, Mrs. Bergdoll returned to New York smiling with happiness. "My boy is in good hands," she said. "They are all gentlemen here, not like the brutes in Philadelphia."

Mrs. Bergdoll said that, upon her son's recommendation, she had decided to advertise in the papers for Erwin Bergdoll, Grover's brother, who is still at large after evading the draft, to come home and give himself up. Asked if she was not sorry Grover had not become a soldier, she answered, "Yes, I'm sorry." In response to a question why she had shielded her son after he had dodged service, Mrs. Bergdoll asked: "Why wouldn't a mother protect her boy?"

She declared it was untrue that she used bad language when officers entered her home and arrested her son. "I never use bad language," she said. "My mother can testify to it."

Her mother, she added, was 81 years old and lived with her. Mrs. Bergdoll admitted that she was armed when officers came to her house on Wednesday, and said that because she and her mother were the only women in the house, which was surrounded by grounds, she always went to the door "heeled."

She could not understand why her son Grover was held a prisoner on Governors Island charged with being a deserter, and said that he should not be accused of desertion but of evading the draft. "Grover was away on his vacation," she continued, "when his draft notice was received at home and he sent me a post card, saying that he would answer it. They refused to accept the excuse on the card, but published a notice listing Grover as a deserter. That scared him away."

In regard to her other son, Erwin, also sought by the authorities, Mrs. Bergdoll charged officials with putting him in class 1 out of revenge for his brother's failure to appear. Erwin was married at the time and his wife was in a delicate condition, she said. Because he owned a farm and a machine shop, Erwin's mother asserted that he should have received deferred classification. Mrs. Bergdoll insisted that the last time she saw Erwin was eight months ago, following his wife's death. She did not know where Erwin was, "but possibly I may learn," Mrs. Bergdoll added.

Captain Bruce R. Campbell has been assigned as Bergdoll's counsel when he appears before a board of officers constituting a general court martial of which Colonel William H. Allaire is President. It is believed that the trial will be held early next month, after the conclusion of the Detzer case. Major William P. Kelly is the Trial Judge Advocate in charge of the Government's case.

Bergdoll is charged with being a deserter under the Fifty-eighth Article of War. According to an official ruling issued last April, penalties for desertion revert back to a peacetime basis, and, accordingly, the maximum penalty the court can fix is eighteen months.

GERMANS MEET DUTCH AGAIN

Understood to be Negotiating for Credit and Coal Contract.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 8.—Important official negotiations between German and Dutch representatives, which were broken off on Christmas Eve, and which were veiled in secrecy, were resumed yesterday.

There is considerable speculation in the press, for although the exact nature of the basis of the negotiations is not known it is assumed that credit involving a much larger sum than any yet granted to Germany is involved, and also a contract for coal which would guarantee Holland's supply for years.

One of the great difficulties at present is whether, owing to the peace treaty obligations, Germany can contract for such a large delivery of coal.

HUGHES ON MINOR COURTS.

Says They Are Important Because of Contact with Mass of People.

Emphasis was laid by speakers at the reception held by the New York County Lawyers' Association at the Hotel Astor last night in honor of the newly-elected members of the judiciary on the importance of the municipal courts and other inferior tribunals, which Charles Evans Hughes, who presided, described as of the greatest importance, because the mass of people who came in direct contact with them formed their ideas of the justice or injustice of American institutions by what occurred there.

Justice William G. A. Caffrey of the Municipal Court condemned Judges who turned their backs on lawyers arguing before them and abused lawyers and others in court, asserting that disrespect for the bench was often due to the conduct of the Judge, adding that it was time to have Judges "clean house" in this particular.

After his address, ex-Justice Hughes said:

"If we could have men like Judge Coffrey in every court of the country, from the Supreme Court of the United States down, with that spirit of true Americanism, that good humor and true understanding of human nature, there would be no trouble about American institutions."

Surrogate James A. Foley also said a good word for the lower courts, denying so far as New York was concerned, the charge in the Carnegie Foundation report on "Justice to the Poor" that the poor had small chance to get their rights.

RETRACTS DETZER CHARGE.

Witness Says He Was Intimidated Into Making False Statements.

Corporal William Sullivan, a chauffeur in Captain K. W. Detzer's company at Le Mans, proved a hostile witness for the prosecution when he appeared yesterday to deliver rebuttal testimony in the court-martial on Governors Island trying Detzer for alleged cruelty to prisoners in France.

Sullivan repudiated the statement made in France last Summer to Lieut. Col. Culberson, who was investigating the Detzer charges. This statement, which alleged Detzer had mistreated prisoners, was made only after threats made by the Inspector General, Sullivan said. He gave three reasons for withdrawing his testimony before Colonel Culberson. The first was that he was just out of solitary confinement at the time and his nerves were shaken. Second, he said, Colonel Culberson threatened that he would see that Sullivan got "twenty years" if he did not make the required statement. Third, he told the court, Colonel Culberson had "put the picture in my mind as to what to say about Captain Detzer mishandling prisoners, and he was further prejudiced against the Captain by being told if officer had preferred charges again him."

The trial will continue today. It is expected that Captain John M. Weir, Assistant Judge Advocate, will take the stand in rebuttal for the prosecution.

Dinner Dance for Miss Edna Hoyt.

Mrs. George Quintard Palmer gave a small dinner dance last evening at her residence, 1 East Seventy-third Street, for her niece, Miss Edna Hoyt, the débutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Hoyt. There were about fifty guests for the dinner, and a number of others came in for dancing. The dinner guests included the Misses Ada L. Heinse, Josephine Flood, Marion Carroll, Marion Carpenter, Helen Bull, Emma Peabody, Victorine Kellogg, Frances Barnard, and Eleanor Franeke.

27 ON THE MERCURY HURT IN SEA STORM

Two Bay State Women Come to Hoboken on Transport Under Doctor's Care.

DINING SALOON WRECKED

Italian Line Steamship Caserta Also Reports Bad Weather on North Atlantic.

While the transport Mercury, bound from Antwerp for this port, was bucking one of the worst hurricanes of the Winter on New Year's Day, two heavy tables were loosened from their fastenings and twenty-seven of the thirty-five passengers in the dining saloon were injured. The vessel arrived in Hoboken yesterday with three under the doctor's care. They were Miss Helen Austin of Boston, whose right arm was broken; Miss Elizabeth Delaney of Worcester, Mass., who was badly bruised, and Third Officer Charles R. Daniels, who was pinioned between the table and wall.

On the day of the accident a northwest gale piled up heavy head seas that scourged the Mercury, at times threatening to engulf her. Passengers in the dining saloon had little fear, however, and showed no excitement until after the vessel slid into the trough of the sea and, just as she was about to recover, was shocked by a mountain of water. The tables, wrenched loose, were whirled about the room, glass and crockery were scattered and there almost was a panic before the tables were secured. Because of the storm the wireless was out of commission for nine hours.

Three deaths occurred on the transport. They were Private Fay Bennett, Shawnee, Okla., who died Jan. 2 of pneumonia; Private Earl A. Neeley, 148 High Street, Bradford, Pa., who died Dec. 31 of bronchitis, and Private Bernard L. Black, of Alabama, who died Jan. 4 of pneumonia.

Crew of Liberty Glo Arrives.

Sixteen members of the crew of the freighter Liberty Glo arrived on the Mercury. Their vessel was wrecked by a mine off the coast of Holland on Dec. 8. Consequent to the transfer of the forty-three members of the crew to the lifeboats, four were frozen to death. The Liberty Glo carried oil and cotton from New York, and was bound for Bremen. She struck a mine when about twenty-five miles off the Armuland Lighthouse. The break was forward of the engine room, and the vessel managed to work in until only seven miles off the lightship. Early the next day Captain Stansland realized the vessel was sinking and ordered the crew to the small boats. The forward part of the boat sunk. The aft part, on which were the skipper and Michael J. Tagger of Long Island, floated away, and finally drifted on to a sand bar seven miles away. Captain Stansland and his first and third officers remained in Holland, where an inquiry into the accident is being made.

The Mercury had 358 passengers, many of whom were returning army nurses and discharged soldiers. Among those on board were Jose Dolores, a Brazilian stowaway.

Another vessel that arrived yesterday and reported bad weather on the North Atlantic lane was the Royal Italian Mail Line steamship Caserta, from Italian ports. She was forced to put in three days at Gibraltar to have her bunkers replenished. During the rough weather on Dec. 28 Amaneo Da Julis, 10 years old, fell down a steerage companionway and broke his right arm.

Boy Born on the Caserta.

Another name was added to the passenger list as the Caserta was sighting Ambrose Channel lightship on Wednesday night. A boy baby was born to Mrs. Margaret Lucano, who is on her way to Philadelphia. As the vessel was coming to her pier Pietro Castellani, 14 years old, died.

It will be a long time before Antonio Machetti, a grocer, of 352 Spring Street, Hoboken, again takes his family to Italy. When he returned yesterday he ran into all kinds of difficulties with the immigration inspectors because several years ago here he lost his right hand. With him returned his wife and their children, Rosa, 12, Peter, 9, Jennie, 7, and Irene, 6, all except Rosa having been born here.

Machietti and his family when to see Mrs. Machetti's mother in Citta, Nova, Calabria, and sailed from here on September 3 on the Europa.

"How did you lose your hand," asked an inspector yesterday. "I blew it off celebrating the Fourth of July in 1912," answered Machetti.

"You ought to have a medal for you are more entitled to it than some I know," said the inspector.

It finally was decided to admit the family.

French People Still Thrifty.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Frenchmen have not lost their ability to save money. Figures showing Paris bank balances for the period of Dec. 29 to Jan. 3, just published, indicate that, even during the holidays, sums deposited exceeded those withdrawn by almost exactly 1,000,000 francs. Records indicate the number of depositors was nearly four times the number who withdrew funds.

Mrs. Lloyd George Now a Magistrate

CARNARVON, Wales, Jan. 8.—Mrs. David Lloyd George, wife of the Prime Minister, took her seat today in the Quarter Sessions as the first Welsh woman Magistrate.

BREAKS TURKISH MONOPOLY

Foreign Trade Corporation Reduces Lighter Charge from $36 to $12.

Henry Mason Day, President of the American Foreign Trade Corporation, a subsidiary of the Tobacco Products Corporation, who has just returned from the Near East, said yesterday that in Constantinople he found a monopoly of the lighterage business in that harbor.

"I learned to my amazement," he said, "that a group of shipping agents of foreign nationality, by means of cooperation, completely monopolized the discharging of vessels. This group, by reason of their close association and absence of competition, were charging $36 a ton for unloading freight from hold to lighter. The freight rate from New York to Constantinople, approximately $40 a ton, with this charge of $36 means a heavy overhead on American goods and a handicap in meeting keen competition.

"The American Foreign Trade Corporation, to protect American interests, instituted a shipping department and cut the ship-to-lighter charge for all American cargo to $12 a ton."

How Competition Helps You

The competition that exists among the hundreds of meat distributors, large and small, means

Rivalry in Economy
Rivalry in Quality

Swift & Company sells meat at the lowest possible price, consistent with quality and service. Our profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound on all products is evidence of keen competition.

Swift & Company must provide the best service to your dealer or he will buy from our competitors. This means a supply of fine fresh meat always on hand for you at your dealer's.

Swift & Company must keep down manufacturing and selling costs, and use all by-products to avoid waste, or else lose money meeting the prices of competitors who do.

Swift & Company must make its products of the highest quality, or see you turn to others. This means better meat for you and a greater variety of appetizing, wholesome food.

We are as glad for this competition as you should be. It helps to keep us on our mettle.

BRINKLEY PRODUCING & REFINING

Oil Tabloid No. 1

This is the beginning of a series of public notices, the purpose of which is to acquaint the public with the activities of the Brinkley Producing and Refining Company.

This company now controls approximately 33,000 acres of proven and prospective oil lands, has 3 wells flowing into pipe lines, 2 wells on sand now being drilled in, and completing contracts to drill 6 more, contracts disposing of all casinghead gas at a profit, thereby taking care of labor expenses, and still another valuable contract disposing of our entire production of oil at posted market prices.

The real story of how all this has been accomplished in so short a time and what it means to you, will appear in succeeding issues of this newspaper. If you cannot wait or do not care for history, send your name and address now for literature telling the whole story at one reading.

BRINKLEY PRODUCING AND REFINING CO.,

Opportunity

A well established Automobile Company (one of the largest in New York) is expanding one of its already successful departments to take care of business which has been offered to it, and will dispose of a limited amount of its ORIGINAL TREASURY CAPITAL STOCK on a very attractive basis.

The Company estimates that its sales will be between THREE and FOUR MILLION DOLLARS in 1920—having unfilled orders on hand at the present moment for approximately ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

The officers and directors are among the oldest and most experienced in the industry—the organization is well seasoned and the company has long term contracts with prominent manufacturers.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

And now Farm Schools are teaching farmers ADVERTISING

Will it revolutionize present methods in the marketing of farm products?

Out in Oklahoma a farmer named Russell Adams sold ninety per cent of his production, last year, direct by mail through advertising.

Two or three small newspaper ads, planned and written by Mr. Adams himself, did the work.

His experience is described to other farmers in a booklet prepared by the South Dakota State Agricultural College, in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

It is a booklet entitled "Advertising Farm Products," written to supply the demand from farmers for instruction on advertising.

How to write headlines and copy, how to make a layout, and how to arrange illustrations and typography, is explained in its pages.

This booklet is mailed to farmers by the extension department of the South Dakota college. For the farm boys who come in to school, this college has a regular course on advertising and marketing subjects.

Business men with farms for factories

Every important agricultural school, in fact, now instructs the farm student in the art of advertising.

A change similar to that which has swept over American manufacturing is now well under way in the farm field.

Interest in production methods is giving way to interest in distribution methods. How to plow and how to reap is no longer in the foreground of the farmer's thoughts.

We see in the farmer an executive with a farm for his factory, hiring labor to run his machines and devoting his own time to intelligent business management of his enterprise.

We see an executive who is finding in advertising, and in all the modern business methods that go with it, means that will widen his market and enable him to dispose of his products to better advantage.

Whether advertising is destined to revolutionize present methods in the marketing of all farm products, as it revolutionized them for Russell Adams, is not clear.

What is clear, however, to us here on FARM & FIRESIDE is the definite and rapid development of a new type of American farmer.

It is our recognition of this development, and our constant effort to keep pace with it, that has attracted to FARM & FIRESIDE more than 600,000 farm readers of the most progressive character.

NEW LAWS TO CURB TRADE-MARK PIRACY

Commissioner Newton Will Draw Bills to Cover Situation Revealed by Carmo Case.

LAWYER IN LISBON AT WORK

State Department Lends Facilities for Fighting Attempted Seizure of Auto Names.

After consultation with James T. Newton, United States Commissioner of Patents, who came here from Washington to aid forty-three automobile manufacturers, whose trade-marks are in danger of being pirated, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that it had engaged a lawyer in Portugal and had wired instructions to start a fight against the efforts of a Portuguese named Carmo to gain control of a large part of the future export business of these firms.

At the same time, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce sent to Secretary of State Lansing all the data which it had collected regarding the wholesale piracy of automobile trademarks, which was disclosed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, and asked for diplomatic action by this Government to frustrate this attempted raid on American patents. It was said that the State Department had been successful in curbing the activities of patent pirates in Brazil, who stole American trade-marks, which carried wit hthem the right to do business in trade-marked articles in that country. Charles Clifton, President of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber would use all its resources to protect the rights of its members, more than twenty of whose trade-marks are on the list which the Portuguese is trying to take.

Newton to Draft Laws.

After consulting with A. E. Newton of Marks & Clerk, which discovered the work of Carmo in Europe, and other patent lawyers who have been called in by the automobile makers concerned, Mr. Newton announced, that he would draft a law for presentation to Congress to enable the owners of all trade-marks in commerce in this country to register them here as the basis for their registration abroad. Geographical terms used in trade-marks and various other classes of marks cannot be registered at present. However, in many European and South American countries anyone can register these names and thereafter prevent an American from using that mark in that country, except by permission and on the terms of the person who has registered the mark. The proposed law, which will be drawn by Mr. Newton will allow Americans to register trade names of all kinds in bona fide use in this country, as a basis for extending the registry to other countries. A law of this kind went into effect in England on the first of this year, furnishing the model for the one to be offered in this country.

Only Seven Days for Action.

In the meantime, Mr. Newton said he would co-operate with the State Department in an effort to provide the automobile companies with facilities for fighting for their rights in the Portuguese courts. Seven days from now, Carmo, under the Portuguese law, will become the owner of the marks, for which he filed application on July 14, 1918, unless formal opposition is made in the courts within that time. The execution of powers-of-attorney and other instruments to enable Portuguese lawyers to act on behalf of the American companies within the week is involved in considerable difficulty, in which the co-operation of the State Department is needed. If he does procures the title in Portugal, Carmo is merely required under the Berne Trade-mark Convention to pay $20 for each mark and deposit copies of the Portuguese registry in Switzerland, in order to obtain control of the export business in these cars in twelve other States of Europe and South America.

GOMPERS HECKLED ON POLICE STRIKE

Interrupted at Boston Luncheon When He Assails Commissioner Curtis.

BLAMES HIM FOR DISORDER

Aswers Objections by Reading Affidavit on Delay in Calling Out Volunteer Police.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—Samuel Gompers, who spoke here today as a luncheon guest of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, was subjected to some heckling, and at times his voice was drowned in a chorus of "Noes" while he was discussing the recent strike of Boston policemen and criticising the action of Police Commissioner Curtis.

The failure of the Commissioner to call out volunteers, he asserted, was a part of the same deliberate policy of letting loose disorder to discredit the policemen. When cries of "No" were raised by his auditors, Mr. Gompers exclaimed "I can prove it," and in response to loud invitations to do so he had his secretary read an affidavit of a newspaperman regarding a conversation with former Superintendent Pierce, who at the time of the strike was recalled to service as a special assistant to the Commissioner. The affidavit said that three hours before the police struck the reporter called on Pierce and asked him if he was going to order out the volunteer police that night. Mr. Pierce replied that his orders from the Commissioner were to call them out at 8 A. M. the next day, and that they would not be called out that night under any consideration, according to the affidavit.

Continuing, Mr. Gompers asserted that there was no reason for objecting to the affiliation of the police with the American Federation of Labor as he said there was an express provision in the charter that there should be no striking.

Hear these famous Victor artists!

Extraordinary interest attaches to the recitals of these great artists because of the double opportunity they afford the music-loving public.

It is a privilege in itself to hear these famous artists, and added importance is given to the events in that they enable you to compare their exquisite interpretations with their Victor Records.

Attend the concerts of these artists and note the individual qualities that distinguish their wonderful voices. Then go to any Victor dealer's and hear the Victor Records by the same artists. Note how faithfully their interpretations are portrayed on the Victrola.

It is because of this absolute fidelity that these three artists make Victor Records; that the greatest artists of all the world are Victor artists.

Victrolas in great variety of styles from $25 to $950. New Victor Records demonstrated at all dealers on the 1st of each month.

STREET RAILWAYS HURT BY WAR.

What has prevented issue of more capital needed for re-equipment of street railways in cities of the United States is the view of Alfred M. Barrett, Deputy Public Service Commissioner of New York. His article on the subject appears in the Annual Number of the Annalist. Copy free for 10 cents in stamps. Times Square, New York City.

Agricultural America

60 Billion Dollars of Farm Wealth

This Vast Market Visualized

To grasp the magnitude of the farm wealth in America consider these facts: It is approximately three times larger than that of all the great manufacturing industries in the United States combined; three times larger than the resources of all the National Banks in the United States; and three times the total capitalization of all the railroads in the country. In other words, the agricultural wealth equals the combined values of all the manufacturing industries, the National Bank resources and the railroads.

Manufacturers and Jobbers

IF your product can contribute to the profits of the farm, add to the comfort of the farm home, or increase the personal pleasure of those who live in the country, you have a great market which is easily and economically reached through the farm papers of America.

American farmers and their families have an intense buying desire. Intimate contact with town and city friends, greatly increased by the automobile, has stimulated their taste for all those things which enrich the lives of prosperous, intelligent people. Earnest educational work of the Farm Papers has also helped to create new and higher standards of living.

A visit to the Farm Paper Publishers' Conference and Exhibit will give you a fair conception of the farm market for your product.

Sales and Advertising Managers

AMERICAN farmers are producing more than ever before. And this vast producing power is the basis of an equally vast buying power. A survey of 142 farm homes in a Middle Western community revealed that 44% had running water, 48% power washing machines, 50% furnaces, 40% refrigerators, 56% pianos, and 88% libraries exceeding 100 volumes.

You need not be so much afraid of your price as of your quality. Farmers and their wives, sons and daughters are today buying goods which a few years ago would have been offered only to a high-class city trade.

You should attend the Farm Paper Publishers' Conference and Exhibit and investigate the opportunities for increasing sales through farm trade.

Advertising Agencies

IN order to best serve advertisers you must know the possibilities of every market. And in order to know the possibilities of the farm market you must keep posted on rapidly changing conditions.

A few years ago your client might have truthfully said that he did not have sufficient distribution to warrant an appeal to the farm trade. But good roads and the automobile now take the farmer to the already established centers of distribution so that the farm market can be supplied through present channels of trade.

Since this farm market represents over 50% of the buying power of the nation, do you think an expenditure of less than 10% of an advertising appropriation—the present average—is sufficient to reach this market?

Come to the Farm Paper Publishers' Conference and Exhibit and learn the advisability of seeking farm trade.

Everyone interested in the farm market is invited to attend the Farm Paper Publishers' Conference and Exhibit at the Hotel Commodore, January 13, 14 and 15, between 10:00 A. M. and 10:00 P. M. There is no admission fee. At a luncheon each day, between 12 and 2 o'clock, speakers of national prominence will discuss Agricultural America as a market for worthy products. Information obtainable at this Conference and Exhibit will well repay any Manufacturer, Jobber, Sales Manager, Advertising Manager or Agency Man for the time devoted to it. Be sure to attend. You can't afford to miss it.

GARMENT STRIKERS ORDERED TO WORK

160 SHOPS' EMPLOYES OUT

Picketing to be Abandoned During Inquiry—Employers Uphold Three-Year Contract.

The commission appointed by Governor Smith to arbitrate the differences between employers and employes in the garment industry held its initial session yesterday in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall. Both parties to the controversy, which affects approximately 60,000 workers, have agreed to abide by the decision of the arbitrators.

At the outset of the hearing the employers won a point when the commission ruled that pending its decision the members of the union now on strike should return to work immediately. William Klein, representing the manufacturers, told the board that the employes of about 160 shops were still out and picketing the establishments. On motion of Hugh Frayne, Organizer of the American Federation of Labor, one of the members of the commission, it was decided to give both sides until today to obey this order. Edward F. Boyle, Chairman of the commission, said since the statements of both sides were to be taken in good faith, the members of the commission felt that inasfar as possible conditions should obtain as before the present disagreement.

The question was raised by the labor representatives as to the right of the American Employers' Association to be heard. The controversy, they maintained, was confined to the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, and the other employers' organization had no standing. Israel Feinberg, one of the union leaders, further objected on the ground that the American Employers' Association had not notified the commission of its desire to offer testimony. Although Mr. Frayne was of the opinion that the commission should limit its scope to a consideration of the complaint of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association that a contract with the Cloak, Skirt and Reefers Union had been violated, Edward F. Boyle, the Chairman, ruled that in order to get all of the facts it was necessary for the American Employers' Association to be heard.

Before the commission began work it was announced that Jeremiah P. Mahony would be heard in behalf of the general public. Mr. Boyle told both sides that the board reserved the right to discontinue the hearings at any time it became apparent that the employers had not taken back the striking men or that the employes had not returned to work as agreed.

Because Edward F. Baldwin, one of the members of the commission, had not been present at the hearing before Governor Smith in Albany when both sides promised to arbitrate, William Klein, representing the employers, was asked to restate the issue involved from the viewpoint of the manufacturers. The attorney told the steps leading up to the adoption of the three-year contract last June, by the terms of which no further demands were to be made until its expiration.

After reading the clauses by which the employers and the employes bound themselves to carry out the terms of the agreement in good faith, Mr. Klein said that as soon as the workers resumed their jobs they at once made new and exorbitant demands for wage increases. The manufacturers between June and September were compelled to grant increases from ten to forty per cent., he said. He also declared that the present high prices of cloaks and suits was due to these demands which the union forced despite the existence of the contract of last Spring.

"On Dec. 23 the employers were met with a demand made by Mr. Sigmund, as chairman of the union's committee, for a flat increase of thirty per cent. based on a minimum scale," Mr. Klein said. "The manufacturers met the members of the union in conference but got nowhere. The representatives of the union threatened that if the workers did not get the increase directly they would obtain it indirectly."

Mr. Klein said that the statement made before Governor Smith that many of the workers did not understand English and therefore did not realise what the contract meant was untenable. He asserted that the June contract had been read to the employes at the meetings of their local unions and had also been circularised among them in Italian, Hebrew, and English.

The spokesman for the employers read into the record the correspondence on the present controversy which passed between the Association and the Union. In these letters the employers, in refusing to grant the wage increase demands called attention to the high prices of garments and the existence of the June contract. The employes' replies stated that the wage adjustments made in the contract were not commensurate with the increasing cost of living.

In a statement issued last night M. R. Silverman, chairman of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers Protective Association, declared that the employers were satisfied that they would be able to convince the Governor's Commission of the justice of their position in the controversy. The hearing will be continue today.

BURN OWNER AT STAKE, LOOT AND FIRE STORE

Robbers Saturate Merchant's Clothes with Oil in Arkansas Negro Settlement.

OSCEOLA, Ark., Jan. 8.—W. E. Hansel, owner of a chain of plantation stores, was bound to a post and burned to death by robbers who last night looted his store at Holt, near here. Hansel's clothing had been saturated with gasoline. The store also was set on fire.

Farmers, roused by a negro who discovered the building in flames, found Hansel tied to a post in the building with his clothing afire and his face seared by the blaze. He died within a few minutes after he was removed from the building.

Search throughout the night and early today by Sheriffs' Deputies and posses of citizens is said to have failed to establish a definite clue to the identity of the men who committed the crime.

Holt, a farming settlement six miles south of this city, is populated largely by negroes.

WELFARE BILLS OPPOSED.

New York Legislative League Disapproves Measures for Women.

The New York Legislative League, meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, adopted a resolution protesting against the welfare bills for women prohibiting their working after 10 o'clock at night and the proposed eight-hour a day bill for women office workers.

Mrs. Mary Murray, a discharged Brooklyn Rapid Transit employe, told the members of the league that the Lockwood bill prohibiting women from working after 10 o'clock at night put thousands of women out of employment and forced them to seek employment elsewhere at a much lower wage. Miss Beatrice Brown, Publicity Agent of the Woman's League for Equal Opportunity, spoke on the women's employment question.

PATTERSON-LENZ

THE LAST WORD IN CONTROLLED LIGHT

THERE are two types of controlled light — diffused, and deflected. As a projector of diffused light, the Warner-Lenz is acknowledged without an equal. And now the makers of the Warner-Lenz announce optical engineering's greatest achievement in the field of projecting deflected light — the PATTERSON-LENZ.

The Patterson-Lenz achieves the feat that has hitherto baffled all experimentation in deflected light—it absolutely provides full radiance, perfectly controlled, 42 inches from the ground, at great distances. The objectionable "spotlight focus," which gives light on the roadway at one small spot only, is literally wiped out of existence, together with all shadows and "spots."

The supremacy of the Warner-Lenz among projectors of diffused light is apparent in the fact that 1,500,000 have already been sold, and that the Warner-Lenz is the standard equipment of thirty leading makers of cars. It has been backed with $500,000 of advertising.

The Patterson-Lenz will not only share in this tremendous prestige, but confidently awaits the admiration of the motoring world as "the last word in controlled deflected light."

Each supreme in its field—Warner-Lenz and Patterson-Lenz.

Nearly everybody worth while

NEARLY everybody worth while spends some time enjoying the finer things of life. The banker isn't always thinking about credits and sight drafts. The manufacturer occasionally forgets cost-sheets and out-puts. The busy executive finds an occasional moment in which profits and losses have no significance. The better type of employee frequently stimulates his imagination in realms far removed from the counting-house, the shop or the office.

And "everybody worth while" means, of course, those who are doing the work of the world and whose voice, individually or collectively, in commerce, in politics, in art, in work or in play is the most authoritative.

That a magazine should have about a million and a half circulation—that it should publish the best work of the greatest writers and the greatest artists in all the world—that it should have the greatest newsstand sale—that it should, in short, make publishing history is important. But it is of far greater importance that this magazine is read by nearly everybody worth while.

Surely it is significant that the chance acquaintance you recently met on a limited train was deeply interested in the same magazine you yourself carried, and that you should discuss "Kindred of the Dust" with him, agreeing, perhaps, that it is "the best thing Kyne has done." You may have taken his interest in Cosmopolitan for granted—but a glance about you would probably have disclosed more copies of Cosmopolitan than of any other magazine. Nearly everybody worth while reads Cosmopolitan.

And when, at your destination, you strolled through the hotel lobby, stopping at the newsstand, it was no coincidence that the progressive, prosperous looking man you had noticed at the desk as you registered, asked for Cosmopolitan. Nearly everybody worth while reads Cosmopolitan.

At the home of your friend—in a quiet suburb—you find Cosmopolitan on the library table, and after dinner, over the cigars, you have a topic in common. Perhaps it's Fannie Hurst and you both wonder if her forthcoming novel in Cosmopolitan will live up to the greatness of her short stories in the magazine.

Your dummy at bridge in the evening, may tell you that every time he plays lately he remembers what Harvey O'Higgins said in Cosmopolitan about the young man who fell in love with a girl at first sight because her long, slim, white hands at the card-table exerted a mysterious attraction for him. "Yes, nearly everybody worth while reads Cosmopolitan," you say to yourself.

Your competent secretary brings the Cosmopolitan to the office with her, and you hear her say to your assistant, "Now if you want to read something really good, don't miss the new Rupert Hughes story in this month's Cosmopolitan." If you haven't read it, you make a mental note to do so—and so it goes. It is borne upon you more and more that nearly everybody worth while reads Cosmospolitan.

And because nearly everybody worth while reads Cosmopolitan—because an ambitious cow-puncher is just as willing to ride forty miles to the nearest post-office for his copy as you are to pick it up on the stand on your way home—Cosmopolitan is a really great, a really important magazine in the lives of about a million and a half worth while people.

Get the newest Cosmopolitan which you can buy today at the nearest newsstand and see for yourself why nearly everybody worth while reads America's Greatest Magazine.

JACKSON DAY DELIVERANCES.

Something too much of the unyielding spirit of ANDREW JACKSON possessed the mind and guided the pen of Mr. WILSON when in his letter to the men of his party assembled at the Jackson Day dinner in Washington he wrote that "if there is any doubt as "to what the people of the country "think of this vital matter," of the Treaty and of the League covenant, "the clear and single way out is to "submit it for determination at the "next election to the voters of the "nation, to give the next election the "form of a great and solemn referen-"dum, a referendum as to the part "the United States is to play in com-"pleting the settlements of the war "and in the prevention in the future "of such outrages as Germany at-"tempted to perpetrate." Shall we hold the Treaty unratified and continue in a state of war with Germany for a year while we ask the voters of the United States to remove a doubt which does not exist? President WILSON has no doubt what the people think about the Treaty, he has asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the Treaty. The Republicans harbor no doubts, the reports of their National Committeemen settled the matter for them. The responsible leaders of their party are resolved that the Treaty shall not become a campaign issue, they are striving to bring about ratification in order that the dispute may not be an issue. The Democrats do not want to make their campaign upon the Treaty issue; the country would loudly protest against this needless prolongation of a debate already protracted beyond the limit of its patience. Besides, no matter how the issue might turn, no man could say that the election had been decided upon the Treaty; and if the Democrats should elect their President, their victory might be a barren one so far as the Treaty is concerned unless they secured also a two-thirds majority in the Senate.

Mr. WILSON'S language cannot be construed as advice to his party to take the Treaty into the campaign. That cannot be his wish or his hope. It is not, for the whole weight of his appeal and argument supports prompt ratification. He renews his assurance that he does not oppose interpretative reservations. "I have endeavored to make it plain," he says, "that if the "Senate wishes to say what the un-"doubted meaning of the League is "I shall have no objection." But he adds, "there should be no reasonable "objection to interpretations accom-"panying the act of ratification "itself." That sentence might better have been omitted from the President's letter, for it is too late to indulge the hope of interpretations merely "accompanying" the act. The situation that confronts the President and the country is that the Senate will not ratify the Treaty save with reservations made a part of the ratifying act. A numerous and influential group of Senators on the Republican side are loyally striving to reach an agreement with their own leaders and with the Democrats upon a form of reservations which the President can accept. It is our judgment that Mr. WILSON should welcome their efforts and, so far as he is required or permitted to exert any influence in the matter, he should give them and his supporters among the Democrats encouragement and aid.

He stands upon solid ground when he says "but when the Treaty is acted "upon I must know whether we have "ratified or rejected it. We cannot "rewrite this Treaty. We must take "it without changes which alter its "meaning, or leave it, and then after "the rest of the world has signed it "we must face the unthinkable task "of making another and separate "peace with Germany." As we understand it, the middle group of Republicans are faithfully endeavoring to secure ratification in this sense. We are entirely confident that the act of ratification will take a form which, while not desired by the President or entirely satisfactory to him, will appeal to his sense of duty, to his feeling of consideration for the sufferings of many nations and for the welfare of mankind so powerfully that, putting aside objections not vital, he will accept it. The President cannot take a position so extreme that in the thought of the country it would be compared with that held thus far by Senator LODGE, a position which the Massachusetts Senator, we hope, under the persuasion of wise and large-minded men of his own party, will consent to abandon.

It is true, as the President says, that without the League and without participation in its work the world will be exposed to the old evils of secret treaties, of offensive and defensive alliances, of governments suspicious of each other, intriguing against each other, with the hope of permanent peace indefinitely deferred and apprehensions of war always present. That would be incomparably worse than the acceptance of the Treaty with reservations that might be regretted, but would not be destructive. It must be remembered that Mr. WILSON was writing to men of his own party, upon an altogether Democratic occasion, but there is nothing in the letter, candidly construed, which should chill the zeal of those who are working for an acceptable ratification. And we firmly believe that when the Treaty comes again into his hands he will go to the very verge of lofty and magnanimous conciliation, and beyond it, in his effort to see his way clear to transmit it to the other Powers as accepted by the United States.

In deciding to hold their National Convention in the City of San Francisco on June 28 the Democrats show that they are willing to put upon their delegates the burden of the full transcontinental journey, in order, we suppose, to incline the voters of the Pacific Slope to the hospitable consideration of Democratic principles and candidates. It is a high price to pay, for the cost and inconvenience of travel, the delay in the transmission of news from the convention and all the old, familiar considerations should have influenced their choice in favor of some city nearer the heart of the country. It is open to question whether the masses of the voters, Democratic or otherwise, will be deeply stirred by any of the addresses delivered at the Jackson Day banquet.

THE SUSPENDED SOCIALISTS.

Members of the New York Legislature must take and subscribe to this oath: "I do solemnly swear (or af-"firm) that I will support the Consti-"tution of the United States and the "Constitution of the State of New "York, and that I will faithfully dis-"charge the duties of the office of "——— according to the best of my "ability." Each house of the State Legislature is the judge of the "qualifications of its own members."

The Socialist members of the Assembly have been suspended in order that it may be determined by a hearing before the Judiciary Committee whether they have assumed obligations and given pledges that nullify their oath to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States and of the State of New York; whether they have given their adhesion and support to a party whose principles and purposes, if carried into execution, would destroy our Government and our Constitution; and whether, if the inquiry shows that these questions must be answered in the affirmative, these men are not disqualified for membership in the Assembly.

The rights of these Assemblymen, the rights of their constituents, have not been invaded. They have not been expelled from the Assembly; the inquiry before the Judiciary Committee is to learn whether they should be unseated or whether they may continue to act as members. They will have the fullest opportunity to be heard, to answer the charge against them, to clear themselves. The action taken in the Assembly is not, as some have represented it, an "outrage," it is an orderly and lawful procedure. Let us not forget that while constituents have a right to be represented at Albany, while qualified members have a right to sit, the right of the people of New York to have their laws made by the loyal supporters, not by the enemies, of their Government is beyond dispute.

These Assemblymen, it is charged, are members of the National Socialist Party. In the preamble to the resolutions adopted by that party at its convention at St. Louis in the month of April, 1917, the party declared its "unalterable opposition to the war "just declared by the Government of "the United States"; it called upon the "workers of all countries to re-"fuse to support their Governments "in their wars"; it declares that "in "all modern history there has been no "war more unjustifiable than this "war"; it urged upon all "con-"tinuous, active, and public opposition "to the war through demonstrations, "mass petitions, and other means "within our power," and "unyield-"ing opposition to all proposed legis-"lation for conscription." It further recommended "that the convention "instruct our elected representatives "in Congress, in the State Legis-"latures, and in local bodies to vote "against all proposed appropriations, "loans for military, naval, and all "other war purposes." Those instructions, it will be remembered, have in some cases been carried out by members of the party elected to municipal and State deliberative bodies.

At the convention of the National Socialist Party, held in Chicago last September, a platform was adopted containing this declaration of principles:

> We declare our solidarity with the workers of Russia in establishing their Soviet Republic and we indorse the Socialists of Germany, Austria, and Hungary in their struggle for freedom. We condemn the counter-revolution in Russia backed by the Czarists and the Entente nations.
> We condemn the League of Nations as the black internationale of capitalism. It is the conscious alliance of the capitalists of all nations against the workers of all nations. We declare that there will never be a lasting peace until the world is a confederation of free and equal Socialist nations.
> We urge the workers of the United States to do all in their power to restore and maintain our civil rights to the end that the transition from capitalism to socialism may be effected without resorting to the drastic measures made necessary by autocratic despotism. Long live international socialism.

Revolution by violence, as an alternative to political action, has been brought plainly into view. The Judiciary Committee must and will give these men a fair hearing. Their rights will be protected. Then the committee will determine whether men elected to the Assembly who are members of a party professing these principles, and who are pledged to act and vote under the instructions of the conventions and committees of that party, are qualified to make laws for the people of the State of New York.

MR. HINES AND THE RAILROADS.

As a doctor to sick railroads, reduced to an anaemic condition by Government management, Director General WALKER D. HINES is a specialist who seems to give everybody the blues, officers, investors, shippers, consumers. He diagnoses dolefully and prescribes without hope. The patients are not in extremis, and with the right kind of treatment they might soon be on their feet, enjoying fairly good health. It cannot be said that they were hale and hearty when the Government took charge of them, but under its treatment they have grown steadily worse, and now need a tonic which only Congress can supply. Mr. HINES in his address before the Bar Association of New York proposed a prescription which in some respects was not unlike Dr. PLUMB'S. That is to say, Mr. HINES approved of a plan to have the public and labor as well as capital manage the railroads. In the working out of this theory labor would become the real manager, as the politicians who controlled the public's representation would side with labor against capital, and the result would ultimately be Government ownership, which the people, with a sad experience of Government management, do not want. There can be little interest in the talk about rates high enough to insure a reasonable return and provide reserves for lean years if labor, the "public," and capital are to operate the railroads.

Mr. HINES declares that if his prescription is not taken the result will be "progressively disappointing," and in a few years the public will demand a "radically different plan" that probably will not "stop short of outright Government ownership." It is curious that he cannot see that his tripartite plan would precipitate Government ownership. Labor and its allies, the politicians, would see to that. The Director General says the public would have to pay an expensive price for private management after March 1, on account of increased rates and inadequate equipment. The public have paid dearly for Government management in poor and exasperating service, and they are willing to pay a just price for good service under private management. They believe that under Government ownership they would pay the highest price of all in taxation and have the worst of all services. As to adequate equipment, the railroads must have it. They have not been able to get money advances for it from Director General HINES, and equity requires that Congress shall include relief in its legislation.

There may be two opinions about Mr. HINES'S assertion that under Federal control the existing equipment has worn better and gone further than would have been the case under "the old form of private management." The fact, of course, is that the railroads have had to do their best with the equipment allowed them, but their officers have not been mute under the affliction. There cannot be two opinions, however, about the Director General's statement that deficits have not been due to "excessive costs." There might be something in this view if the heavy increases in wages granted by the Government were eliminated, but that cannot be done in any calculation of railroad conditions. The deficits he attributes, strangely enough, to the fact that "the prices charged for rail-"road transportation have not been "increased in keeping with the in-"crease in prices of commodities." That was the Government's responsibility, and it is singular that Mr. HINES should calculate that if the rates put into effect in June, 1918, had been declared six months earlier there would have been a surplus instead of a deficit for some of the railroads. He is always inclined to give the Government credit for the best intentions and to deplore conditions that embarrassed it. In the end he gives "unified control" a certificate of merit and finds nothing good in the prospect of private ownership. Under better economic conditions he feels that Government management would have been a financial success. It is a poor rule that won't work both ways.

DIPLOMATIC SALARIES.

During the century and more of our aloofness from European affairs, the meagre pay of our diplomatic service presented at best a pseudo-republican eccentricity. The doctrine of equality, by forbidding such salaries as other diplomats received, resulted in the flagrant paradox of a democracy which could be fitly represented only by citizens of great wealth. At the Court of Saint James's, to be sure, a series of more or less well-to-do men of letters or of the professions—CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, LOWELL, CHOATE, and JOHN HAY—made up in brilliancy of address what they lacked in worldly means, but no country could provide a ceaseless flow of such men. Ultimately we faced the alternative of Ambassadors who were chosen from the limited field of the very rich, or who were severely handicapped in their office by a lack of means. In a nation the foreign policy of which consisted mainly in renouncing responsibility for the affairs of Europe the situation occasioned ironic remonstrance and subacid satire; but today we stand on the threshold of a new era.

For better or for worse, we are a member of the great society of nations, and in fact a prime leader in it; its interests and ideals are related to our own. To choose an Ambassador for any other reason than absolute ability and fitness is to jeopardize our interests and the interests of all our neighbors. Training, also, is requisite. Diplomacy should be a profession to which a man may devote himself from early youth as assiduously as to law or medicine, confident that success will bring its greatest reward, namely, an opportunity for service unhampered by merely material needs. If democracy means anything, it means that every citizen shall develop to the full his peculiar talent and that the State shall find it available in time of need. To interpose a bar against aspiring ability is even more flagrantly unrepublican than to make great wealth essential to public service.

The salaries which Secretary LANSING proposes are $35,000 for Ambassadors and $15,000 for Ministers. That is little enough. Several of our Ambassadors to the Court of Saint James's have spent more than $50,000 a year, and some of them as much as $80,000. The British Ambassador to Washington receives £10,000, normally a little less than $50,000. It should not be necessary to insist that this sum, considerable though it is, is not conditioned upon a life of undue luxury. The standard of living in any modern capital is set by men of great wealth. The proposed salary for our Ambassadors is distinctly less than the normal income on a single million. It is the duty of our representatives abroad to move in the circles where history is in the making. If they are to do so easily and efficiently, they must be able, quite simply and naturally, to conform to its standards.

The present time, it is true, is not one in which any unnecessary expense should be countenanced. But it is also true that the present time is one of momentous issues and delicate adjustments. To hamper our diplomats in the discharge of their office is to jeopardize material and moral values of incalculable weight.

THE FRENCH AND AUSTRIA.

The French press is now calling on America to save Austria. "The European Allies," says the Temps, "cannot meet the Austrian situation "if the United States does not take "its part in the financial effort which "must be made." So far as the immediate need is concerned this is true; the food which will carry Austria through the Winter must, under present regulations, be sold for cash at a price which the depreciation of the Austrian crown makes impossible. Mr. HOOVER has asked for authorization of the extension of credit by the Government Grain Corporation, and to this extent it is the plain duty of America to save Austria.

But the Temps goes on to say that America should offer to Austria "not "expedients or alms, but well-organ-"ized effort." That is, something must be done which will get Austria back on her feet and enable her to become self-supporting. Mr. HOOVER has his own opinion on that. In his statement on the food situation in Europe given out a few days ago he said:

> Austria is the sorest point, and, while she should be fed this Winter, the Allies should be made to realise that any assistance from us is on the condition that she is free to make such political associations as will take her out of a perpetual poorhouse.

Political associations, not economic associations. The Austrians have lately made some efforts to reach an economic agreement with Czechoslovaks and Jugoslavs which would be to the eventual profit of those countries, and would help Austria back on her feet. That might be done successfully; if it is not done, the reason will be the continuing Slavic distrust of the Austrians, some of whom still hope to see a reconstituted Danubian federation which shall be a political as well as an economic group—in effect a restoration of the old grouping under the Hapsburgs. And the memory of Austria as she was until a year ago is too keen to make the Slavs willing to accept that.

Whatever the possibility of this, it is not what Mr. HOOVER meant. When he talks of leaving Austria free to make new political associations, he means that she ought to be allowed to join Germany, as she would probably do if left free. The French prevented this a year ago; they feared the accession of strength which 7,000,000 people would bring to Germany. But while Austria would increase German population considerably, and German resources to some degree, she would bring a very slight increment indeed to German capacity for a war of revenge. As a matter of fact, Austria might add considerable strength to the South German, Catholic, anti-Prussian, and decentralising elements which are likely to be strongly opposed to any new war of conquest. Austria standing alone is always likely to fall under the control of the Government at Berlin; it will take a constant diplomatic struggle to keep her out. Austria in the German federation might prove to be a stronger influence against an imperialistic German Government than she could be as an independent State. There are two or three ways of settling the Austrian problem; Mr. HOOVER'S way is only one of them, but it deserves consideration.

OUR FREEDOM IN DANGER.

Mr. WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, Mayor of "the sixth German city in the world," has written to every member of the Senate of the United States a letter of advice and admonition that will be greatly appreciated by those who appreciate it at all. To the Mayor of the sixth German city in the world the League of Nations is a "hellish "scheme to deprive us of our free-"dom." "Approval of the League covenant would, in my opinion," says this statesman, whose opinion is valued properly by every judicious appraiser of intellect and public service, "not only undermine the sovereignty "of the American people, but also in-"volve the United States in un-"American foreign entanglements, in "shameless violation of the wise for-"eign policy established by President "WASHINGTON."

Mr. THOMPSON is good enough to look upon the League of Nations as Mr. WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON looked upon the Constitution: it is a covenant with death and an agreement with hell. "The covenant of the League "of Nations, with reservations, is "equally as vicious and tyrannical as "it is without reservations." In short, there is no good in it. Mr. THOMPSON first expressed this grand and solemn thought early in September. He then appealed to the Illinois Senators and the Chicago Representatives. The League of Nations must be rejected. So must compulsory military training, another device of the destroyers of American sovereignty.

It must be a great happiness to Mr. BORAH and Mr. JOHNSON, to Mr. BRANDEGEE and Mr. MOSES, to Mr. LODGE and all the other battlers to the last ditch against the League of Nations again to find themselves sustained by the profound intellect, the fiery American patriotism, the heroic ardor of the Mayor of Chicago, regarded as the sixth German city of the world.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Mother Does the Fighting.

As GROVER CLEVELAND BERGDOLL does not deny that he is guilty of "draft-dodging," there is in commenting on his case none of the impropriety that commonly marks discussion of offenses charged and not yet proved. In this instance, apparently, all the allegations as of fact are undisputed and the coming trial can be hardly more than a formal statement of them.

The young man did dodge the draft, and for a long time he dodged his pursuers, but at last he has been caught, and the details of the catching are not such as to make him an object of much sympathy. His mother, now, while hardly to be called an admirable figure as she stood threatening with a pistol good policemen doing their duty, at least by her behavior illustrated a virtue, real though misapplied, while the son, hiding in the box of a window seat while his mother fought for him, was—not heroic.

He is quoted as saying that he would have served his country if he had been allowed to serve it as an aviator. That may be true, but one cannot help wondering how his country could know what service he wanted to render, when he remained so persistently far from its eager questioners.

Preparing a Gay Welcome.

American men who, while they could—before the war, that is—bought all their clothes in London will be deeply interested, now that the return of peace has made possible the resumption of old habits, to learn that the tailors of that large city are solemnly deciding among themselves just what garments they are going to give to this long and impatiently awaited fraction of their patrons. Curiously enough, in these consultations there seems to have been no questioning as to what American customers will want or like, the assumption being, apparently, that they will take what is offered, humbly and gladly, in perfect confidence that London tailors know the right and pursue it, and that from their decrees there is no appeal.

Perhaps this assumption is correct, but a few faint doubts of its accuracy are justified, for, according to what must be official reports, it has been agreed by these arbiters of masculine fashion that the men from overseas are to accept clothing of colors "gay, but not rude," and "rich shades of blends of purple and gold, and even checks of bold pattern, with bright streaks of color in them."

It is not made quite clear by the dispatches that Englishmen themselves are to be arrayed in stuffs thus closely related to the rainbow and the parrot, but, even if such should be the case, at least a few of the Americans may have their hesitations about dressing even remotely like the gay birds who helped CHARLES II. celebrate the ending of the Protector's sad reign. These are late days and days somewhat incongruous with a blossoming out in purple and gold, and there is at least a chance that the London tailors are going to have a painful surprise when they display their wares.

They Forget We Like High Prices.

Not only by laying in a stock of bright-colored cloth for American wear are the tailors of London making what may turn out to have been a grave mistake. It is announced that prices will be higher than they used to be. That is all right; an opposite announcement would have come with a shock of dangerous violence; but to hear that for a suit of evening clothes that formerly cost 16 guineas 25 guineas must now be paid is hardly less startling than would have been the proclamation of a reduction below the levels of before the war. Something under American prices is, of course, expected in the British capital, but 25 guineas, especially with American money at the present rate of exchange, make an amount so small, in comparison with what Fifth Avenue tailors are charging for the evening wear of men heedful of the conventions of society, that it will excite deep distrust.

He who has learned to pay $200 or $250 for a suit of dress clothes will look with suspicion on one he can get for little more than half as much.

Evidently the London tailors have not heard that we actually like to pay big prices. They should have done so, for enough people have said it recently. But possibly the tailors heard and did not believe. There has been, indeed, just a little skepticism on that point here, but so eminent are the authorities who accuse us all of the perverse preference for the most expensive things anybody is kind enough to sell us that those of us who would not disdain a bargain if we could find one preserve a cautious silence for fear of being charged with un-Americanism.

This Foe Must Be Fought.

Foes of daylight saving put themselves in action with the very first day of the new legislative session and presented a bill for the repeal of the State law by means of which New York cannot only continue for itself the beneficent reform that Congress tried to abolish, but can help willing States to do the same thing and bring a considerable pressure to bear on those that are afraid of an imagined farmer vote.

It is a statesman from Chautauqua County, Senator FOWLER, who is leading what it is not unfair to call the "dark forces," and his bill deserves and should receive immediate and serious attention from as many people as are unwilling to be deprived of the extra daylight hour that has come to be so highly valued by all of us except milkmen and market gardeners. At any rate, only the milkmen and the market gardeners have real reasons for disliking interference with the clocks, for they alone cannot avoid, if they will, all inconvenience from it by an easy readjustment of their worktime schedules.

The thing to do, obviously, is for the believers in daylight saving—the innumerable multitude who profit by it—to convince both branches of the Legislature that a repeal of the State law would be regarded as a wrong and an affront. This information can be conveyed to the Senators and Assemblymen by letter, while they are in Albany, and by word of mouth when they come home on week-end visits. Both means should be used, for the mysterious opponents of daylight saving will not be idle, and if they can they will convince the New York Legislature, as they did Congress, that the public's demand can be ignored with safety.

Mr. Macterlinck's English System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The term used in THE NEW YORK TIMES is wrong; a very important syllable must be added. Mr. Macterlinck's English was unphonetic. The distinguished Belgian has been the victim of some one with the old-fashioned idea that pronunciation can be taught without phonetics. No phonetician would have told him that he could master a difficult foreign sound system like English in the short space of six weeks, or with the absurd unphonetic French spelling of English words which he used.

OLD HOUSES.

The gray old houses are hooded women,
peering
From sloping, tousled bonnets of gar-
rets hung awry;
The gray old houses dream that they are hearing
Voices of their children in the years gone by!

With dim glazed eyes of windows, they are staring,
Thinking of a father when broken was his pride;
And while they brood, they wonder where are faring
The boys that kissed and the girls that cried. . . .

What old secrets here often pry and fumble?
What old ghosts hurry to and fro?—
Ghosts of Desires that poke about and mumble
Of hot-headed Youth that fretted long ago.

What Tales and what Romances are dozing and are dreaming
About the broken hearth, within the musty gloom?
What stories of loving and quarreling and scheming
Huddle with their memories to crowd
each room?

So, hushed, they stand, like hooded women peering—
These worn old houses that always dream and sigh;
And like old mothers, they brood and stare at hearing
Voices that vanished in the years gone by!

LOUIS GINSBERG.

SLAVERY, SAYS COOLIDGE.

That, Not Freedom, He Declares, Is What the Reds Want.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—The need of humanizing government and industry and maintaining obedience to the law was stressed by Governor Coolidge in his address to the Legislature today, inaugurating his second term. He urged "more effort, not less," in production and economy on the part of both State and individual.

Declaring that the State was "less in need of new laws than ever before," the Governor added:

"The greatest benefit you can confer is the speedy making of necessary appropriations, adjustment of some details and adjournment."

He said that taxes "must and do fall on the people, in whatever form or name they are laid," and that "high taxes make high prices."

"The duty that Government now owes to the people," he continued, "is to reduce their burdens by paying off the obligations that came from the war, rather than imposing additional burdens for the support of new projects."

Speaking of general conditions, Governor Coolidge said:

"Healthful housing, wholesome food, sanitary working conditions, reasonable hours, a fair wage for a fair day's work, opportunity full and free, justice speedy and impartial and at a cost within the reach of all, are among the objects not only to be sought but made absolutely certain and secure. Government is not, must not be, a cold, impersonal machine, but a human and more human agency, appealing to the reason, satisfying the heart, full of mercy, assisting the good, resisting the wrong, delivering the weak from any impositions of the strong.

"Some say our economic and wage systems are all wrong. They would apply some other principle. They are not wrong. They may have been used wrongfully. It is the conception of them and their purpose that is wrong.

"We are suffering from shortage of all kinds of materials. The only remedy is to put more effort, not less, into production. Shortage is met only by saving and production.

"We need to change our standards, not of property but of thought. If we put all the emphasis on our material prosperity, that prosperity will perish, and with it will perish our civilization. Employer and employed must find their satisfaction not in a money return, but in a service rendered. Industry must be humanized, not destroyed.

"There are evil voices urging resistance to law in the name of freedom. They are not seeking freedom even for themselves—they have it; they are seeking to enslave others. Their works are evil. They know it. They must be resisted. The evil they represent must be overcome by the good others represent. These ideas, which are wrong for the most part imported, must be supplanted by ideas which are right. This can be done. The meaning of America is a power which cannot be overcome. Prosecution of the criminal and education of the ignorant are the remedies.

"It is fundamental that freedom is not to be secured by disobedience to law. Government must govern. To obey is life. To disobey is death. Organized government is the expression of the life of the commonwealth. Into your hands is intrusted the grave responsibility of its protection and perpetuation."

UNION LEAGUE CLUB EXHIBIT

Group of Paintings by J. Alden Weir the Chief Feature.

This month's exhibition at the Union League Club is the last to be organized with Mr. Watrous as Chairman of the Art Committee, and has been assembled with unusual care. The most interesting feature is a group of paintings by J. Alden Weir, in which the artist's sensitive personal feeling and exquisite delicacy and freshness of vision are shown from his early period to the latest, in examples that worthily represent the rare quality of his art. The landscape called "Three Trees" is not only a beautiful composition, but has a reticent subtlety of color extraordinary even for Weir. The green landscape at the other end of the wall is still more remarkable for its management of color and the depth and mystery of the foliage. Gainsborough had been a modern painter he might possibly have got something like this effect from the greens of trees in full leaf, but it is doubtful if even he could have transferred to his canvas such poetry of thought as this picture reveals. The still early still-life with roses—the spiritual essence of the flowers—eloquently protests against the assumption that Weir was not a great technician. It was painted a long time ago and its physical condition is admirable.

With the group of paintings by Weir are a couple by Twachtman, one of the few American masters who can be hung beside him without fear or reproach. Both are Winter pictures, the one ethereal and blond, the other sturdy and with less color. A very unusual Blakelock, "The Indian Ocean," in which we get the artist's method without his silhouetted forms, is an interesting accent in the exhibition, and another is the "Moon Lake" by Mr. Watrous, in which he does the thing that Blakelock so often did, in a manner like Blakelock's but by his own method, and does it beautifully.

Two heads by Abbott Thayer, a red house by Carl Melchers, a handsome landscape by J. Francis Murphy, and pictures by George Bogert, L. Irving Couse, Kenyon Cox, Walter McEwen, H. Siddons Mowbray, and Walter L. Palmer, complete the exhibition. Among the collectors who have lent to it are Charles Lanaing Baldwin and Mrs. Spencer Trask. It may be seen by visitor's card today and tomorrow.

HEAVY POSTAL ESTIMATES.

Nearly Half a Billion Dollars is Estimate for Next Fiscal Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The largest Post Office Appropriation bill on record, aggregating $461,728,368 for the next fiscal year, was reported to the House today by the Post Office Committee. Increases in expenses and in volume of business necessitating additional personnel, were given as the reasons for an increase of $25,000,000 over the present fiscal year's appropriation.

Provision is made for increased pay to all postal employes under an act recently passed by the House which would, when effective, require an outlay of $76,783,900 for the first year.

HEAVY FLOODS IN ITALY.

The Arno and Tiber Inundate Many Towns.

ROME, Jan. 8.—Heavy rains are causing floods throughout most of Italy. The Arno and Tiber Rivers are overflowing their banks and inundating many sections. In several districts houses have collapsed, but so far there have been no deaths officially reported. Among the towns flooded are Bale, Caprona, Pevriola, and Peretolo, which are isolated. The lower part of the City of Pisa is inundated, and it is feared lives have been lost at Catales.

PAYNE GIFT TO VIRGINIA.

Shipping Board Chairman Presents 40 Paintings Worth a Million.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 8.—A gift to the State of forty paintings valued at more than $1,000,000 by John Barton Payne, Chairman of the Shipping Board, was announced here today. Mr. Payne is a native of Virginia. The paintings are the works of French and Italian masters.

MAETERLINCK ENDS LECTURE CONTRACT

Poet's Lawyers Issue Statement That It Was James B. Pond Who Broke Agreement.

BALKED AT NEW TERMS

Manager Says He Was Willing to Forego Delivery in English—Blames Henry Russell.

Stanchfield & Levy, counsel to Maurice Maeterlinck, announced yesterday that they had advised the Belgian poet that his contract with the Pond Lyceum Bureau had been broken by James B. Pond, head of the bureau, and that the poet's lecture tour was thereby canceled.

The statement issued by the lawyers followed differences that have existed between Mr. Pond and Henry Russell, friend of Mr. Maeterlinck, since the arrival of the poet. Mr. Pond maintained that his relations with the poet had been most harmonious. He denied emphatically that he broke his contract and promised to take the necessary legal steps to protect his interests. The statement issued by Stanchfield & Levy said:

"After most patient and persistent attempts to adjust the differences between Mr. Maeterlinck and his manager, we are reluctantly compelled to admit that the task has proved impossible. We have no desire to air the grievances nor to disturb the public by reason of them, but we deeply regret that such unpleasant circumstances, not of Mr. Maeterlinck's making, should have arisen to mar the great happiness which he has enjoyed in his visit here and to interfere in his relations with the American public, for whom he has such a high regard.

"Mr. Maeterlinck wishes, indeed, that it were possible for him to keep every single engagement to meet and speak with the American people. Unfortunately his manager has made that impossible, and it would now appear that he may be deprived of that privilege. He hopes, however, that the American public will bear with him and will believe that he is still very anxious to find a way to give them his message.

"We have advised him that his contract has been deliberately broken and that his rights have been flagrantly violated. At the proper time and place we shall be ready to justify that advice."

When Mr. Maeterlinck failed to carry out his intention to speak in English last Friday night at Carnegie Hall because of his labored "phonetic" English he decided that he would continue his lectures in French and have the English translation read by another person. He followed this method on Wednesday night.

At a conference held with Mr. Levy of counsel to Maeterlinck on Tuesday Mr. Pond expressed willingness to talk over possible changes in the contract which would enable the poet to continue his tour and speak in French, but he balked at including in the new contract a letter sent to him by the lawyers which he said would mean that the tour would be under his direction in name only.

Among the terms demanded were that Maeterlinck should pass on every bit of publicity issued, that the names of all reception committee members in every town should be submitted to him for approval and other terms which Mr. Pond felt would divest him of all his rights in the contract.

The conference was to have been continued yesterday, but when Mr. Pond appeared and announced that he would not agree to write the letter into the new agreement he was informed, he said by Mr. Levy, "That ends the fight right now." He said the lawyer promised to permit the poet to lecture last night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music because it was too late to make an announcement concerning the new status of Mr. Maeterlinck's affairs. The poet is scheduled to speak before the Unity Forum at Metropolitan Opera House tonight.

According to Mr. Pond the new contract said that virtually nothing could be done unless approved by Maeterlinck or some one appointed by him. His efforts to speak privately with Mr. Maeterlinck have been frustrated by Mr. Russell, Mr. Pond asserted, and all obstacles have been placed in his way to come to an understanding with the man he brought here after five years' effort.

The Brooklyn Academy of Music was sold out for the Maeterlinck lecture last night shortly after the poet was advertised to speak in English, but a half-filled house greeted him when he stepped upon the platform. About 1,200 ticket holders received their money back when they learned that Maeterlinck was to speak in French.

VINCENT ON HEALTH WORK.

Rockefeller Foundation Head Tells Efforts in South and Mexico.

Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, delivered an address on health efforts in the South, yesterday at a luncheon held under the auspices of the Rotary Club at the Hotel McAlpin. He described what was being done to combat yellow fever and malaria in the South where the United States Public Health Service and local health boards are co-operating with the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation.

He said that Dr. Noguchi, a Japanese physician working with the Foundation, is now conducting the work in Merida, Yucatan, and that the Mexican Government is co-operating with him. Dr. Vincent stated that the Foundation was carrying on health demonstrations in seventy-five cities in Southern states.

CHINESE RUG BRINGS $2,100.

The Top Price at Sale of Hunter Collection—Total Now $16,348.

More snuff bottles, with jars and vases of lapis lazuli, rock crystal and coral made up the second day's sale of the late Frederick William Hunter collection at the American Art Galleries yesterday, with a couple of Chinese rugs, the biggest of which brought the top price of the day, going to Costikyan & Co. for $2,100. A smaller Chinese rug went to the same buyers for $350. The big rug was 12 feet 2 by 11 feet 2, eighteenth century, the design in sapphire and turquoise blue, white and seal brown on a tawny ground.

A lapis lazuli rouge box, the cover carved with a design of bats, emblem of happiness, went to Fred Pope for $120. A lapis lazuli carving, cut in the form of a mountain shrine, encircling a Buddhist deity resting upon a lotus throne, with pine trees and fungus carved on the reverse of the shrine, went to William J. Kaln for $400. A carved cinnabar lacquer cake box nine inches in diameter, with cover, went to Bernet, agent, for $155.

Mrs. Fulton Cutting, Roland N. Moore, Ward Douglas and Timothy F. Crowley were among the buyers. Returns for the afternoon were $6,585, making a grand total of $16,345. Blue and white porcelains will be sold today.

Free Art Museum Concerts to Begin.

There will be given at the Metropolitan Museum of Art tomorrow evening the first of its big free concerts for the season. It is the beginning of a Winter series of four concerts presented through the generosity of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. They will be, as heretofore, by a large orchestra under the direction of David Mannes. The remaining concerts will be given on the succeeding Saturdays of the month. A second series will be given the four Saturday evenings in March through the courtesy of another donor whose name is not mentioned. More than 40,000 people attended the Museum concerts of last year.

MAUD POWELL, THE VIOLINIST, IS DEAD

DISPLAYED GIFT AS CHILD

Won Her First American Triumph In 1885 After Study Under European Masters.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8.—Maud Powell, the violinist, died in a hotel here today. She suffered a nervous breakdown yesterday and became so ill that her concert last night was canceled. On Thanksgiving night she collapsed on the stage during her concert in St. Louis. For twenty-four hours she was said to be dangerously ill, but she recovered and continued her tour. The illness was reported as acute gastritis at that time.

Maud Powell was regarded by both American and European critics as the foremost woman violinist in the world, and she is entitled to rank as one of the greatest musicians ever produced in the United States. When she first appeared in public as a young girl in the 80s she had some of the reputation of a youthful prodigy, but she proved the estimate of the great Joachim by continuous advance to the highest realms of her art.

She was born in Peru, Ill., on Aug. 22, 1868, the daughter of William Bramwell and Minnie Paul Powell. Many years afterwards, when asked the question:

"Is it true, Miss Powell, that you have Hungarian blood?" she made the reply:

"It is. Through my mother I have inherited real gypsy blood. I am sure. My mother was a German, but she must have had Hungarian ancestors. I remember her once saying, when she heard a band of strolling players, 'I could follow them.' She meant it. She was a gypsy, and so am I. I always think of that remark to her when I play the final movement of the Wieniawski concerto."

As a child her natural gift for the violin was so marked that her parents sent her at the age of 9 to Chicago, where she received instruction from William Lewis for four years. Lewis then advised that her training should be continued at Leipzig. There she entered the class of Professor Schradieck, and her progress was so rapid that at the end of a year she was given her diploma.

To broaden her musical education by a knowledge of other methods she went to Paris and passed first on the list of eighty applicants in the contest for places in the Conservatoire. In Paris her teacher, Dancla, provided valuable additions to her artistic equipment, giving her particularly a more assured false bow performance.

It was in London the following year that Joachim heard her play. She was appearing in concerts in various parts of England, and was hailed as a sort of infant phenomenon. But Joachim at once greeted her as an artist, not merely a prodigy, and invited her to Berlin and to receive special instruction from him. She seized this chance to thus complete her education under the master, and the ensuing year she spent in Berlin, making what may be considered her début there in 1885.

On her return to America her New York début with the Philharmonic Orchestra followed the same year. From that time until her death her position in the musical world was assured. Soon Thomas at once engaged her for a series of concerts in all the large Eastern cities, and her success was instantaneous.

Her life since then had been one of constant industrious devotion to her art. She appeared as a soloist in the orchestras of nearly every great conductor of the period, including Seidl, Gericke, Nikisch, and Damrosch, toured Germany and Austria with the Arion Society in 1902, organized the Maud Powell String Quartet in 1904, toured the British Isles and the Continent in 1900 and 1901, South Africa during three following years, and every season thereafter made a tour of this country.

AUSTRIAN EX-PREMIER LAMMASCH DEAD

World Authority on International Law Was Member of the Peace Conference.

BERNE, Wednesday, Jan. 7.—Professor Heinrich Lammasch, former Premier of Austria, who was a member of The Hague Tribunal and of the Peace Conference at St. Germain representing Austria, died at Salsburg, Austria, today. Professor Lammasch was a world authority on international law. He was 67 years old.

Heinrich Lammasch was Professor in the University of Vienna. He was appointed Austro-Hungarian delegate to the second Hague Peace Conference in 1907 and was chosen Vice President on the committee of the Geneva convention. He served as third arbitrator in the United States-Venezuela dispute regarding the Orinoco claim. He presided at the discussion of the Newfoundland fisheries dispute in 1910.

Professor Lammasch was identified with the "Peace Offensive" movement launched at Munich in August, 1918, and in October of the same year was appointed Premier, succeeding Hussarek. It was reported in February, 1919, that Professor Lammasch had been designated by the German Government as Minister to the United States, provided German Austria became united with Germany, but later he announced his opposition to the annexation of German Austria to Germany.

William Henry Gledhill.

William Henry Gledhill, Vice President of the Board of Aldermen in 1898 and for the last fifteen years a clerk of the Supreme Court of Manhattan, died Wednesday night of pneumonia at his home in Flushing. In 1896 and 1897 he was the Democratic representative in the Assembly of the Eleventh District.

Obituary Notes.

GEORGE WHITELOCK, Secretary of the American Bar Association in 1906 and President of the Maryland State Bar Association in 1903, died yesterday in Baltimore, aged 66 years. He was the senior member of the firm of Whitelock, Deming & Kemp and had practiced there since 1876.

Consolation in Beauty
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

Sevres, a town in Northern France, owes its celebrity to the porcelain factory established there in 1756.

The forms of the Sevres porcelains are exceedingly varied.

Owing to the want of plasticity in the paste, pieces were made in molds of plaster of paris and these united together with metal screws or mounted in bands with chaste ormolu. The decorative pieces, such as vases, candelabra, jardinieres, etc., were made in a sumptous fashion by covering the greater part of the piece with a ground of rich enamel colors, reserving only panels in white on which delicate miniature-like decorations of the most varied kind were subsequently printed and fired.

The introduction of hard paste porcelain rendered the manufacture of large vases and other pieces possible; and after 1780 we find the manufactory at Sevres engaged in the production of enormous vases five and six feet in height, a manufacture which has been continued there to this day.

It is doubtful whether even the prices paid for paintings by old masters have advanced so rapidly as those paid for the Sevres porcelain of the best period.

It might interest you to know that a beautiful specimen of Sevres porcelain has been purchased by Mr. Frank E. Campbell for The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th street. You are invited to call and see it, together with the many objects of art which make The Funeral Church and the Campbell Building the most beaut

AUGUST HERRMANN RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF THE NATIONAL BASEBALL COMMISSION

HERRMANN RESIGNS HIS CHAIRMANSHIP

Head of Baseball's Supreme Court Wants Action Taken as Soon as Possible.

SURPRISES HIS ASSOCIATES

Annual Report to Johnson and Heydler Had Led Them to Expect He Would Defer Decision.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—August Herrmann, for more than sixteen years Chairman of the National Baseball Commission, has resigned. His resignation, which was presented at the annual meeting of the commission here today, is to take effect at the earliest possible date, not later than the joint meeting of the National and American Leagues, called for Feb. 11 in Chicago.

The announcement of Herrmann's action was made in a written communication to B. B. Johnson, President of the American League, and John A. Heydler, President of the National League, who, with Herrmann, compose the commission. Herrmann in his statement said he could not serve as head of the body after the joint meeting of the two major leagues.

Nothing was given out at the close of the executive meeting to indicate what prompted Herrmann to tender his resignation at this time. It had been reported that Heydler had been instructed by National League club owners not to vote for the re-election of Herrmann, but Johnson was known to be friendly to him and to desire that he continue at the head of the commission.

The commission issued the following statement, submitted by Herrmann:

Messrs. B. B. Johnson and John A. Heydler, Members National Commission.

Gentlemen—Supplemental to my annual report submitted this morning, which has been approved, I desire now to notify you that I tender my resignation as Chairman of the National Commission, the same to take effect at as early a period as possible, but with the distinct understanding that I cannot serve you any longer, after the joint meeting of the National and American Leagues, which it has been agreed to this morning should be held in Chicago on Feb. 11.

Respectfully,
AUGUST HERRMANN,
Chairman.

Secretary-Treasurer John E. Bruce of Cincinnati stated that if Herrmann's resignation was accepted he also would resign.

Surprise to His Associates.

The action by Herrmann undoubtedly came as a big surprise to his associates on the commission, and certainly to baseball authorities who were attracted to Cincinnati by the meeting. This was because in his annual report submitted earlier in the day, and which was approved by the other members, Herrmann strongly advised against making any change or reorganization of the commission at this time. He based this view upon the fact that the club owners were not agreed on what should be done, and because a United States Court decision in the Baltimore Federal League club suit had held the commission illegal.

Outside of minor cases the commission confined itself to a discussion of alleged baseball gambling. In this connection it was said that these charges would be followed up in a thorough manner and threshed out to the satisfaction of the baseball public.

Presidents Heydler and Johnson of the National and American Leagues have called for the joint meeting of the two leagues to be held in Chicago on Feb. 11. The leagues will hold separate meetings in Chicago on Feb. 10.

Herrmann in his annual report, which he read at the meeting, referred to the fact that a year ago he advised deferring election of a Chairman until the club owners were agreed on the question of a one-man commission or a three-member board, as at present. Herrmann said:

Advocates Deferred Election.

"Understanding that no definite conclusions with respect to this matter have been reached either by the two leagues or the committees representing them, it must be apparent that there should not be any election of officers at this time. In making this statement, I want it understood that it is not done with a view on my part to holding on to the office; on the contrary, I believe that the question in controversy should be taken up by the committees already appointed for this purpose, the two leagues as well as yourselves, for adjustment at the earliest possible period; and, having in mind that there will probably be a joint conference between the members of the two major leagues within a very few weeks, that the matter should be definitely determined either previous thereto or at that time.

"In the National League one club owner at least is again advocating the appointment of a one-man commission, notwithstanding that a proposition of this kind was decisively defeated by the two major leagues at their joint conference last January. The question of compensation and tenure of office in the appointment of a new Chairman must also be given proper consideration. None of these matters, however, should cause any prolonged delay. All of them, in my judgment, could be settled at one meeting of all of the interested parties, which, as I have already stated, should be had at as early a date as possible.

"In the meantime, if my colleagues are of the opinion that the commission should operate temporarily without a Chairman, I will be glad to tender my resignation immediately."

Herrmann in his report advised that no action be taken at this time toward entering into a new agreement with the minor leagues.

The championship season in the American League will open on Wednesday, April 14, the date already chosen by the National League. The old schedule of 154 games will be played in each league, the season closing on Sunday, Oct. 3.

This was announced by President Johnson before he, with President Heydler, left Cincinnati tonight for Chicago. On Saturday the two officials will leave for Louisiana, where they will combine the duties of schedule-making with the pleasure of bear hunting.

STARS SPEAK AT C. C. N. Y.

Edwards, Thorp and Moore Laud Campaign for Football Fund.

Enthusiasm for football at the College of the City of New York reached its zenith yesterday at the mass meeting of undergraduates held in the Great Hall at which "Big Bill" Edwards, Princeton's football hero of '99; Billy Moore, another Princetonian, and Tom Thorp, former Columbia star, spoke in behalf of the campaign to raise $50,000 for a permanent football fund. All the speakers were roundly cheered and every reference to football was wildly applauded. The week's drive among the undergraduates for $2,000 ends today, and the Executive Committee feels certain that the comparatively small quota will be oversubscribed overwhelmingly.

Tom Thorp said that Columbia was willing to help City College in any way it could. The Blue and White football schedule, he said, would always be open for a game with the Lavender team. Thorp declared that if a college could produce as good a basket ball team as C. C. N. Y., there was no reason why it could not produce an equally good football team.

Certificates of student council distinction, the highest student awards, were presented by President Sidney E. Mezes to Francis E. Faragoh, Robert Sugarman, Arthur Taft, Sidney Goodfriend and Sidney Bloom. As a mark of the students' particular esteem, the insignia was also awarded to Prof. Charles A. Downer.

TO BOOST YANKS' VISIT.

Jacksonville Will Advertise Spring Trip Like Circus.

The Yankees, with Babe Ruth as the headline attraction, are going to be billed through Florida like a circus. The Jacksonville Tourist and Convention Bureau has taken the Spring visit of the Yankees and Dodgers in hand and will launch an extensive advertising campaign to bring visitors to the city during the time that the two ball clubs are training there.

The bureau is going to put the Yankees' training camp, at West Side Park, and the Dodgers' camp, Sally League Park, in fine shape for the visitors, and a series of seven games between the clubs has already been arranged. The Rotary Club of Jacksonville is also taking a hand in the campaign to boost the visit of the ball clubs, and Jacksonville will enjoy several holidays during the training season.

On the joint tour north the Yankees and Dodgers will play five games, and after they arrive in New York will play three games at Ebbets Field just before the opening of the championship season.

Babe Ruth of the Yankees and Buck Weaver of the White Sox had a golf driving contest on a links near San Francisco recently, and Weaver, after outdriving the home-run slugger, says that he has a more dangerous swing than the world's champion clouter.

One of Ruth's drives sailed 340 yards, and then Weaver came up to the tee and sent the little ball 370 yards. Both drives were astonishing, if true.

Pat Moran, manager of the world's champion Cincinnati Reds, says he isn't afraid of the Giants next season, and remarks that the only club which has him worrying is the St. Louis outfit. "If we have a surprise party anywhere next summer," says Pat, "I think it will be from the Cardinals. If that crowd ever wakes up, it will make a lot of trouble. I can pretty near tell, in advance, what the Giants and Cubs are likely to do. I can judge about what style of ball Pittsburgh and Boston will put up and it's never much of a job to guess the Philadelphia or Brooklyn game. But if that St. Louis gang is ever headed the right way, it will upset a lot of dope and ruin the form players."

Jim Thorpe, formerly of the Giants, has balked at his latest berth in Akron, O., where he was sent by the Boston Braves. Thorpe doesn't think he is bad enough for the minors just yet. He is trying to catch on with the Cincinnati Reds with whom he played for a time under Manager Christy Mathewson, and will try to get a job as pinch hitter.

The latest Heinie Zimmerman rumor is that the Giants' third baseman will not consent to be traded by Manager McGraw but will play with the semi-professional team at Franklin, Pa., which is trying to round up a number of disgruntled major league players.

Benny Kauff was a visitor at the Giants' offices yesterday and says he will be glad when the call comes to start for San Antonio. Benny was somewhat disappointed with his showing last Summer and is confident that he will hit much harder during the coming season. Kauff says that if he doesn't hit harder than he did last season he will retire from the game.

ROBINS SELL TWO PLAYERS.

Hickman and Malone Released to Toledo of American Association.

The Brooklyn Baseball Club has released Outfielder Jimmy Hickman and Infielder Lewis Malone to Roger Bresnahan's Toledo club of the American Association, according to announcement made yesterday by Charles H. Ebbets, President of the club.

Hickman has been with the Dodgers several seasons and was used largely for utility purposes, his batting not being heavy enough to obtain a regular berth for him. Malone joined the Robins last Spring. He was obtained from the St. Paul club of the American Association, and played third base early in the year. He fielded cleverly, but did not perform up to big league standards with his bat, and, when Chuck Ward joined the team, after being released from the army, Malone was retired to the bench.

WIDENER SUCCEEDS MILLER

Is Made Member of Board of Stewards at Jockey Club Meeting.

At the annual meetings of the Jockey Club and the Stewards of the Jockey Club held at their offices yesterday, Joseph E. Widener, the Philadelphia sportsman and owner of many fine thoroughbreds, was elected a member of the Board of Stewards to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Andrew Miller. Subsequently, Mr. Widener was named on the license committee to act with F. R. Hitchcock and H. K. Knapp.

The meeting of the Jockey Club was attended by August Belmont, Col. Edward B. Cassatt, John E. Cowdin, H. Ambrose Clark, Robert L. Gerry, F. D. Griswold, S. S. Howland, H. K. Knapp, A. H. Morris, H. T. Oxnard, John Sanford, F. K. Sturgis, George D. Widener, Joseph E. Widener, R. T. Wilson, Jr., and William Woodward, Jr. Resolutions were adopted on the deaths of Andrew Miller, for years a member of the Jockey Club, and Ralph J. Preston, also a member of the club. August Belmont, F. K. Sturgis, John Sanford and R. T. Wilson, Jr., were re-elected stewards of the Jockey Club. Mr. Belmont later being re-elected Chairman of that body.

Acting on the report of the Stewards for the Autumn meeting at Empire City, Lawrence Fay was ruled off the turf and the license of Trainer G. H. Morton was revoked. Lawrence Fay, a chauffeur, won the ownership of a horse called Scotch Verdict which scored a ridiculously easy victory over a fairly good field at Empire City, winning by nearly a city block. That was the first and last time that Scotch Verdict ran under the colors of Fay, but on that occasion he paid 15 to 1 to those who had backed him, the supporters being mostly friends of the owner. It was said after the race, when the further entries of the horse were refused, that Scotch Verdict had been "overstimulated." An amendment to the rules was offered which would prohibit trainers starting horses with toe calks on the plates, but no action was taken on it.

HOPPER TO CAPTAIN PENN.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—Robert (Bud) Hopper, an end on the University of Pennsylvania football team for the past two seasons, today was chosen team leader for next season by the twenty-five wearers of the red and blue who won their letters this year.

Simultaneously the players, by petition, unanimously approved the re-engagement of Coach Robert C. Folwell. Hopper himself spoke fervently in praise of Coach Folwell. In view of Hopper's stand in the matter, along with that of his teammates, the selection of any other than Folwell for coach of next year's Penn eleven would be without precedent.

COLGATE BEATS BUCKNELL.

Hamiltonians Win Decisive Basket Ball Victory, 56 to 32.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 8—Colgate continued her successes on the basketball floor tonight by a victory over Bucknell by a score of 56 to 32. Neither team could get the advantage until the middle of the second half, when Colgate opened up overwhelming offensive tactics. Bucknell was unable to score in the face of Colgate's rally.

Giants Sign College Shortstop.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—It was announced here tonight that "Al" J. White of Framingham, former shortstop on the Catholic University nine, had signed a contract with the New York National League Baseball Club.

MADGE F. CAPTURES THIRD RACE IN ROW

Fleet Filly Scores Easy Victory in Joan of Arc Handicap at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 8.—The Ogden Stable's Madge F., which seems now to have reached the top of her form after having been a disappointment in a number of her races during the Kentucky season, found the muddy track to her liking here today and scored her third successive victory. This fleet daughter of Voorhees fairly ran off with the Joan of Arc Handicap, at a mile, for fillies and mares, winning by three lengths from Mistress Polly, which saved the place by the same margin from Big Idea.

It was a popular victory for a good-sized crowd that braved the inclement weather to attend the sport. Madge F. was heavily supported and went to the post an 11 to 10 favorite in the field of five starters, and there was some cheering for her when she galloped over the finish line an easy winner. This largely saved the day for the players, who have found form somewhat upset since the track became muddy. With this victory the favorites managed to share honors fairly well with the outsiders.

Jockey Robinson rushed Madge F. to the front right after the start and, going around the first turn, began to move away from the others. The pacemaker seemed to be at home in the going, while some of the others, notably Ballet Dancer 2d could do little in the mud. Madge F. stepped away to a four-length lead in the back stretch. Big Idea tried to follow the pace but gave it up on entering the stretch and dropped back so quickly that Mistress Polly was able to come up and take the place after being very badly outrun in the early stages of the race. Robinson eased up on the winner in the last sixteenth and won as he pleased. Tailor Maid, which ran one good race at Jefferson Park, did not run to form today and appeared to suffer from a weak ride by Jockey Stack. She was in third position for a considerable part of the race but began to drop back at the far turn and trailed in a very bad fourth with only Ballet Dancer 2d to take her mud.

Cobalt Lass Shows Form.

Another good mud runner developed in Cobalt Lass, which was making her first start here and which scored very easily over the six-furlong route from Discussion, Jago and Bon Tromp, leading to the wire with five lengths to spare. Cobalt Lass had improved considerably since she was last seen in action at Bowie but went to the post at 4 to 1 while Discussion was made the choice at 11 to 10.

Jago set the early pace and was two lengths in front on reaching the turn, but there he began to tire and Cobalt Lass moved up with a rush, caught the leader and drew away with the decision. Discussion was hard ridden all the way and was in a contending position from the start but was not good enough when it came to the finish. Robinson rode him hard in the stretch and saved second by three lengths.

There was a surprise in the three-year-old event at five and a half furlongs which was second on the card, when Anticipate ran away from a bunch of good sprinters to take the race by two lengths. The winner paid 6 to 1, while Luke's Pet, which had been made the choice at 7 to 5, failed to get in the money. Who Cares was second a neck in front of Phantom Fair, while the latter beat the favorite by four lengths for third position. Anticipate was rushed to the front as the barrier went up and was soon clear of his field. Who Cares was knocked back right after the start but was not so badly interfered with that it seriously hurt her chances. She was soon clear but, after making up some ground, failed to show her usual speed and made a rather indifferent finish. Phantom Fair was always close up but was hard pressed by Phantom Fair in the final sixteenth and had to be hustled to hold second.

Thursday Nighter Scores.

The day started with the victory of a favorite over the mile and a sixteenth route when Thursday Nighter won a very close decision over Pulaski after being a 3 to 2 choice. The winner moved into a long lead right after the start and drew away so rapidly that he seemed to have the race all to himself when in the back stretch. He was five lengths in front at one time, but turning into the stretch he began to tire and Pulaski moved up with a rush. It appeared for a second as though Thursday Nighter was beaten coming through the stretch but he held on gamely, and under a punishing drive by Coltiletti, he managed to get his nose over just in time to nod first at the judges. Pulaski took the place by five lengths from Medusa.

The summaries:

HUNTS ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Four Directors Are Elected to Serve Three-Year Term.

The United Hunts and Racing Association held its annual meeting at the offices of the association yesterday and elected four Directors to serve for three years. The men selected were W. R. Coe, F. S. Von Stade, Frank J. Bryan and Henry W. Sage. Only routine business was taken up.

A meeting of the new Board of Directors will be held early next week, to elect officers and discuss plans for the future.

Risberg Retires from Baseball.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Charles "Swede" Risberg, shortstop of the Chicago American League Baseball Club, announced today that he had retired from baseball and would open a restaurant here. He expressed dissatisfaction with major league salaries.

LONG SHOT WINS SPRINT.

Prince Direct Pays 12 to 1 to Backers at Havana.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 8.—H. C. Smith's Prince Direct proved a big surprise when he got up in the last stride to win the second event at the Oriental Park track today. He was the longest price winner of the afternoon, paying 12 to 1 in the books while in the mutuels he paid $41.40 for a $2 ticket. His victory was somewhat of form reversal as in his previous races he was beaten off.

Prince Direct ran a splendid race today. Being off none too well he had to overcome some early interference, but gradually wore down the leader and won. Assumption was second, a length and a half in front of Mike Dixon.

YALE CLUB VICTOR BY NARROW MARGIN

Defeats Crescent Squash Team by 3 to 2—Harvard Grads Blank Princeton, 5 to 0.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.
Metropolitan League—Class B.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.
Yale	5	5	0	1.000
Harvard	5	3	2	.600
Crescent	5	2	3	.400
Columbia	4	1	3	.250
Princeton	5	1	4	.200

The Yale Club squash tennis players kept their place at the top of Class B in the Metropolitan League yesterday afternoon by defeating the representatives of the Crescent Athletic Club by three matches to two, while Harvard took a firm hold on second place with a clean sweep of 5 to 0 over the Princeton Tigers. The latter dropped to the bottom of the heap by reason of this overwhelming defeat, Columbia staying one rung ahead by virtue of inactivity. The wearers of the Half Moon are now a clear third.

Yale's victory was by the narrowest of margins, and was almost spoiled altogether by the failure of her players to report. J. A. Victor never appeared at all, and his match finally had to be defaulted to A. W. Baxter, Jr. Stuyvesant Wainwright was also expected, but when he had not reported by nearly 6 o'clock J. C. Tomlinson took his place, although very much out of condition.

Under the circumstances, Harold Rowe, a newcomer to the Crescent team, succeeded in defeating the Yale man in straight games, a commendable feat at any time. Tomlinson put up what resistance he could, almost running the opening game into extra points before losing, 15—13, but his rival was too active and energetic to be stopped.

It was up to H. R. Stern to capture the odd match, after dropping his first game against C. W. Dingey, and he made his uphill fight by scores of 6—15, 15—5, 15—9. C. J. MacGuire also had difficulty in disposing of N. F. Torrance, the second game going into extra points before the Blue representative could claim an 18—16 victory.

William Adams, Jr., was a winner in straight games over C. W. Dangler, although the second went to extra points. Altogether it was a decidedly close shave for the league leaders.

In the Harvard-Princeton match Hewitt Morgan, former Massachusetts State champion, made a fine impression in his first appearance in local competition and showed actual Class A calibre in defeating Lloyd Richards, 15—4, 15—11. The Harvard man is a skillful forecourt player, judging distance and angles admirably and quick to outguess an opponent. He can hit hard when the opportunity presents itself, and in general seems to possess a thorough knowledge of squash tactics.

In yesterday's match Morgan ran through the opening game in the easiest fashion, and after leading at 13—2 in the second took things carelessly for a while, with Richards meanwhile staging an effective pull-up. As soon as the Princetonian began to look dangerous, however, Morgan put on the clamps and scored his two winning points without trouble.

A. H. Tomes had an even easier time with J. Cromwell, whose inexperience handicapped him throughout the match. The Crimson representative was in top form and cleaned up in short order at 15—4, 15—8.

G. N. Richard, playing at the top of the Harvard list, found Jesse Hoyt something of a problem in their opening game, eventually winning by superior placement at 18—11. Fun ones in the stride, he completed his victory quickly at 15—8.

Geoffrey Taylor also got most of his resistance from George H. Walker, Jr., in the first game, which he won, 15—12, allowing his opponent only five aces in the second.

E. C. Olds did not arrive, and therefore another Harvard newcomer, H. R. Kunhardt, was presented with a default. The summaries follow:

Harvard, 5; Princeton, 0.

G. N. Richard, Harvard, defeated Jesse Hoyt, Princeton, 15—11, 15—6; Hewitt Morgan, Harvard, defeated Lloyd Richards, Princeton, 15—4, 15—11; A. H. Tomes, Harvard, defeated J. Cromwell, 15—4, 15—8; Geoffrey Taylor, Harvard, defeated George H. Walker, Jr., Princeton, 15—12, 15—8; H. R. Kunhardt, Harvard, won from E. C. Olds, Princeton, by default.

Yale, 3; Crescent A. C., 2.

C. J. MacGuire, Yale, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent, 15—5, 18—16; A. W. Baxter, Jr., Crescent, won from J. A. Victor, Yale, by default; William Adams, Jr., Yale, defeated C. W. Dangler, Crescent, 15—3, 18—15; H. R. Stern, Yale, defeated C. W. Dingey, Crescent, 6—15, 15—3, 15—9; Harold Rowe, Crescent, defeated J. C. Tomlinson, Yale, 15—3, 15—9.

BRUSSEL IS VICTOR OVER STEINBUGLER

CLASS C BILLIARDS STANDING.
National Championship.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	H.A.
L. A. Servatius	3	1	26	3 20-40
J. Langden	3	1	51	3 20-40
S. Brussel	3	1	28	6 12-23
J. Neustadt	1	1	30	5
J. Johann	1	2	25	4 17-29
F. W. Boyd	1	2	24	3 25-41
C. Steinbugler	1	3	21	3 9-47

Two games were played in the national Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn last night. Sidney Brussel scored an easy victory over Charley Steinbugler, 150 to 58, and J. R. Johann managed to gain an extremely close triumph over Frank W. Boyd by a score of 150 to 149. Joseph Neustadt, the champion, was also scheduled to play, but was ordered to bed by his physician. He is suffering from an attack of grippe. It has been decided to postpone his match until Monday, when it is expected he will be able to resume play.

The first match of the night was that between Brussel and Steinbugler and the result was a distinct surprise to the followers of the Class C tourney. Brussel has been playing good billiards and Steinbugler has not been going as well as when he won the metropolitan Class C tourney of the association earlier in the season, but it was not expected that Brussel would have such a romp of it.

Instead, Steinbugler could not get going. He was in bad stroke. On the other hand, Brussel was in excellent stroke. Seldom has he appeared to better advantage than he did last night. His average of 6 12-23, which is high for the tourney, shows to what good purpose he piled his cue. He took the lead soon after the start of the game and never was in danger. The fact that his best effort netted him but twenty-four buttons shows how consistently good he was. Steinbugler averaged 3 12-23 and had a high run of eleven. Besides being out of stroke, Steinbugler had none the better of the breaks. He missed many close ones when trying to get the balls together for a run and was left many hard shots by Brussel when the latter missed. Brussel's exceedingly good work made it an extremely interesting match to watch. Incidentally, the result boosted Brussel to third place in the standing and put Steinbugler into the cellar.

Johann and Boyd hooked up in a real battle. The lead alternated between them, and it was not until Johann ran out the game with an unfinished run of 17, his best cluster of the evening, that the game was put on ice. In fact, up to that time it appeared Boyd must win. The winner averaged 3 27-41 and the loser, with a high run of 24, averaged 3 25-41.

VETERANS MEET ON COURT.

Dr. Hawkes Defeats C. M. Bull, Sr., in Indoor Net Tourney.

Two real veterans of the tennis courts met in the indoor tournament of the Brooklyn Heights Casino Club yesterday afternoon, Dr. Forbes Hawkes defeating Charles M. Bull, Sr., in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3. Both men are over 60 years old, yet they play the game as hard and quite as skillfully as many of the youngsters. Their battle yesterday was one which the entire club had been looking forward to, as they are the oldest devotees of the racquet in the Casino ranks, and it was a fortunate coincidence that brought them together in the second round of the Class B event.

In the only other actual match of the day, Edward Cornell defeated P. R. Smith, in the same class, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4. This encounter went the limit, and eventually developed into a test of endurance. The winner had just enough reserve strength in the pinches to pull out the second and third sets by the narrowest of margins.

Shakeup in Rutgers Basket Ball.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 8.—A big shakeup was made today in the Rutgers basket ball quintet in preparation for the game with Syracuse here Friday night. While the individual playing was good against New York University on Wednesday night, Rutgers's teamwork was poor. Stock will probably be used at centre.

"CARPENTIER NOT SIGNED TO MEET DEMPSEY"—DESCAMPS

DESCAMPS DENIES SIGNING FOR BOUT

IMPOSSIBLE BEFORE FEB. 1

Guarantee with Cochran Binding Until Then—Wants Contract Price in France, Not Dollars.

By HENRY WALES.

Copyright, 1920, by Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—"Georges Carpentier has not contracted to fight Jack Dempsey at Tijuana, Mexico, or anywhere else. The reports cabled from America are mere bluff from the Dempsey manager," said François Descamps, manager of the French champion, this evening, when I interviewed him at the Café Madrid, on the Boulevard, which has been the headquarters for Carpentier and himself since the old days before they won fame and money.

"In the first place, I can't contract for Carpentier to fight anywhere on earth until after Feb. 1, as I have given him a written guarantee that I won't sign up before that date," continued M. Descamps.

"I have not seen a single American promoter here since Carpentier beat Beckett, and I have not received any communication from Kearns or Coffroth or anyone else in America. It is reported that American capitalists and promoters are in Paris trying to obtain a match, but I have not seen one.

"Furthermore, Carpentier can't fight in the United States or Mexico on July 4 this year. There is not time, as Carpentier would have to cross the Atlantic and be in America at least three and probably four or five months before he fought Dempsey. We have certain contracts for exhibitions, &c., which must be fulfilled, and Carpentier could not leave France by April 1, no matter what happened.

No Bout Likely Before December.

"Carpentier will not fight Dempsey before September, this year, and it is more than likely the fight will take place in December next. Carpentier is a very bad sailor and gets frightfully seasick, even crossing the Channel going to London. He would probably be very ill crossing the ocean and would insist on having plenty of time getting back into form.

"Another thing—if the fight takes place in America, the purse must be figured in dollars at the present rate of exchange in francs. The dollar is worth between 11 and 12 francs now and probably will continue around that quotation for another month until we sign a contract. But the fight probably will not occur until next December, as I said, and in the next eleven months it is very probable it will drop back a whole lot. Not to the pre-war rate, which was a little more than 5 francs to a dollar, but to around 7 francs to a dollar.

"We are not going to lose all this money. When the contract is signed the amount of dollars involved will be figured into francs at that day's rate of exchange and the contract will be stipulating that is the amount the fighters will receive.

"For example, if Carpentier receives a $200,000 guarantee, and exchange is 10 francs a dollar on that day, it will be stipulated that Carpentier is to get 2,000,000 francs. But when the fight occurs exchange may have dropped and the dollar may be worth only 8 francs. That would mean only 1,600,000 francs, unless we are otherwise protected. Of course, if by any chance the value of the dollar should amount higher and the dollar should be worth 13 francs when the fight occurred, we would lose the difference and still get only 2,000,000 francs."

Descamps did not try to hide the fact he was feeling mighty angry about the statements Kearns made regarding the length of the bout, as cabled to French newspapers. Dispatches say Kearns said he was willing to have a six-round bout, as he was positive Dempsey would knock out Carpentier in the first round.

"Kearns has been doing a lot of bluffing," said Descamps. "Get him down to business and make definite propositions so we will be ready to 'talk turkey' Feb. 1, when my option with Cochran expires."

Old-time American sporting fans here believe the fight won't be held either in Mexico or the United States, and say if it is staged anywhere on the other side of the Atlantic it will be at Havana. A close friend of Tex Rickard asserted he would come through with a novel and attractive proposition on Feb. 1.

Meanwhile French sporting men are trying to get the city of Paris to offer a big purse to hold the fight in Pershing Stadium, which seats 60,000.

CRESCENT A. C. WINS AGAIN.

Defeats St. Bonaventure Five in Basket Ball by 29 to 21 Score.

The Crescent A. C. won its fourteenth straight victory in basket ball last night, defeating the St. Bonaventure College five in an exciting contest, by a score of 29 to 21. Play was even throughout, and it was largely greater accuracy in throwing goals from foul that decided the issue in favor of the New Moon outfit. Walsh, for the visiting team, threw seven goals from fouls, but had enough other chances, which he missed, to have tied the score had they resulted in baskets.

Nicklas played a particularly brilliant game for the winning team, but the admirable team work of the New Mooners was the principal cause of their success. Frye of St. Bonaventure made the most sensational play of the game early in the second half, a shot from three-quarters the length of the floor for a clean basket. The score at the end of the first period had been 15 to 12 in favor of the Crescent A. C., and Frye's wonderful shot brought his team to within a point of tying. But the home five speeded up thereafter and was never again in serious danger up to the finish.

The lineup:

CRESCENT A.C. (29)		ST. BONAV'RE. (21).
Darten	R.F.	Walsh
Parmele	L.F.	Heine
McTigue	C.	Gavigan
Nicklas	R.G.	Murphy
Stewart	L.G.	Frye

Goals from floor—Crescent A. C.: Darten (2), Parmele, McTigue, Nicklas (5), Stewart, Kinney (2), Lunden (2); St. Bartholomew: Walsh (3), Heine (3), Gavigan, Frye. Goals from fouls—Parmele (1), Walsh (7). Substitutions—Kinney for Stewart, Lunden for Parmele.

Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Penn Students Object to Boxing as Intercollegiate Sport.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—A number of Penn students today protested the establishment of boxing as an intercollegiate sport.

Many communications were sent to The Pennsylvanian, the student daily, criticising the resolution of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which made boxing a sport for intercollegiate competition. Recently it was elevated to minor sports prominence at Penn, and a championship team will be awarded 'Varsity letters.

Today The Pennsylvanian published letters from several prominent college seniors on its editorial pages.

"The recent action taken at the conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association regarding the establishment of boxing as an intercollegiate sport should be accepted with some reluctance," says one writer.

"While no one will refuse to admit the value of boxing as an exercise, yet there is in no other sport as much in danger of professionalism as the pugilistic game."

Other student letters read:

"Pennsylvania should not become a clearing house where professional boxers may be developed under cover by unscrupulous managers who might send their protegés here to train them under the guise of education.

"Parents will not want their children to come to Penn to be fighters, which is what the sport will surely come to unless it is governed and regulated sternly. This does not seem likely just now."

FOR BOXING ON NEW BASIS.

Berry Wants Cornell to Make It an Intercollegiate Sport.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Cornell will take up boxing as an intercollegiate sport if the Minor Sports Council approves the recommendation to that effect Graduate Manager Romeyn Berry will present at the next meeting of that body. Manager Berry, who attended several important meetings of college athletic bodies in New York during the holiday recess, returned to Ithaca convinced that boxing would make a welcome and useful addition to the group of intercollegiate sports in which Cornell students are interested. He found that the General Staff of the Army and the Navy, the Collegiate Athletic Association are both keenly interested in the development of boxing at the colleges, and he will so report to the Cornell Council.

LICENSE REVOKED FOR LEONARD BOUT

New Haven Police Chief Decides Dundee Affair Would Have Been Prize Fight.

PROMOTERS LOSE HEAVILY

Calling Off of Championship Event Costs Large Sums—$100,000 Gate Had Been Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 8.—There will be no fight between Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee in this city on Jan. 16. Chief of Police Philip T. Smith today revoked the license he granted several weeks ago, claiming that because the New York papers and other journals had referred to the match as a "prize fight" and that there was every indication that it would have been a "prize fight," instead of a boxing exhibition, the agreement made when the license was granted had been broken.

The promoter of the fight was Louis Gargullo, a restaurant proprietor here, who was recently arrested in connection with the sale of wood alcohol, and who stands to lose several thousands of dollars because of the Chief's action. He had paid Leonard $25,000 to sign articles, it is said. Smith, in a statement, said that the arrest of Gargullo had something to do with the decision to revoke the license.

Thousands of dollars' worth of tickets had been sold to boxing followers throughout the East and it was expected that a $100,000 house would have been on hand when the gong sounded. That it was to have been a championship bout there seems to be no doubt in the minds of the sporting public.

Chief Smith, in a statement this afternoon, laid special stress on the arrest of Gargullo and added: "This, together with the other circumstances, causes me to feel that the peace and good order of the community, together with the good name of the City of New Haven, are best served by a revocation of the permit granted."

A SURPRISE TO GIBSON.

Leonard's Manager Says New Haven Action Is Expensive Business.

"The action taken by Chief of Police Smith of New Haven came as a big surprise to me," said Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, when asked for a statement regarding the revocation of the permit which had been issued for a twenty-round bout to a decision between Leonard and Johnny Dundee. "When the permit was issued we believed that we were at liberty to proceed with all the necessary arrangements for the bout. I accepted the permit as a guarantee that the bout would be held. I canceled three or four bouts in which Leonard could have taken part and which would have netted us about $25,000. Had there been the slightest doubt in my mind that the permit for the Dundee bout would be revoked at the eleventh hour, I would have accepted these other bouts.

"I am really at a loss to understand this sudden and unexpected action. I understand that about $48,000 worth of tickets have been sold for the bout. It will now be necessary to refund all of this money. This means a great deal of trouble for those who purchased the tickets as well as those who sold them. It is no easy matter to refund as much money as this. By that, I mean that it cannot be accomplished in an hour or two. It takes a great deal of time and it means that the persons who purchased tickets must present them where they were purchased to have their money refunded."

TO DISCUSS GOLF RULES.

National Association Will Hold Its Annual Meeting Tonight.

Golfing for 1920 will be started on its way, officially and formally, tonight when delegates from many of the member clubs of the United States Golf Association will gather here for the annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria. This year's conclave promises to develop into the most important and interesting in the history of the association, with the possible exception of the year when the amateur question was a bitter issue. For the first time in the period of golf on this side of the Atlantic the opportunity for conferences with the British moguls will be provided with a view to changing rules of the game. At the meeting tonight a committee will be chosen to make a trip abroad in the Spring to confer with the committee of St. Andrews, and the sentiment of tonight's meeting on the question of standardizing the ball, the stymie, and the abolition of certain kinds of putters will serve as instructions for the Americans who visit England.

At the meeting last January President Frederick S. Wheeler informed the delegates that, just prior to the war, there had been some correspondence between the Royal and Ancient Committee of St. Andrews, now that that committee has ing the rules, but, at the suggestion of St. Andrews, the matter was deferred until after hostilities had ended.

One of the keenest votes tonight will be on the award of the three national championships. The Executive Committee will put before the meeting the names of three clubs eligible for each tournament and the selections will be made by ballots. The national open seems almost certain to go to Inverness at Toledo, and the national amateur seems headed for the Engineers' Club on Long Island with an arrangement with North Shore to help handle the qualifying day's play. The women's national amateur championship seems destined to go either to Mayfield at Cleveland or Brookline at Manchester, Vt.

The Board of Officers, which has held office for two seasons, will be replaced at tonight's meeting by almost an entirely new group. George H. Walker of St. Louis will succeed Frederick S. Wheeler of Apawamis as President; Howard F. Whitney of Nassau, the present Secretary, and J. F. Byers of Allegheny will succeed Dr. Walter S. Harban of Columbia and Sterling E. Edmunds of St. Louis as Vice Presidents; W. D. Vanderpool of Morris County will replace Mr. Whitney as Secretary. Mortimer N. Buckner of the Garden City Golf Club will be re-elected Treasurer. The new members of the Executive Committee to be voted into office are Albert D. Locke of Brookline, Nelson M. Whitney of New Orleans, Edward S. Moore of Ontwentsia, and Hugh Wilson of Philadelphia.

AMATEURS IN FAST BOUTS.

Six Knockouts Scored in Tourney at N. Y. A. C.

Visitors at the New York A. C. boxing ring last night had a rare treat during the progress of the semi-final bouts in the regular monthly tournament. No less than six of the dozen melees were halted by knockout punches, and the feature battle of the evening had to go to an extra round.

The results follow:

115-Pound Class—Louis Goldberg, Pastime A. C., defeated J. McKernin, Lion Heart A. C., one round.

125-Pound Class—J. Futerman, Clark House, defeated Willie Sandle, West Men's Association, two rounds; H. Wuchner, Clark House, defeated S. Miller, Frederick Lozier A. A., two rounds; S. Morganoff, Pastime A. C., defeated E. Meffinis, unattached, one round; Peter Frans, St. George's, won by default from Joseph Hayden, unattached.

WILDE TOO CLEVER FOR ARMY CHAMPION

British Flyweight Is Always Asher's Master, but Fails to Land a Knockout Blow.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 8.—Jimmie Wilde, Britain's best boxing bet at 108 pounds, was much a better fighter here tonight than Babe Asher, the A.E.F. champion of St. Louis, who has won a few good fights in this locality recently. Johnny Asher proved to be a fast, strong, and game novice entirely unacquainted with the art of fighting.

With all his clever superiority Wilde's showing was a distinct disappointment to spectators, who had been led to believe that he was a tremendous hitter. He walloped Asher when and where he pleased with both hands, yet could not knock him out or even seriously embarrass him.

Asher went down on one occasion, but was quite fresh when he did so. He got up going strong and landed many left-handed snaps on Wilde. The majority of the 7,000 spectators seemed to feel after the first round that Wilde meant to go easy with the novice and let Asher stay the other rounds.

To the uninterested spectator it seemed that Wilde's punching power has been much overestimated and that an experienced boxer like Frankie Mason or Carl Tremain might give him trouble. Asher was the rawest sort of a novice. He is of the jumping-jack school of boxers, always on the hop, up and down, never still, and hitting while in the air, mostly with his left hand, a sort of half hook, half jab to the jaw. His right hand never was in evidence, and he had no idea of clinching, even when he was in trouble. Instead of getting hold and hanging on he stood up and swapped punches with Wilde. The best Asher knew was to cover his jaw with his left glove.

Wilde at times walloped him hard with both hands on the jaw. It seemed that no living boy could assimilate such punishment, if Wilde is the hitter the Britishers have insisted he is. However, Asher would take the pummeling then jump up and go down again.

The fight was puzzling to veteran ringgoers. Wilde hit Asher as he pleased, but he did not knock him out. He did not even have him in danger of a knockout.

Wilde's weight was given at 106, Asher's at 113¼ pounds ringside. Wilde was as tall as Asher, had much broader shoulders and back, but was lighter in the lower limbs.

Wilde's clean fighting was applauded by the crowd, but he did not show anything astonishing in ability. There was nothing dashing in his work. He did not assume command of the ring, he did not impose his will on his novice opponent, and, particularly, he did not seem to be aggressive.

Asher bounded up and down all through the fight even after he got up from two knockdowns scored by Wilde. They were falldowns, rather than clean smashes. Asher must have been exceptionally fit, for he was up in a jiffy, bounding all over the canvas.

DATES FOR CORNELL CREWS.

Yale and Princeton, Harvard and Intercollegiates on Schedule.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Three intercollegiate rowing dates for Cornell University crews were announced tonight. The Red and White oarsmen will race Yale and Princeton at Lake Carnegie, Princeton, on May 15, and Harvard on Lake Cayuga, May 22, and also will take part in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie in June.

Curling Matches Are Postponed.

Disappointments marred the enjoyment yesterday of many New York Scots, who had planned to hold their annual Utica Cup curling matches on the ice at Van Cortlandt Park. The thaw and drizzle of Wednesday night left the rinks too watery for the ancient old game of "stanes," and the matches were necessarily postponed indefinitely.

BROKER ENDS LIFE AT THE YALE CLUB

MEMBER OF CLASS OF '97

Financial Trouble and Grief Over Mother's Death Believed Causes of Suicide.

Walter Hatch Stuart, a stock broker, living at the Yale Club, at Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, ended his life last night by jumping from the window of his room on the fifteenth floor of the club to the roof of an extension at the seventh story, on the Madison Avenue side. He was killed instantly. Grief over the recent death of his mother and also financial trouble were said to have been the reasons for the suicide.

Meade Nennergerode, a member of the club, whose room on the seventh floor faces the extension, heard the body hit the roof outside his window at about 6:30 o'clock, and immediately informed D. B. Cashin, the manager. He summoned Patrolman McLoughlin of the East Fifty-first Street Station, who called an ambulance from the Flower Hospital. Dr. Foster pronounced the broker dead.

No note of any kind was found in the man's room by Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, Deputy Chief Medical Examiner. A gold watch and $18 were found on the dresser. The bed in the room had been used a short time before the suicide, Dr. Schwartz disclosed last night. The latter said he believed that Mr. Stuart had retired after business before taking a bath. This fact was substantiated, he thought, by the fact that Mr. Stuart was dressed in a pajama coat and a bathrobe.

Dr. Horace Stokes, also a resident of the Yale Club, said last night that he had been treating Mr. Stuart for a minor ailment for the last week. Knowing also that Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris was a Yale graduate, he requested him to make an investigation, which he did.

From the Yale year book it was learned that Mr. Stuart, who was a member of the class of '97, had had some connection with the brokerage firm of W. T. Hatch & Sons of 71 Broadway. Henry P. Hatch, a member of the firm, who lives at 124 Remsen Street, Brooklyn, could not be reached last night. Mr. Stuart is believed to be a member of this prominent Brooklyn family and is said to have been well known in the Wall Street district. He was 40 years old, unmarried, and had lived at the Yale Club five weeks.

ALBANIA SHOWS SIGNS OF SETTLING DOWN

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 8.—General Johnson, the American Military Attaché, who has just returned from two weeks' visit to Albania, says that the people there are beginning to return to work and till their fields. There is food enough to prevent actual suffering, but a shortage of certain articles, such as sugar, oils, &c. The American Red Cross is doing most admirable work, the General says, not only in distributing supplies of this nature, but in the establishment of hospitals, doctoring, nursing, and visiting sick, and giving instruction in personal hygiene and the care of children.

The head of the Red Cross in Albania said that the organization was much indebted to the Italian authorities for encouragement and assistance in the way of transportation and the use of buildings.

The lines of transportation throughout the country are generally poor, consisting on the whole of trails, but the Italians have built some very admirable roads, particularly in the south. General Johnson believes that the continued construction of roads will do very much to develop the country and bring about settled conditions.

PUT TREATY IN FORCE TOMORROW AT 4 P. M.

tion—their property, their peace, their independence can no longer be safeguarded by isolation, but only by association in the accomplishment of a collective duty. One can hope that the peoples of Europe will never forget this truth, for they have paid dearly enough to learn it. We hope also that it will not escape our American friends, and that we shall see them soon resume their place, which we will never cease to reserve for them."

PARIS, Jan. 8 (Associated Press).—It is expected that the Supreme Council will come to an end on Saturday with the exchange of the treaty ratifications.

It is announced that diplomatic relations will be resumed with Germany on Sunday, when the French Chargé d'Affaires will leave for Berlin. Baron von Lersner, the German representative, will present his credentials to President Poincaré.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—A wireless dispatch from Berlin says the Supreme Council at Paris has refused a request of the German Government to negotiate a modification of the German frontier lines as they were stipulated in the Peace Treaty. Premiers Lloyd George and Nitti left this morning for Paris, where they will confer with Premier Clemenceau of France.

Armenia Mandate to Norway?

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 9.—In default of the United States, Norway may be invited to undertake the mandate for Armenia and contiguous regions which are to be freed from Turkish rule.

An international commission representing Great Britain, France, and Italy is the first alternative to America, whose acceptance is not counted on, which the Allied Supreme Council will discuss in Paris, where Lloyd-George and other British Ministers went today, but Italy is reluctant to assume even limited responsibility in this connection.

The tripartite arrangement may consequently prove impracticable, and in that case a suitable neutral like Norway may be asked to take up the burden. Presumably such guarantees as Norway might stipulate for would be forthcoming.

FIUME MEMORANDUM OUT.

Three Islands as Italy's Share of Dalmatia—Mandate Over Albania.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8.—Great Britain, France and the United States, conceding the Italian character of Fiume, will grant that city complete sovereignty under the League of Nations, preserving only a customs union with Jugoslavia, according to a memorandum concerning Dalmatia and Fiume recently presented by these powers to Vittorio Scialcia, the Italian Foreign Minister. A summary of the memorandum, telegraphed by its Rome correspondent, is published by La Nacion today.

In the memorandum the United States, France and Great Britain recognize as reasonable the demands of Italy with respect to the Islands of Pelagosa, Lissa and Lussin, off the Dalmatian Coast, granting full sovereignty to Italy. The three powers concede to Italy a mandate over Albania and complete sovereignty over Avlona with the hinterland necessary to its defense. The memorandum observes that these concessions appear to safeguard sufficiently the rights and aspirations of Italy. Nevertheless, guided by a spirit of friendship, the powers will take into consideration other demands of Italy, especially the diplomatic representation of Zara, with respect to which a decision will be left to the population of that city.

Upon the Italian proposition to separate Fiume and constitute it and the hinterland as a buffer state completely independent, leaving the port and railroad to that state, the memorandum says that the existence of Fiume and of the buffer state appear to eliminate each other reciprocally, because any form of separation would be to the prejudice of the city as well as to the hinterland. In order to safeguard the Italian character and autonomy of Fiume the powers presenting the memorandum are disposed to maintain the city under protection of the League of Nations, and, as Italy is part of the League, the memorandum says it should be easy to safeguard Italian interests.

The Italian demand for a corridor which would establish territorial continuity between Fiume and Italy is held to be superfluous and tending to create grave economic and territorial complications.

The demand of Italy for annexation of the island of Lagosta for strategic reasons, the memorandum contends, appears unjustified, since Italy's control of the Adriatic is assured by possession of Trieste, Pola, Lissa, Pelagosa, and Avlona, as well as by the neutralization of Fiume.

The correspondent of La Nacion, in interpreting the opinion in Italian diplomatic circles, says that the memorandum demonstrates clearly a leaning toward the ideas of President Wilson, almost making them its own, and declares that no solution is possible if these points of view are maintained. He adds that the memorandum establishes, as an official document, a renunciation of the rights recognized in favor of Italy by the Treaty of London with respect to Dalmatia.

Document Considered "Very Grave."

ROME, Jan. 8.—Commenting today on the memorandum handed last month to Foreign Minister Scialoia by Lloyd George and Clemenceau on the Adriatic question, the Corriere d'Italia today calls the memorandum, while not an ultimatum, "a very grave document coming from the allied nations to a nation bound to them by a solemn compact.

The memorandum, the newspaper asserts, had for its object the closing of one period of negotiation and the opening of a new one, and recalls to the new Italian negotiators that "the compact of London does not exist any more," having been destroyed gradually by the former Italian negotiators.

"The voluminous memorandum is due to Premier Clemenceau's fervid imagination," the Corriere d'Italia continues. "It recalls that the former Italian delegates renounced Italian rights to Dalmatia, with the exception of Zara with a hinterland of ten kilometers; renounced the Dalmatian Islands with the exception of two or three; renounced annexation of Fiume; renounced part of Istria and also substituted an Italian protectorate over Albania for the Italian mandate there, restricting Italian territorial aspirations to Avlona, with a hinterland of fifteen kilometers.

"The memorandum tries to show that with these facts the compact of London lost all value, and thus the new negotiations must not refer to the compact of London.

EBERHARDT BREAKS WORD

Steals Rolling Stock and Blows Up Munitions Depots Despite Signed Agreement.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—The Interallied Commission for the Evacuation of the Baltic Provinces is still in Berlin awaiting the reply of the German Government regarding a series of serious incidents which occurred while the commission was carrying out the instructions of the Supreme War Council in Paris.

It will be remembered that when the Supreme War Council requested the German Government to evacuate the German troops in that region, the Berlin Cabinet replied that it could not do so, and requested a commission of the allied and associated powers to cooperate in the work. So the Supreme War Council sent its commission under command of General Niessel. Quite a large number of officers and men of this commission went on their special train accompanied by Admiral Hofmann, representing the German Government. The Admiral was supposed to be a plenipotentiary, but at Koenigsberg it was found that the headquarters of the German National Army refused to recognize his authority on several matters.

In the course of carrying out its instructions the commission got into touch with General von Eberhardt, successor of General von der Goltz, and agreed on a plan for moving out all the German troops, the Iron Division, and all the various free corps. An important part of the agreement was that the Germans should leave all rolling stock and munitions depots for the Letts in the condition the Letts had left them. General von Eberhardt signed this agreement. The Germans, however, took all the rolling stock with them and blew up the munitions depots.

On a number of occasions, when members of the commission tried to "control" the trains on which German troops were being evacuated, they were insulted and defied.

A British officer was sent at night to inspect a certain train. When it arrived at the station a German officer got out and ordered the British officer out of the station. The British officer, Lieutenant Lloyd Wilson, refused to go, so the German officer ordered some of his men to seize him, which they did, menacing him with revolvers. While he was being held the German officer approached and spat in his face.

On another occasion German officers requested that a train be taken for purposes of control, to Insterberg, where there was more siding room. At Insterberg the German officers met the members of the commission and told them to stop there awhile. On their return to the station the train had disappeared.

At other times, when Entente officers went to inspect trains, they were menaced with revolvers and maching guns. Once, when a railway car had been left on a siding so that they might sleep, it was shunted away a few distances during the night and pelted with hand grenades. Though all the windows were broken and considerable damage was done to the carriage, no lives fortunately were lost.

The Germans, indeed, took it into their heads to think that Germany had not been beaten and they acted accordingly with all that venom for which the old Prussian officer was famous.

The Interallied Commission immediately placed the facts before the German Government, demanding at the same time the punishment of those officers whose names were given who had been guilty of insults and outrages.

The German Government promised to replace the rolling stock and munitions before Jan. 16, but so far nothing has been done, nor has the arrest of any of the implicated officers been reported.

The Supreme War Council at Paris has also been put in possession of the facts, and, as Interallied Commission will remain here till satisfaction has been obtained.

BAD FAITH BARS DEALING WITH LENIN

Government Policy Discussed by Assistant Secretary Phillips in Answer to Letter.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—The policy of the United States toward Bolshevist Russia is discussed in a letter from Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips, made public today by Demarest Lloyd, Secretary of the Harvard Liberal Club, to whom it was addressed. Mr. Phillips's statement, written on the 20th of last December for Mr. Lloyd, was said by Mr. Lloyd to have been sought as a supplement to an earlier letter to Senator Wadsworth of New York on the same subject. The letter in part says:

"You ask whether the Bolshevist group has not offered as a condition of peace to refrain from propaganda, and if the word of this group has not proved at least as reliable as that of any of the other Russian factions with which we are now dealing. With respect to the word of the other Russian factions it is only say that up to the present we have not been the victim of any serious bad faith. With respect to the Bolsheviki, however, we have had practically nothing but bad faith. Bad faith is the avowed essence of Bolshevist diplomacy and its avowed ultimate purpose is to obtain every possible opportunity for the spread of its subversive doctrines. It is only necessary to quote the following extract from a speech made by Zinoviev, President of the Petrograd Soviet, on Feb. 2, 1919, on the subject of the Prince's Island proposal:

"'We are willing to sign an unfavorable peace with the Allies. It would only mean that we should put no trust whatever in the bit of paper we should sign. We should use the breathing space so obtained in order to gather our strength in order that the mere continued existence of our Government would keep up the world-wide propaganda which Soviet Russia has been carrying on for more than a year.'

"Finally, you inquire whether the present policy of the Government is not throwing Russia into the arms of Germany. This could only be answered by a discussion of the whole Russian problem, which is not possible in this letter."

Bryan Calls on Legislatures to Ratify Suffrage Amendment

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—William J. Bryan tonight issued this plea for ratification of the suffrage amendment by the Democratic Legislatures now in session and the calling of special sessions in other States:

"I hope that all Legislatures that are now meeting will deal immediately with the suffrage amendment, so that the amendment will be ratified in time to give the women a voice in nominations as well as in the elections.

"I am especially anxious that the Democratic States shall act promptly and favorably:

"First—In order that the Democratic Party may be able to make a successful appeal to women voters; and,

"Second—Because we need the conscience of women to aid the moral causes to which Democracy is pledged. I take it for granted that special sessions will be called in States that do not have a regular session soon. No time ought to be lost in settling this question on the side of suffrage."

UNPAID TEACHERS THREATEN TO STRIKE

Indignation Meetings Resolve to Act on Failure of City to Meet December Salaries.

WILL APPEAL TO THE MAYOR

Shortage of $618,928 to be Investigated—Teachers Want Muddle Straightened Out.

The failure of the city to pay its public school teachers their salaries for December led to indignation meetings in various of the schools yesterday in the Bronx and other boroughs. There was talk in some of the schools of something like a strike on this question of upheld pay. It was advocated by several of the speakers that the teachers go to school this morning and sign the time cards, but refuse to take classes until some assurance is made that their pay for December will soon be forthcoming. A few teachers asserted that this course would be followed by them.

The amount involved is $618,928.96. Representatives from the protesting teachers, it is said, have been down to the office of the auditor of the Board of Education about the matter, and have been told there that the payment of the December pay rolls seems a long way off. The rolls, they were told, had been all made out, but the Controller would not pay them until he received certain information from the Board of Education. Complaint is made that no relief has come from the Federation of Teachers. Several of the teachers said yesterday that it was proposed at the indignation meetings to cover the entire city, and that to include in the remonstrance all of the teachers.

Teachers Will Appeal to Mayor.

It is planned to carry the matter to Mayor Hylan as soon as possible, and a committee, it is asserted, will wait on him [illegible] him to conduct an investigation [illegible] the salary deficit, and find out how a sum appropriated for salaries of teachers can be diverted to other objects. The committee will ask him, it is said, to decide that money so appropriated can only be used to pay salaries.

The withholding of their December pay has caused hardships to a great number of the teachers. The payment of their rent is one of the questions involved. Their January pay they feel assured of, with its increases in salaries.

One reason for the deficit is the failure thus far of the Board of Education to receive of the appropriation made to it by the State of New York. The money was used by the Controller to reduce taxation in this city. The Education Department took the matter to the State Commissioner of Education, who decided in its favor. The case was then taken into the courts, whose decision, rendered a short time ago, was that the question was not one to be settled by the State Commissioner but by a judicial tribunal. Thus the matter stands, and the Board of Education does not know yet whether it will get the appropriation or not.

Another reason, as stated at last Wednesday's meeting of the Board by Archibald S. Somers, a member, and other members were assured by Borough President Dowling that if they fell short in meeting necessary expenses for the year there was a bank in the Board of Estimate to meet their needs. After the promise was made by Mr. Dowling the presidency of the Board of Education passed from Mr. Somers to Anning S. Prall. For one reason or another the promise was not insisted upon, but the members of the Board, relying on what Mr. Dowling said, went ahead expending money on certain necessary things.

By placing teacher-clerks on a permanent salary basis $116,000, not provided for in the 1919 budget, was spent. The employment of teachers to visit crippled children in their homes required $18,000 more. The Board of Estimate had cut down the extended expenditure for substitutes, and in addition to the money allowed in the 1919 budget $75,000 had to be spent for substitutes in the elementary schools and $14,000 in the high schools. This accounted for $220,000 of the shortage.

As to the remainder of the amount, the Board of Estimate in making deductions for accruals took out approximately $400,000 more than was estimated by the Board of Education. Mr. Somers maintained that the money spent for teacher-clerks, teachers of crippled children, and substitutes surely went for teachers' salaries.

INVEST IN JUGOSLAVIA.

American Capital to Exploit Mines, Timber, and Water Power.

ROME, Jan. 8.—American capital is being invested heavily in commercial and financial concerns in Jugoslavia, according to the Agenzia, a daily newspaper here dealing with economic questions, which today prints a list of the industries being organized or maintained chiefly by American money.

Among the companies enumerated is that at Kacova, for the manufacture of motors and dynamos, a steamship company at Ragusa which will operate boats in the Adriatic, a company for the exploitation of mines at Agram, a company for centralization of all the timber industries in Bosnia, and Herzegovina, and a syndicate to utilize the water power of the Frebinjica River with the construction of a great central electrical power station in co-operation with the Jugoslav Government.

The paper says a savings bank at Petrinja in Croatia has augmented its capital stock from the 1,000 to 5,000,000 crowns, and that the new shares have been purchased with American money.

Quebec Paper Mills Disciplined.

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—A partial embargo on export shipments of newsprint paper from the mills of Price Brothers, Quebec, to the United States has gone into force by order of the Paper Controller. Robert A. Pringle, it was announced today, up to a few days ago Price Brothers disregarded some of the Controller's orders and failed to supply their allotment of paper to Canadian newspaper publishers.

PERSIA MENACED BY REDS' ADVANCE

Collapse of Denikin's Front Leaves the Way Open to Control of Caspian Sea.

INDIA IN DANGER, TOO

Bolshevist Troops and Propagandists Spreading Unopposed Toward Turkestan and Transcaspia.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Bolshevist wireless reports of Red successes are confirmed by news received in official quarters here. The extension of the Bolshevist menace in the Middle East is described as ominous. Southeastward by way of the Caucasus toward Persia, eastward and southward by way of the northern shore of the Caspian, and in all directions southward from the Siberian Railway Red forces and propagandists are overrunning Southwestern and Central Asia.

Among their objects are control of the Caspian, the seizure of the oil fields, the invasion of Persia from two directions, the occupation of Turkestan and Transcaspia, and anti-British penetration on a great scale toward Afghanistan and India.

Denikin in South Russia is in desperate straits and Kolchak is practically out of the field. Rustov-on-Don and Novocherkask, the Don Cossack headquarters, are in imminent danger.

From the Caucasus it is reported that 1,500 Bolsheviki from Georgia and Azerbaijan are being sent via Baku and the Caspian to Persia. Probably the Georgian Government is too eager to be rid of those agents to be very enthusiastic about preventing their departure to menace the East.

On the north shore of the Caspian the Reds have taken Guriev, the base of the Ural Cossacks. Further east the Bolsheviki are advancing from Karkadinsk southward toward Lake Baikash. More Bolshevist forces are being moved southeastward in West Siberia toward Sergiopol, the headquarters of General Dutov. This town is also threatened from the north by the Bolshevist advance down the Semipol-Atinsk Railway, and from northeast by another Red column pushing forward along the upper Irtish Valley.

Dutov's retreat is thus threatened from all sides, and it is doubtful if he can withdraw in any other direction than into the Chinese territory of Mongolia.

In the sector of the Trans-Siberian Railway Kolchak's army has now practically ceased to count as a military factor in the situation.

The Bolshevist designs after the capture of Krasnovdsk on the western Caspian, evidently include the control of the Caspian, the occupation of Baku, and the consequent relief of their petrol and fuel shortage, penetration into Persia from the southern shore of the Caspian, and an attack on the rear of the volunteer army through Caucasus. They also aim, no doubt, at direct penetration into Persia via Khorassan. Northeast Persia, on the frontier of which they are already increasing their garrison.

As ulterior objects they would contemplate an anti-British move on a large scale toward India in conjunction with Afghanistan and with any other people that could be affected by the Pan Islamic movement.

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Associated Press)—Bolshevist cavalry has captured the town of Berdiansk, on the north shore of the Sea of Azov, one of the most excellent ports on the sea.

A Moscow wireless says the capture of Berdiansk gives the Soviets mastery of the Sea of Azov and means the definite surrender of the forces of General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia.

The dispatch adds that the Reds are continuing their irresistible march and that the fall of Rostov-on-Don and Novocherkassk is expected shortly.

If the Bolshevist reports are true, General Denikin has suffered a considerable disaster for not only have the Reds secured all land communication between his left and right wings, but they have captured large quantities of war material, including much sent him by the Allies.

News has reached London from British sources in Irkutsk that 9,000 anti-Kolchak insurgents are holding that city in Eastern Siberia. They are armed with machine guns and have airplanes, and are constantly being reinforced.

NEW PLAN BY LLOYD GEORGE?

Paris Hears Rumor of a Proposal Regarding Russia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—There is a persistent report here that Premier Lloyd George will make startling proposals in regard to Russia to the coming conferences. This report is said to have come from London. The rumor has it that Lloyd George will suggest that one way to approach the Russian problem would be to negotiate with the Soviets, and that he will ask that some one else suggest a better path to take.

The French have a Russian plan of their own, which consists in establishing a barrier from Dvinsk to Odessa, by means of the Polish and Rumanian armies. This would be a passive force. The new French plan is founded on the principle that the Russians must settle the Russian problem, but that they must be fenced in while doing it.

The semi-official Temps says of this:

"It is not a question of throwing foreign troops in the direction of Moscow and assault the Kremlin, where Lenin sits. The deliverance of Russia can be effected only by the Russians. Perhaps it will come from the interior of Soviet Russia. But it is now a question of preventing the fire of Bolshevism from burning the neighboring States. It is at the eastern frontier of Poland that one must preserve civilization."

In considering this proposition of calling upon Poland and Rumania it is recalled that Poland wants permanent title to Eastern Galicia with its 15,000,000 population and Rumania wants title to Bessarabia. Some weeks ago the Supreme Council gave Galicia to Poland for twenty-five years. Recently, although there was no public mention of it, this action of the Supreme Council has been declared in Bucharest to be as if it limits Poland's hold on Galicia. This means that the statesmen who may ask Poland to maintain her part of the fence have also the power of giving her Galicia which she desires.

The title to Bessarabia is likewise in the balance. Rumania has taken it, and members of the Bucharest Parliament have been elected from Bessarabia. But the Peace Conference did not give her title to it. An interesting settlement here may well be expected.

As for the Adriatic situation no public statement is forthcoming concerning the conversations in London between Lloyd George and Nitti. The Italian Premier has shown little sign of backing down, and Italian diplomats here insist that Italy must have Fiume. They scoff at the story that Premiers might try to put off Italy in the Adriatic by giving her a mandate over Constantinople.

As for the Turkish situation, there appears to be a weakening of those who favor putting Turkish authority out of Constantinople. After the recent London conference it was reported that Lloyd George and Clemenceau had agreed on this program. It was bitterly attacked in France and now the British India Office has formally asked Lloyd George not to commit this affront to Mohammedans, which is also what France fears to do. The latest development is that Italy sides with France and bases her argument on the ground that she does not wish to offend her Mussulmans. And so the Sultan appears to have a chance to stay where he is.

French statesmen believe that Hungary is showing too much affection for Germany, and contend that the Premiers should have a reckoning with Count Apponyi, and give him some good advice to take back to Budapest.

German Staff Message Declared Collapse Was Due to Smashing Blows on West Front

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Jan. 8.—A Swiss newspaper has just obtained a secret document of the German General Staff sent from headquarters at the western front to the German War Office and dated Oct. 31, 1918.

The document gives the lie to the Hindenburg-Ludendorff contention that the collapse of the German army about this time was due to the fact that "the front was stabbed from behind," that is, that Germany collapsed owing to internal revolution.

The document plainly shows that the collapse and retreat was due to the allied troops' attack and to the exhaustion of the German army. The German General Staff document states:

"The beginning of our retreat dates from Aug. 1, 1918, from Amiens owing to the constant pressure of the armies of Gouraud, Mangin and Degoutte.

"On Aug. 8 the First French Army, under Debeney, with the Fourth British Army, under Rawlinson, dealt a decisive blow with superior forces against our southeastern position near Moreuil, when we lost all our heavy artillery. The enemy here succeeded by tremendous dash in breaking through our front and driving us back on Roye. Similarly we lost Soissons. In three days we had to abandon twenty-five kilometers of front, thus losing Montdidier, while to the north the British troops inflicted a similar loss on us, obliging us to abandon Péronne, &c.

"Our exhausted and used-up men, incessantly engaged since Spring in heavy fighting, could no longer hold their own against these united exertions of the enemy, who were supported by fresh American and British troops. One blow followed another, and loss upon loss became inevitable from lack of reserves. The question of an armistice was daily becoming more urgent."

REDS HIRE COUNSEL TO REGAIN FREEDOM

If Government Continues to Refuse Bail, Habeas Corpus Proceedings Will Be Begun.

SIX LAWYERS EMPLOYED

Women Open Relief Headquarters for Relatives of Radicals—German Socialist Paper Raided.

Plans are afoot for a vigorous defense of prisoners held on Ellis Island for deportation, it was learned yesterday. Swinburne Hale, an attorney and formerly a Captain in the army intelligence service, visited the island and interviewed a number of the radicals. Efforts are being made to retain Frank Walsh and others of like prominence to lead the battle in behalf of the radicals. It was said that Charles Recht, Isaac Shorr, Miss Rose Weiss, Harry Weinberger, Walter Nelles, and Henry Marielli were lawyers already retained.

It was stated that, in the event the Government adhered to its apparent "no-bail" plan, wholesale application would be made to the Federal courts for writs of habeas corpus, thus freeing temporarily a number of the 515 men and women held on Ellis Island.

Gregory Weinstein, statistician and counselor of the Soviet Bureau, was before the Board of Special Inquiry at the island. He declined to enter into the preliminary hearing, refusing to answer any questions. Weinstein declared that he would maintain his silence until he had opportunity to confer with counsel.

Agents of the Department of Justice, armed with warrants issued by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, yesterday raided the office of the Volkszeitung, a German Socialist newspaper which lately switched to the cause of the Communist Labor Party. A great deal of literature was taken from the office, at 15 Spruce Street. No arrests were made.

Shortly after this Special Agents Frank Francisco and Cornelius J. Brown visited the plant of the Chatham Press, 2 East Broadway. Literature was confiscated there also, but no one was arrested.

Plans for relieving distress among families of arrested Reds continued. The Workers' Defense Committee, of which L. W. W. Leader Elizabeth Gurley Flynn is Chairman, has more than $200,000 now in the coffers. Another organization was started, with members including Mary Hilner Fitzgerald, Crystal Eastman, Helen Todd, and Margaret Sangster. This organization has opened headquarters at 307 Broadway, with Miss Fitzgerald in charge. An appeal was dispatched last night to Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson and Commissioner Caminetti.

RED REINFORCEMENTS SEEK TO STOP LETTS

Six Regiments Released by Esthonian Armistice Arrive on the Dvinsk Front.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Jan. 7.—According to information received by the General Staff conditions in Dvinsk are very bad. Typhus and other diseases are prevalent, and people actually died in the streets from cold and hunger. The burden of feeding the population of the town and neighboring country is very heavy upon the Letts, who are already facing a grave food crisis.

The Letto-Polish troops are not advancing beyond the line reached yesterday, although a small reconnaissance force drove the Reds from a village five miles to the south. A counter-attack by heavily enemy twice counter-attacked. Heavily yesterday in the centre of the active zone, but both assaults were repulsed without difficulty.

The Military Intelligence Department records the identification of six new Bolshevist regiments on the Lettish front, some 15,000 men. They are the 47th, 48th, 47ist, 2d, 3d and 4th, and come from the Esthonian front as a result of the armistice. They are reported concentrating along the trunk railroad from Pskov to Dvinsk at two points, Rezchitsa and Rositsa.

Discipline in the Bolshevist ranks is said to be growing worse. Prisoners report that many detachments are mutinous and refuse to stay at the front or carry out movements ordered. They all say frankly that the Reds who are fighting only stick to it owing to fear of the Pan Russian reactionaries and through Lenin's promise of peace before Spring.

Meanwhile the Lettish authorities are fighting internal Bolshevism no less vigorously than at the front. A recent attempt at a Red demonstration in Libau was suppressed promptly by troops. American Commissioner Gade and the French Commissioner Colonel Duparquet who visited Libau a few days ago were satisfied that the danger on this score was rapidly being removed.

SYRACUSE SOCIALISTS MUST STAND TRIAL

National Party May Carry Case to the Supreme Court as Test.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Syracuse Socialists who circulated a handbill picturing tortured conscientious objectors and announcing a meeting to demand their release, will have to stand trial here Tuesday, according to an opinion by Federal Judge Garvin of Brooklyn, who overruled a demurrer to the indictment.

The demurrer was entered by Seymour Stladman of Chicago, who defended Eugene V. Debs and Professor Scott Nearing. It is believed the national Socialists intend to make the Utica case a test and carry it to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Judge Garvin holds that the pictures, the demand upon the President to "let our people go" and inshuations that they were unjustly imprisoned, were calculated to bring contempt upon the Government, the Constitution and the uniform. He also held that the war is not over.

AMENDED DECISION PROTECTS TENANT

FALSE VIEW CORRECTED

Justice Lehman of Appellate Division Clarifies Meaning of Previous Ruling.

Landlords who are relying on the opinion of the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court in the suit of the Waitt Construction Company against Jeanne Loraine to oust tenants on the ground that the tenants are "undesirable," when their leases read that the landlord shall have the right to terminate the lease for that reason, will have to prove that the tenants are "undesirable" as the result of an amendment to the opinion filed yesterday.

The opinion, written by Justice Lehman, reversed a decision of the Municipal Court against the landlord in a dispossess proceeding in which the lower court held that the clause concerning the undesirability of the tenant did not give the landlord the right to terminate it on five days' notice to the tenant. The Appellate Term, reversing the lower court, held that the undesirability of the tenant was ground for breaking the lease, and stated that the allegation that the tenant was undesirable must be stated in the petition in the dispossess proceeding.

This opinion led many landlords to conclude, after advice from attorneys who had read the opinion, and in some cases without such advice, that they could oust tenants on the mere statement that they were undesirable, without offering any proof of that fact. Thousands of dispossess cases were pending in the various Municipal Courts of the city and it was apparent that if the generally accepted meaning of the opinion were followed, great injustice would be done to tenants whose only undesirability consisted of paying less rent than the landlords could obtain under new leases, or who had offended the landlords by activity in opposing increased rentals.

Because of the serious situation arising, Justice Lehman yesterday amended his opinion to read that when the landlord seeks to dispossess a tenant on the ground of undesirability, "he should be required to allege and prove this fact."

For the purpose of clarifying the situation the following attaement concerning the decision was made at the office of the Appellate Term yesterday:

"There seems to have been a wrong construction put upon the opinion of Justice Lehman in the case of Waitt Construction Company vs. Loraine. A careful reading of the opinion does not bear out the statements made in several of the publications that Justice Lehman holds that where a lease contains a clause to the effect that if the landlord 'deems the tenant undesirable' all he need do is to give the tenant a notice to vacate the premises. Nowhere in the opinion is any such law laid down, nor can any legitimate inference be drawn to that effect from anything contained therein. In order, however, to correct a 'widespread and erroneous construction of the opinion, Justice Lehman has inserted in the opinion the specific statement that not only must the landlord allege in the petition that he deems the tenant 'undesirable,' but that he must also prove it."

GRAND JURY STARTS A BRIBERY INQUIRY

GAMBLING RAID INVOLVED

James E. Smith Tells Jury He Is Man Named and Denies Truth of Charges.

After Governor Smith had been notified by the Extraordinary Grand Jury that it had "initiated" investigations of some municipal departments and of some matter relating to the District Attorney's office the jury seized upon, or obtained by subpoena, letter and document files from certain city offices, and among the letters thus obtained one was found which stated that an anonymous informant had asserted that $32,000 had been supplied by gambling interests and divided among three men for their alleged aid in disposing of a case in which a well-known gambler was implicated.

This communication, said to have been written by a city official to the head of another department, was said to have contained the inclosure of the anonymous letter. The identity of the writer and recipient of the letter that passed between the two officials could not be learned from any questioning of members of the Grand Jury, but it is believed that Mayor Hylan sent the letter to Police Commissioner Enright, together with the anonymous communication last March, for the purpose of having the Commissioner make an investigation.

According to the best information obtainable the anonymous letter asserted that the alleged fund had been divided among a newspaper man, an Assistant District Attorney, and an ex-City Magistrate. It was learned that the Grand Jury had these communications under consideration yesterday, with the result that a number of prominent witnesses will be subpoenaed or requested to attend the session of the jury on Monday. At the same time there was no indication that the proposed inquiry was intended to be a general inquiry into gambling, vice and police matters, but would be limited in scope to the particular matter referred to. Assistant District Attorney James M. Smith, on learning of the mention of the anonymous letter relating to the alleged "split" of gambling money, immediately asked permission to appear before the Grand Jury yesterday.

James E. Smith Before Jury.

When Mr. Smith returned from the Grand Jury room late in the afternoon he said he had told the jurors that he was undoubtedly the man referred to in the letter as Assistant District Attorney, although the letter did not mention the Assistant's name. Mr. Smith asserted that the statements in the anonymous letter were absolutely absurd so far as he was concerned; that he knew that they were untrue so far as the newspaper man mentioned was concerned, and that he did not believe there was any truth in the letter so far as the ex-City Magistrate was concerned.

Mr. Smith said the reason for his confidence in refuting the assertion in the letter involving the newspaper man was based on the fact that this man was in Europe at the time that the particular gambling case was under consideration for prosecution. Mr. Smith suggested that a list of the numerous gambling raids he made, and which he followed up during the American war period by raids on all-night resorts, cabarets, disorderly characters and houses in the night-life sections of the city. It is believed that the anonymous letter has come from some such source.

When Mr. Smith suddenly ceased his gambling raids, and later abruptly stopped his other raids referred to, the cause for ending them was never made known.

Jury Asks Why Raids Stopped.

It was understood that the jury also had this phase of the matter under consideration yesterday, and had asked Smith for his own personal reason for discontinuing the raids in early November, 1918. It is understood that Smith told the jurors that he had conducted the raids chiefly as a co-operative effort in the aid of the Federal Government for the protection of soldiers and sailors, the war having ended, he had stopped the raids.

It was said that ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman and an ex-City Magistrate will both be invited to appear before the jury on Monday. It was supposed Mr. Whitman will be asked to tell something of the former raiding activities of Mr. Smith, when he served as an assistant in the administration of District Attorney Whitman. The gambler mentioned in the anonymous letter will be subpoenaed to appear.

The name of the gambler could not be learned from any Grand Jury source. The anonymous letter, it is believed, was written in March, 1919. It was recalled that a gambling case of some prominence began in January, 1919, and was not disposed of until the following June.

Two of Inspector Dominick Henry's detectives had been shot while engaged in a raid on an alleged crap game in a West Fifty-seventh Street house. Arnold Rothstein and nineteen others were arrested. Rothstein was indicted but the indictment was dismissed by Judge McIntyre in General Sessions, in June, who said that not a word of evidence had been produced to show that Rothstein had committed an assault on anybody. The assailants of the detectives were never arrested.

Talley Questioned by Jury.

Mr. Swann and Chief Assistant District Attorney A. J. Talley were in the Grand Jury room. It was said the jury went into another matter with Mr. Talley, asking him if he had ever been attorney for the Police Lieutenants' Association, or had acted as personal attorney for Police Commissioner Enright when the was contemplating a suit against a newspaper. Mr. Talley, after he had returned to his office, told reporters that he had never been counsel for the Commissioner, nor had he been attorney for any police organization.

The jury is supposed to reconvene on Monday, but it was said that a conference of the jurors had been called to meet this afternoon in the office of Raymond F. Almirall, the foreman, at 12 East Forty-sixth Street.

This conference, it was said, would probably determine if the jury shall go on and finish its investigations of public officials or offices.

WILL LET MARTENS TESTIFY.

Justice Department Officials Refute Contrary Statement by Soviet Agent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Confident that Ludwig C. A. K. Martens would be arrested soon, Department of Justice officials said today that the self-styled "Ambassador of Soviet Russia" would be allowed to testify before a Senate Foreign Relations sub-committee before steps to deport him were taken. A representative of Martens recently issued a statement that the Government would not let Martens testify for fear of possible revelations of the uses made of millions advanced by this country to the Russian Government. It is believed the "Ambassador" still is in Washington.

Assistant Attorney General Garvan has under consideration the question of providing a ship to deport the wives and children of men deported on the Buford.

Louvre Pays 700,000 Francs for Courbet's "L'Atelier"

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Gustave Courbet's noted painting "L'Atelier" (The Studio), symbolizing his whole work, has been acquired for the Louvre.

The painting was sold by the owner to a dealer for 600,000 francs. The dealer, with whom other dealers were acting, placed a price of 900,000 francs on it, and, in the hope that it would be retained in France, opened a public subscription for its purchase. There was much criticism of this proceeding, and there were many who advocated that the painting should be allowed to go to an American purchaser rather than that the Louvre should be forced to pay such a high price.

The criticism apparently was effective, and it was announced today that the Louvre, which had subscribed 550,000 francs, had acquired the picture for 700,000 francs.

SMITH SAYS G. O. P. IS RUN BY ANDERSON

"BIGGER MAN THAN SWEET"

Repeats That Republicans Are Not Bound by Platform to Support Eighteenth Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 8.—William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League and marshal of the dry forces at Albany seeking enforcement legislation to back up national prohibition, should be the Republican nominee for Governor, according to Governor Smith, who, commenting today on Anderson's criticism of his recommendation to the Legislature that the lawmakers rescind ratification of the national constitutional prohibition amendment and submit the question to the people for decision.

"Anderson is the biggest man in the Republican Party in point of influence on prohibition, that I can see," the Governor declared. "Prohibition is the biggest issue in the country, and Anderson is certainly leading the Republican Party in this State in its framing of legislation dealing with the liquor question.

"What Anderson said about me I leave to his conscience, if he has any, because he distorted the facts."

The anti-saloon head, according to the Governor, is a bigger man in the Republican Party than Speaker Sweet of the Assembly.

The Governor insisted on his statement made in his message that none of the Republican Senators had been elected on a ratification platform or pledged to uphold ratification of the prohibition amendment. He contends that the Democratic Party at its conference last Summer in Saratoga declared for a referendum on prohibition and added:

"Governor Whitman was defeated on the Republican platform which failed to make mention of prohibition and I was elected on the Democratic referendum platform."

Several of the Republican Senators since the receipt of the Governor's recommendations in his message have declared that they were elected on platforms calling for ratification.

"If that were true," the Governor asked, "why was it necessary for the Republicans to call a caucus to force legislation on ratifying the prohibition amendment? If it were true, as did Majority Leader Walters say that he never would have voted for prohibition except that he was dragged into and bound by a party caucus?"

Following the announcement that the Anti-Saloon League would attempt to force through the State Legislature a drastic enforcement measure, William H. Hirst, attorney for the New York State Brewers' Association and counsel for the Society of Restaurateurs of New York, stated yesterday that the State could "not enact such unreasonable and unwarranted legislation unless it is prepared to surrender its inherent police power and the jurisdiction which is given to it by the express terms of the Eighteenth Amendment."

"The Eighteenth Amendment, whether valid or not," said Mr. Hirst, "has conferred to direct the attention of the State of New York to the question of prohibition legislation. The said amendment purports to confer upon Congress and the States 'concurrent power' to enforce its prohibition by appropriate legislation. But the Congress has not availed of the alleged authority in the Federal Government to enact a harsh enforcement measure known as the Volstead bill which indiscriminately places intoxicating and non-intoxicating beverages in the same category by the establishment of an extreme and arbitrary standard.

"Neither the Congress nor the State Legislatures can, by means of an erroneous definition of the term 'intoxicating liquor,' extend their power beyond the limitations of the Eighteenth Amendment even if it be valid, so as to include non-intoxicating beverages. For this reason, it seems imperative that the Legislature of the State of New York should exercise its right to enact enforcement legislation which reasonably carries out the intent of the amendment and does not prohibit beverages clearly without its scope and beyond its reach."

BREWERS ASK INJUNCTION.

Providence Concerns Contend Their Product Is Non-Intoxicating.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 8.—An injunction to restrain officials in Rhode Island from interfering, under the National Prohibition Amendment, with "the manufacture and sale of non-intoxicating malt beverages" was asked in three bills of complaint filed in the United States District Court here today in behalf of three brewers.

The Eighteenth Amendment, the bills assert, is "wholly null and void," and the Volstead act is declared to be "unconstitutional and void and beyond the power of the Federal Government to enforce."

It is alleged that the malt liquors manufactured by the plaintiffs, although containing more than a half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, are nonintoxicating, and that a determination by Congress to the contrary is and would be erroneous and without any basis in fact.

The Eighteenth Amendment is declared to be null and void in that two-thirds of Congress did not deem any such amendment necessary and did not, by resolution or otherwise, declare that they deemed the same necessary, as required by Article 5 of the Constitution.

Bill Favors Liquor Sale on Ships.

BANKS HIS LIQUOR, BEGINS TEST SUIT

W. G. Street Seeks to Prevent Seizure of Drink in Safe Deposit Vault.

KEEPS IT FOR HIS OWN USE

Bachelor Says He Isn't Selling It, but Wants Ruling on His Rights.

GETS RESTRAINING ORDER

Federal Decision Would Aid Men Who Haven't Any Room at Home.

In obtaining a temporary restraining order in the Federal Court yesterday preventing agents of the Government from seizing his stock of liquor in safety deposit vaults, William G. Street, a Director of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, inaugurated proceedings to test the power of the Government to interfere with the storage of liquor, held for personal use of the owner, in safety deposit vaults.

For many years Mr. Street, who is a member of the Brook, Turf and Field and Racquet and Tennis Clubs and the Automobile Club of America, has maintained two rooms in the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company, 60 East Forty-second Street, where he has kept a choice store of wines and liquors. Recently he was notified that unless he removed the liquor by Jan. 31 it would be seized by Colonel Daniel L. Porter, Supervising Revenue Agent.

Through his counsel, Davies, Auerbach & Cornell, Mr. Street appeared before Judge Knox in the Federal Court yesterday and applied for a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction preventing Colonel Porter from taking charge of his stock of liquor. A temporary restraining order directing Colonel Porter to show cause why he should not be permanently restrained was signed by Judge Knox. Argument was set for Monday at 10:30 A. M. The value of the liquor exceeds $3,000, it was said.

"All I want is to continue keeping the liquor in the rooms," said Mr. Street when seen last night at the Racquet and Tennis Club. "I have had it there for a great many years and I want to continue keeping it there. The liquor is for my own personal use. I am a bachelor and have no room for it in my home.

"I am certainly not in the liquor business and I would be willing to register the liquor with the Government to prove that I am not selling it. I see no reason why a man can't have his own liquor in a safety deposit vault. All I want to do is to find out what the Government has to say about it. I want a ruling on my rights in the matter. No other phase of the prohibition law interests me."

In part Mr. Street's complaint says:

"The complainant desires and intends to continue these wines and liquors in the rooms of which he is lessee, and intends on or before Jan. 26, 1920, to report to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue the kind and amount of said liquors in his possession, but with the accompanying declaration that said liquors are held and possessed by him lawfully under the National Prohibition act for his own use.

"And the complainant further alleges that the meaning of the National Prohib

Federation Objects to Rice Memorial Stadium or Any Other Building on Reservoir Site.

ANOTHER LOCATION ASKED

Committee to Confer with a View to Finding a Suitable Spot for Memorial.

Opposition to recurrent attempts to invade the city's parks with new building schemes, and particularly to placing in Central Park the projected Isaac L. Rice memorial stadium, crystallized last night at a meeting of the Fine Arts Federation, at 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, at which representative artists, architects, sculptors and landscape architects from the art societies which make up the federation adopted and passed resolutions decrying the attempt to take away park space for buildings.

The federation, in its resolution, provided for the appointment of a committee to seek a conference with the Rice Memorial Committee "with a view to finding an appropriate location for the admirable gift to the city which the committee is considering."

Arnold W. Brunner, President of the federation, who is an architect, said that with the city's increasing population the need for park space had become greater.

"Every building cuts down the size of the park," he said. "The abandoning of the two small reservoirs in the Park would add thirty-eight acres to the meadow lands. This additional space should be used for park purposes and not for buildings, which, while they may have very worthy purposes, should not be in the parks."

"We must make the people see that an open meadow is just as integral a part of the design and just as important to the effect of the whole as the stair hall in the Library is to the building," said Charles Downing Lay, landscape architect.

"But the people who see no beauty in the Park and always feel that it is waste space are ready with their plans for using it," he continued. "Mr. Hastings has proposed the MacMonnies fountain as a memorial to Mayor Mitchel, and now Mrs. Rice and Messrs. Morris and Robertson propose a playground, stadium, &c. Their views seem a little narrow. Is it their desire to add to the beauty of the city, to increase the pleasure of living here? We judge that the site has not been selected as the best in the city and that either scheme will gladly be offered for some other location.

"It is perfectly apparent that the reservoir site is very nearly the worst possible for a stadium to seat 20,000 people. It is one-quarter of a mile from either subway, has no car lines nearer than one long block, and is reached only by a narrow transverse road. All who use it must enter at one gate.

"Let us who love and enjoy the Park because it is not waste space, but full of beauty and sensual delight, join in finding some other more convenient place for these admirable features which we, too, are ready to give, and for which we feel the need as keenly as any one. We want all this and more for New York. But we who know and love the Park want more of it, not less."

The American Society of Landscape Architects, discussed the matter at last night's meeting, has taken independent action with regard to the threatened park encroachment. In resolutions recently adopted the Mayor and the Board of Estimate were urged to appropriate funds for the removal of the reservoirs and the construction of a new meadow on the site.

BISHOP GAILOR ON UNREST.

Says Andrew Jackson's Principles and Education Will Solve Problem.

The Tennessee Society in New York last night honored Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, recently elected President of the Council of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church, at a Jackson Day dinner held in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Bishop Gailor, who spoke on the career of Andrew Jackson, expressed his conviction that the methods adopted by "Old Hickory" in tackling the problems of that period would work equally as well in solving "the first great crisis of the American Republic, namely, the great unrest circulating about the nation at present." It was not merely the battle of New Orleans that the society was commemorating, he declared, but a splendid exhibition of unselfish courage and determination, which was a glory to Tennessee and Kentucky as well as to the whole nation.

Applying the principles of President Jackson to the present day Bishop Gailor declared that we should remember that an ignorant electorate was a menace to the Republic and the most cruel of all tyrannies was the tyranny of an illiberal and fanatical majority. Our first need, therefore, was education, universal and compulsory, he believed.

Bishop Gailor concluded by saying that never before had the average of American citizenship measured up to a higher standard of intelligence and patriotism than in the last two years. With this in mind he was not afraid if there appeared to be unrest throughout the land.

MODEL SUES FOR $50,000.

Widow in Breach of Promise Suit Insists on Young Jurors.

Mrs. Margaret De Pataky, widow of about thirty-five, who is a model at a Fifty Avenue gown store of this city and who lives in a fashionable uptown apartment, wants $50,000 from Seth W. Fox, a business man and politician of Sparkill, Rockland County, N. Y., for alleged breach of promise to marry. Just before the close of court before Justice Van Siclen in the Queens County Supreme Court at Long Island City last evening a jury was selected to try her suit.

Mrs. De Pataky, who has dark hair and black, sparkling eyes, wears glasses and was dressed in a stylish gray suit and wore a close-fitting hat of scarlet feathers. While the jury was being selected the suit by her attorney, Joseph A. Ferrara, made objections to the acceptance of men past middle life for the jury. Nearly half of the jurors selected are young men.

Fox was in court with his wife, whom he married in February, 1918. He is about 40 years old. He is represented by Attorney Julius W. Catalbas, and he made an effort to get old men on the jury.

FIND $50,000 SILK IN BOAT.

Police Arrest Four After Discovery in Sinking Launch.

From a motor boat which was sinking in the North River because overloaded the police of Guttenburg and West New York yesterday recovered silk which they estimated worth $50,000. Four men are held pending investigation. They are Thomas O'Brien of 455 Thirty-third Street, North Bergen, and Florent Donovan of Manhattan, who were found in a rowboat near the power boat, and George Klein of 216 East Seventy-ninth Street, Manhattan, and John Fisher of 255 Charlotte Street, Yonkers. The last two were arrested on a pier in West New York, where they were waiting with a truck.

An inquiry was started at once to find the owners of the silk and an effort is being made to learn if it was any part of a consignment stolen from the French Line piers.

The Broncho Billy Follies.

FRIVOLITIES OF 1920, a revue in two acts and seventeen scenes. Music and lyrics by William B. Friedlander, Harry Archer, and Tom Johnstone; dialogue by William Anthony Maguire. At the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Principals: Nan Halperin, Henry Lewis, Nellie and Sara Koune, Ames and Winthrop, Mignon, Doraldina, Edward Gallagher, Joseph Roiley, Barr Twins, Tom Nip, Charles O'Brien, Frank Davis, Belle Darnell, Glenn and Jenkins, Zelda Santley, and John Flynn.

With an ominous program line that reads "The first of an annual series" Broncho Billy Anderson charged into the musical show business last evening at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre. His production is "The Frivolities of 1920," an elaborate, long and dismyingly expensive concoction, which may be said to leave Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., still serene and unruffled as the world's foremost producer of this sort of entertainment.

Perhaps, however, it is not only unfair but misleading to compare "The Frivolities" with "The Follies," although it does take a few familiar leaves from the Ziegfeld book, for the Anderson production reaches lower levels of vulgarity and laborious coarseness than are yet familiar to the mere patrons of Broadway theatres. Despite its wealth in pretty girls and its prodigality of setting and costumes, it would be unfair to treat it except by the standards of the older and lower forms of out-of-the-way burlesque houses.

One Henry Lewis, in the rough and hasty way of such classifications, must be described as the comedian of the company. His quips are often of the unprintable variety, but a fair sample of the more innocent fun afforded is the following screamingly funny line:

"I will now sing the Cavalier's Rusty Canoper from the Shirt Tails of Hoffmann."

Some modest dancing by the Barr sisters and some marvelous gymnastics by Tom Nip and his partner, who, scorning the chance to be called Charles Tuck, is named Charles O'Brien, are the most creditable specialties of the program, which also includes a burlesque of the second act of "Scandal." If the author of that sedulously suggestive comedy thought he was being a bit bold when he wrote it, it would be interesting to see his expression of frustration on witnessing what they have done to it in "The Frivolities of 1920."

FOUR NEW PLAYS COMING.

Included Are "The Ruined Lady," with Grace George, and "Pietro."

Four new plays were announced yesterday to come into New York during the week of Jan. 19. Grace George will be seen at the Playhouse in "The Ruined Lady," a comedy by Frances Nordstrom; Otis Skinner will be seen at the Criterion Theatre in "Pietro," by Maud Skinner and Jules Eckert Goodman; the Little Theatre, which has been remodeled, will be reopened with "Mama's Affairs," a comedy by Rachel Barton Butler, and "Big Game," a melodrama by Willard Robertson and Kilbourn Gordon, will be produced here on Jan. 20, at a theatre yet to be announced.

Laurette Taylor in "One Night in Rome," now at the Criterion, will continue her New York run at the George M. Cohan, and Elsie Janis, after a short rest, will go on tour. To make room for Miss George at the Playhouse, "For the Defense," will be moved to the Morosco Theatre, and "Civilian Clothes" will be sent on the road.

In the cast of "Mama's Affairs," which comes to the Little Theatre, will be Effie Shannon, Robert Edeson, Katherine Kaelred, Amelia Bingham, Ida St. Leon, George Le Guere, and Little Billy. "Big Game," the Robertson-Gordon drama to be presented on Jan. 20, was recently added on the road under the title of "When a Man's a Man."

The removal of "One Night in Rome" from the Criterion Theatre to the Cohan will be necessitated by the change of ownership of the New York Theatre Block, which will then pass into the hands of the Famous Players-Lasky Company.

BOSTON SYMPHONY PLAYS.

Monteux Conducts a Fine Performance of Brahms and Wagner.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, in its third visit of the season, gave cause for rejoicing to its friends at Carnegie Hall last night, first by a beautiful performance of Brahms's C-minor symphony, led by the French conductor, Pierre Monteux, and second, both in this work and in Wagner's "Parsifal" prelude, by a superb quality of strings, which defied a night of soft, soggy weather. After the symphony Mr. Monteux rightly beckoned the band to rise with him in acknowledging the applause.

In the "Parsifal" music, of which a dramatic revival is pending, it is certain no finer sonorities have been attained during the recent years of little Wagner; the conductor took two recalls before the house insisted on having the whole orchestra stand again. Before Wagner's prelude came Gluck's to "Iphigenia in Aulis," and after it Liszt's intended diabolic dance, the "Mephisto Waltz," composed for a village tavern scene in Lenau's "Faust."

ETHEL FRANK SINGS.

Gives New French Songs, with Aid of Boston Orchestra Players.

Ethel Frank won a "first" audience yesterday in Aeolian Hall as few newcomers do in a season. She is a lyric soprano from Boston and the visiting orchestra of that town furnished the twelve string and wind players, led by Georges Longy, who with Mary Shaw Swain, pianist, accompanied Miss Frank's array of new French songs. It must be a chameleon voice that follows the tone colors of Erlanger's "La Nuit dans l'Isba," with its shimmer of flute, clarinet, bassoon, violins, viola, four muted 'cellos and tom-tom. This the singer did, as well as Rhené-Baton's "La Mort des Amants," while Erlanger's "Carnival" was encored before the assisting players could leave the stage.

There were but two English pieces, in old style, one with upward scales well sung; a weakness of diction was atoned in "My Lovely Celia" for final encore.

Augusta Cottlow, Pianist, Plays.

Augusta Cottlow performed a service to musicians last night by giving her concert in Aeolian Hall without a "free" ticket; a pianist of established ability, she invited those who would hear her to come and buy. It may have taken courage to face an auditorium in which the seats were in readiness on one side of the house having a view of the keyboard, without the usual professional friends in the "family" pews, but there was a reward of courteous attention and musical appreciation. Miss Cottlow played in an interesting manner Beethoven's A major sonata, Op. 101; also some Chopin, the "Carnival" of Schumann, a manuscript dirge by S. Walter Krebs, and a Russian dance by Liapounow.

"Faust" Sung to a Big Audience.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

In the cast of "The Great Illusion," Avery Hopwood's adaptation of Sacha Guitry's play, will be Georges Flateau, Gail Kane, Gertrude Vanderbilt, Ernest Lambart, Frederick Graham, Blythe Allenby, and Fannie Albright.

Helen Curry has been engaged for "The Lost Soul," in which Theda Bara will be starred.

Mikael Fokine and Vera Fokina will give their second and final dance recital in New York at the Hippodrome on Sunday night, Jan. 18.

"The Sweetheart Shop," by Anna Caldwell and Hugo Felix, will be produced in Baltimore next Monday night.

STEAMER ST. LOUIS BURNS AT HOBOKEN

KROONLAND BARELY SAVED

450 Workmen Aboard St. Louis Escape, but Two Are Overcome —$1,000,000 Loss.

The American Line steamship St. Louis, which served as the transport Louisville during the war, was seriously damaged by fire late yesterday afternoon while in the yard of the W. & A. Fletcher Marine Works at Hoboken. For weeks a gang of workmen have been busy in the interior of the vessel converting her from a troop ship into a modern passenger liner. When the fire was discovered the 450 men at work below decks had difficulty in getting out. Two were burned and overcome with smoke.

At midnight the ship took a bad list and settled against the Kroonland. But the boats standing nearby kept playing streams of water upon the Kroonland and she did not take fire, though her sides were scorched.

The seacocks were opened a short time before the ship listed against the Kroonland. The whole interior of the ship is gutted, and at the pier it was said the damage to the ship would be close to $1,000,000.

The fire started in the main dining saloon, where a number of men were at work. It was said that an acetylene torch exploded, setting fire to the cabin fittings. The flames spread rapidly and the workmen sounded an alarm. This was relayed from man to man until it reached the gangs at work on the ship's bottom. By the time the last of them had fled from the smoke filled hull the flames were sweeping through the saloon and the superstructure. Ribbons of flame shot skyward and the glare of the fire attracted thousands of spectators.

Three alarms were sounded and the York City Department sent the fireboat Thomas B. Willett. The Lackawanna placed its fire-fighting equipment at the disposal of Hoboken and sent its fireboats, Washington, Newark, Orange, and Montclair. Alongside the St. Louis was the steamship Kroonland. For a time the firemen had to direct most of their efforts to prevent the fire spreading to her. As soon as it was seen she was in danger tugs got a line to the Kroonland, but it was found impossible to haul her out because of the low tide.

Even before the last man had scrambled off the burning vessel the yard authorities began the work of checking them up. It was reported late last night that a workman named Murdock had not been accounted for, but it was believed that he had escaped and gone home without turning in his time. Two plumbers who were working in the saloon when the fire was discovered were overcome by smoke. They were Edward Donaldson of 260 First Street, Hoboken, and Edward Downey of 227 Griffith Street, Jersey City. They were taken to Christ Hospital.

The St. Louis had been in the yard about six weeks. She had been practically stripped of her cabin accommodations in order to carry troops and the workmen who fled yesterday from the fire were engaged in refitting and redecorating her. An official of the Fletcher Company said last night that it was impossible now to accurately estimate the damage. At the time he spoke it was thought that the fire was under control. Later it blazed up again and the fire fighters had to redouble their efforts. When the fire was finally controlled it did not look as though there was more than the shell of the liner left. It will not be until it has cooled off that the firemen can go into the interior.

OSBORNE COURTS INQUIRY.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 8.—"Everything that goes on is open to all persons, there is nothing to conceal," said Lieutenant Commander Thomas Mott Osborne, in charge of the naval prison here today, replying to reports of irregularities, immorality among the prisoners and laxity of officials.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt will visit the prison Monday, Jan. 19, and special significance is attached to his coming at this time.

Lieutenant Commander Osborne denied that any "charges" had been brought against him, as reported.

"You can go into the prison and see anything you want to see," he told a reporter. "Talk with any of the boys, ask them any questions you like, look into every nook and corner. There is nothing to conceal. It is an open book."

Referring to a statement made in The Army and Navy Journal, he said: "My resignation had been in the hands of the Navy Department some time. When I learned of the charges I immediately withdrew my resignation and asked that the fullest investigation be made."

ENGINEERS VOTE DEMANDS.

Want 6-Day Week, 8-Hour Day, and 30 Per Cent. Advance.

Three thousand members of Local 670 International Brotherhood of Steam Engine Operators and Engineers, voted yesterday to demand a six-day week, an eight-hour day, and a 30 per cent. increase in wages, before Jan. 16, when another mass meeting will be held to determine action in case the demands are refused.

A strike would affect hotels, office buildings, theatres, apartment houses, and other buildings where steam is in use.

At the headquarters, 310 West Forty-seventh Street, it was said last night that in the event of a strike the firemen and coal teamsters are expected to strike in sympathy.

The firemen held a series of meetings yesterday, the largest of which was at 311 East Forty-fifth Street, presided over by former Coroner Timothy Healy, who is President of the International Union of Firemen, and voted to demand a 30 per cent. increase in wages, effective before Jan. 16.

Gillespie Made Enright's Secretary.

Police Commissioner Enright, who denied yesterday a report that he had resigned or intended to, appointed as his secretary, to replace John C. Hackett, resigned, William Gillespie of 2,115 Beverly Road, Brooklyn. Mr. Gillespie has been secretary of the Police Department for a year. During 1918 he was secretary to Second Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Lahey, head of the Detective Bureau.

VOLCANIC ERUPTION KILLS 200 MEXICANS

Small, Apparently Extinct Crater Near Cordoba Bursts in Twain, Emitting Lava Flood.

EARTHQUAKE TOLL RISING

Epidemic Over Large Territory Now Feared—Rivers Disappear, Leaving Land Without Water.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8.—A violent volcanic eruption has been caused by the recent earthquake near Cordoba, where Cero de San Miguel, a small and apparently extinct volcano, has been burst in twain. The new crater is throwing out smoke, ashes and flame, while lava is flooding the nearby territory in a stream more than 200 yards wide, resulting in not less than 200 deaths.

Dispatches from Vera Cruz today give some details of the catastrophe. Every nearby eminence in this district has been leveled. Scores of worshippers in the churches of Ahuihuixtla and Tres Aguas were buried beneath the ruins. Great gaps in the earth appeared at San Francisco de la Penas, San Carlos and Agostadero.

Vera Cruz confirms the earlier report that the village of Ixhuatan was completely destroyed.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8.—The earthquake caused greater damage in the State of Vera Cruz than was at first reported. Advices this afternoon say a large part of a district covering over 300 miles square has been ruined. Rolling plains near the Gulf where formerly roamed thousands of head of cattle are now barren. The rivers which watered the ranges and farm lands are dry or have disappeared through large openings. Cattle searching for water found new pools of sulphur water which caused instant death.

The condition of the people is frightful. They are without water or food.

Near Teocolo a large mountain slipped into the lake used by the inhabitants for the village water supply, rendering the supply useless.

The majority of villages where there is the greatest suffering are in the territory of the rebels under Felix Diaz. The rebels cannot give help, which is possible only through the Federal Government. General Candido Aguilar has left Cordoba at the head of strong forces to drive the rebels out of this region and give assistance.

The greatest danger is that the large number of victims still buried under the ruins of churches and private houses in the hot country will cause a serious epidemic, possibly yellow fever, without water or medicines. The situation of those living in this district is desperate. The danger is not only to the entire State of Vera Cruz, but through spread of an epidemic, to the entire country.

Latest reports state that there are 2,000 wounded in the three towns of Teocolo, San Juan Coxcomatepec and Coxulian. The dead can only be estimated at 8,000.

GIRL, 15, PRISONER ALL HER LIFE IN HALLROOM

Rescue, by Aid of Priest, Reveals Remarkable Story of Mysterious Family.

The Rev. Philip J. Magrath, pastor of St. Brigid's Roman Catholic Church, 119 Avenue B, last night told how 15-year-old Harriet Seres, who had been kept a prisoner in her home, a hall room, at 101 Third Avenue, where she lived with her mother and father since her birth, was rescued.

Last Sunday afternoon Father Magrath said a woman who said she was Miss Charlotte Mann of 1,024 Lorimer Street, Brooklyn, called to see him. She told him that a patrolman had advised her to acquaint him with her story, which was to the effect that she was a cousin of Mrs. Margaret Seres of 101 Third Avenue, that conditions in the latter's home were alarming, and that a 15-year-old daughter was being kept a prisoner in the one room in which the father, mother, and child lived. She said that she had been refused admittance to the home, and that she believed Mrs. Seres was the victim of a strange influence. The Seres family, she asserted, did the cooking, washing, and sleeping in the one dark, unventilated room.

She said that formerly she was allowed to see Mrs. Seres only in the presence of the latter's mother-in-law, who, she said, occupied a whole floor upstairs in the house. The visits would be made in the parlor of Mrs. Seres's mother-in-law's home.

She said that on one visit Harriet, attired in shabby clothes, ran into the room and said:

"Grandmother, can I stay here a little while? It is very cold in there."

On another occasion, said Mrs. Mann, she asked Mrs. Seres if she was in want.

"Yes," Mrs. Seres replied. "I would like to have food."

Only once, Miss Mann continued, had the girl been in the street. That time, she said, the child told her she saw a man, and, frightened by the sight, ran back into her home. She said she had never seen a stranger man before.

Father Magrath told Miss Mann that the case was out of his parish limits, and he referred her to Father W. J. Simot of St. Ann's Church, 112 East Twelfth Street. Father Sinnot went to the Seres home twice and each time was refused admittance. He then communicated with the Welfare Bureau of the Police Department and asked that Mrs. Margaret O'Neil, a policewoman attached to the First Inspection District, be assigned to investigate.

Mrs. O'Neil was assigned to the case. She went to Brooklyn and interviewed Miss Mann. Then, with another policewoman, she sought to enter the Seres home. She tried twice and failed each time. Following this she reported the case to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Thomas A. Burns, a agent of the society, and those whom he sent to the Seres home, forced an entrance and the girl was found in a corner. She was taken to the society's rooms.

After the hearing in the Children's Court, Justice Levy characterized the case as "one of the most unusual that has ever come before me."

To the Justice's question as to how old she was, the girl replied, "Fifteen," and when he asked her whether she could add or subtract, she showed no understanding whatever of the question. He asked her to repeat the alphabet and she recited it as far as the letter "s" and said she knew no more of it. She told the Justice that she could spell two words, "cat" and "dog," and seemed proud of her slender knowledge.

The child was placed in custody of the Children's Society and the mother was put in the ward of the psycopathic clinic attached to the Children's Society, for observation. Justice Levy said that the Children's Society intended making a thorough investigation of the case.

GAS KILLS 14 IN WEEK.

Large Number of Accidental Deaths Attributed to Cold Weather.

Since the first of the year there have been fourteen deaths from accidental gas poisoning in Manhattan and Brooklyn, according to the figures of the Medical Examiners of the two boroughs. These cases, together with the large number of gas accidents which have not resulted in death, are attributed by city and gas company officials to the unusually cold weather of the last week, coupled with difficulty householders are having in obtaining sufficient heat.

Reports that the gas accidents were due to lowering of the pressure or a change of quality in the gas supply were denied by the Public Service Commission and gas company officials. It was said that 90 per cent. of the casualties were caused by defective gas appliances or carelessness in handling gas fixtures.

Dr. W. H. Guilfoy of the Health Department said yesterday that he was of the opinion that many of the so-called illuminating gas accidents were really suicidal. He said that in 1917 there were 308 deaths attributed to suicide and 524 recorded as accidents; in 1918, 305 suicides against 523 accidental deaths. The Medical Examiner's records show that there were 17 accidental deaths from gas in Manhattan in October, 24 in November, and 27 in December.

SAYS OIL MEN WON'T PAY.

Cabrera Reports Combined Opposition to Duties.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 7.—Petroleum producers in the Tampito district have formed a combination pledged not to pay recent duties on oil, fixed by Presidential decree, according to Luis Cabrera, Secretary of the Treasury, interviews with whom were printed here today.

"This is the only contribution levied by the Treasury Department that must be paid before the oil leaves Mexico," the Secretary is quoted as saying. "If it is not paid exportation can be prevented, and is international friction should result Mexico would have right on her side."

PUTS ARMISTICE DAY LOSSES UP TO STAFF

DENOUNCES "TRIUMVIRATE"

Tells House Sub-Committee Corps Commanders Were in "Piteous Fear" of "Gang" at Chaumont.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Lives of American troops were needlessly sacrificed on armistice morning because the American High Command did not specifically revoke previously issued orders to attack, Brig. Gen. John H. Sherburne of Boston, former commander of the Artillery Brigade of the 92d (negro) Division, told a House sub-committee today. General Sherburne condemned strongly the methods of what he referred to as the "General Staff gang" at Chaumont, criticising particularly a "dominating triumvirate."

Corps, division, and brigade commanders stood in such "piteous fear" of the Chaumont staff that they did not dare, in most cases, to revoke on their own authority the orders to attack on Nov. 11, even though they knew to a moral certainty that an armistice had been signed.

"The order to attack stood," said General Sherburne, "and the only other order that came through relative to Armistice Day operations that I ever knew of was an order that 'at 11 A. M., Nov. 11, all hostilities must cease.' No commanding officer could possibly have interpreted that as a cancellation of the previous order calling for an attack during the morning of the 11th. Most units fought right up to 11 o'clock, some of them against machine gun operations. A few commanding officers did risk court-martial and held back, but they did so entirely on their own responsibility."

The General Staff system, General Sherburne declared, dominating the entire army and kept commanding officers from corps commanders down in perpetual fear of being sent to the rear in disgrace.

Says Men Were Horrified at Slaughter.

"So horrified were my men and those of other American commands near us at the needless attacks of the morning of Nov. 11, and the consequent loss of life, that they did not enter into the general celebration of the signing of the armistice," General Sherburne said. "It was said freely at the time that some one had blundered and that there must some day be an investigation."

Asked if corps and division commanders would not have been justified in disregarding the orders, General Sherburne said that while some officers did refuse to send their men to the attack, the majority "so piteously feared the all-powerful triumvirate at Chaumont and the entire General Staff gang there that they dared not risk court-martial by evading in any particular the attack orders."

The witness said he did not refer to Generals Pershing, Liggett or Bullard when he spoke of the "General Staff triumvirate at Chaumont." The only officer he named was Brigadier General Fox Conner, Chief of Operations.

No British troops, except a few Canadians, attacked on Armistice Day, General Sherburne declared, adding that both the French and British were horrified at the "reckless disregard" for human life shown by the American commanders.

Young officers, graduates of West Point, and of the army staff colleges at Leavenworth and Langres, France, who were attached to the General Headquarters Staff at Chaumont were compared by General Sherburne to children who, having a toy they knew would be taken away from them within one or two days, made the most of it for the short time left.

"They treated the problems of war more like a game of checkers or football," he said, "than situations involving the lives of men."

Declaring his belief that for the benefit of future American soldiers responsibility should be placed for the attacks of armistice morning, General Sherburne said that in every case where guilt was proved, immediate dismissal from the service should result.

Accurate figures on American losses on Nov. 11 should be obtainable at the War Department, the General told the committee, but members informed him that efforts to obtain these figures had been without result.

CHAMPIONS ELECTRIC LINES

Senator Harding Says Public Should Treat Labor and Capital Alike.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—United States Senator Harding took up the cudgels for the electric railways of the country in an address at the meeting here today of the American Electric Railway Association.

"There were some very severe and wholly undeserved penalties on patriotic service during the war period, and they are still applied in its fevered aftermath," said the Senator. "But I know of none worse penalized than the electric railway lines of the country. We know they served with splendid zeal and sacrificing devotion. The natural inference was that they shared in the reward for service. But they sustained the heavy burden, and not only shared no reward as was given so generously to big and little business, but were penalized worse than aliens suspected of aiding the enemy.

"It was this demand for uninterrupted service in spite of wage disputes that led the Federal Government to impose the supreme outrage of the war on those who struggled in highest fidelity. Sixty-two companies, with 6,000 miles of railway, surrendered to receiverships before the conscience of municipal authority awakened to the ruin wrought in neglected Federal fairness. A thousand miles more were utterly abandoned, dismantled, and junked.

"I doubt the solution that lies in public ownership. It is well established that public ownership merely ignores the pennies in the pocket of the people to draw the dollars from an impersonal public treasury. I believe in strictest regulation, without conflicting authority, because all public utilities must yield to the voice of public interest. But the same power that protects the public must protect the public servant, whether that servant is capital or the workmen who operate.

"If I have read aright, fully 75 per cent. of the cost of operation goes to wages. The men deserve to be well paid. Most of the increased awards the public has approved. But the public ought to pay precisely as it approves, because justice is not a favor to one, it is the right of all."

DEMAND RISING WITH PRICE.

Gov. Harding of Reserve Board Gives Advice on Cutting Living Cost.

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, speaking today before the Massachusetts Bankers' Association, said that advancing prices served to stimulate rather than to check the demand and that the evident necessity for conserving essential commodities known to be scarce failed to curtail consumption. As 1919 progressed, he said, bank loans and deposits increased, and reserves declined. While the value of raw materials and of manufactured articles produced during the year was the greatest in the history of the country, the physical volume proved to be smaller than in any year since 1916.

Outlining the future policy of the Reserve Board, Governor Harding said:

"First consideration will be given to the industrial and commercial requirements of the country, and everything possible will be done to restore the proper balance between the volume of credit and the volume of goods. The process will necessarily be a gradual one, and can be completed only when very considerable redemptions of bonds have been made and the remainder thoroughly absorbed by the public."

"During this transition period there should be an effective control of credits, gradual liquidation, and such temporary expansion only as may be necessary to meet seasonable requirements or emergencies. There should be a less lavish but more efficient use of capital and credit, extravagance should be discouraged in every way possible, and the production of essential commodities increased.

"In order for the populations of European countries to get back to work and to produce the things needed for their own support and for exchange with other nations, it is necessary that we should send them the raw materials, commodities and equipment which they need so urgently. In order to send commodities to Europe we must have commodities available, for we cannot send abroad what we consume here.

"With every appeal to aid Europe attention should be called to the necessity for voluntary restriction of domestic consumption in order that we may have an adequate exportable surplus. The domestic demand has been competing with export demands, and the result has been that prices have been bid up on both foreign and domestic consumers."

SAYS STOKES USES DRUGS.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes related to Juvenile Judge B. B. Lindsey today how her husband, W. E. D. Stokes of New York, talked to her, their two small children, and men and women guests of "social affairs" he had witnessed.

"He got our little boy and girl, 5 and 3, to saying vile things he had related," she said.

Mrs. Stokes, living here with her mother, was testifying in a suit she brought for the custody of their children.

Mr. Stokes's attorneys contend that the Denver court has no jurisdiction over the children, that both Stokes and Mrs. Stokes live legally in New York and that the children come under the custody of the New York court. Mr. Stokes's attorneys said that Stokes is now paying his wife $1,500 per month for the support of herself and the two children and that they contend that as this sum is said to be inadequate for her maintenance and that she must rely on outside help to get sufficient clothing that she should not have the children.

COL. HARVEY AGAIN ATTACKS HAPGOOD

Gives Letter to a Banker Inquiring About Credits for the Soviet Government.

SAYS IT WAS REFUSED

Statement Printed Purporting to be of French Secret Service Saying "Hapgood Is Designated as Garmanophile."

Colonel George Harvey renews his attack on Norman Hapgood, ex-Minister from the United States to Denmark, in the current issue of Harvey's Weekly, offering a letter to prove that the former diplomat was negotiating with bankers in the interest of Soviet Russia before he sailed from this country to assume his duties at Copenhagen.

While Mr. Hapgood in his reply said that he had been invited to dinner at the City Club and had met seven officials of the Guaranty Trust Company, where "the conversation covered world trade," Colonel Harvey asserts that it was Hapgood who sought this interview with the bankers. The letter, asserted by Colonel Harvey to have been sent to Vice President Willis Booth of the Guaranty Trust Company, is as follows:

2,680 Broadway,
New York, April 9, 1919.

Dear Mr. Booth—I inclose a clipping which you have probably already seen from this morning's Times. If it is not too much trouble to you, I should like very much to know whether contracts with the Soviet Government itself based on credits established in neutral banks, with the deposit referred to, would not avoid the danger referred to last night, growing out of the absence of private property in Russia. You will notice that the statement given out declares that the Government itself is the only possible purchasing agency in Russia. Yours sincerely,

NORMAN HAPGOOD.

"Mr. Hapgood denies," Colonel Harvey says, "that he used the American Legation at Copenhagen as a trading post for the Soviet Government. As to that, we cannot say. If he did not there was one very good reason why. The New York bankers, whose trading co-operation he sought, would not go in with him. Whether later in Paris, where he was an object of particular interest to the French Secret Service, he tried to enlist others in the undertaking, we have not yet ascertained."

Colonel Harvey presents two documents, which purport to be French Secret Service reports on Mr. Hapgood, the latest of which is as follows:

Paris, July 24, 1919.

a-3 Hapgood, Norman.

Norman Hapgood, American subject. Born in Chicago (United States), March 28, 1868, of Charles and Fanny Fowers, journalist, former editor in chief of Harpers Weekly Magazine, left New York on April 21, 1915, in order to visit the French trenches. Hapgood returned immediately after to the United States.

A trace of Hapgood was again found on the 11th of October, 1917, at which date he was living alone up to Dec. 15 of the same year, in Paris, 15 rue Boissy d'Anglais. He lived also at the Hotel Regina, 2 Place ruvoli, from the 28th of March to the 30th of April, 1918.

Since that date, it is not known what became of him, and no trace was found of the deliverance of a passport in his name, at the Farmers Loan and Trust Bank, established at Paris, 41 Boulevard Haussmann, of which Hapgood is a client, they know no other residence than that of the Hotel Regina.

Hapgood is designated as Germanophile. He is not recorded as having been forced to leave.

Dealing with the official explanations that Mr. Hapgood was not forced to resign because of disclosures concerning him, but that he had tendered his resignation in order to feel free to make a reply, Colonel Harvey asserts that the date of the alleged tender of his resignation is several days prior to the publication of the charges. The article adds:

"It remains only to add that Mr. Hapgood began this New Year happily with an interview, published appropriately in the socialist Call, explaining his expert, superior view that both Lenin and Trotzky are sincere, as men go, although of the two Lenin's mind seems to me to be far more interesting, constructive and alive to the complexities of civilization."

"Well, he ought to know.

"But enough! We are through with Hapgood and his opinions of the relative merits of the two worst scoundrels and greatest murderers the world has ever produced, for whose government a of stricken Russia he bought the aid of American citizens."

Follow the lead of those who know

No intelligent person will deny the existence of the disease germ and its menace to humanity.

In the light of modern knowledge, no properly informed person will deny that sanitation which includes reliable disinfection is about the best weapon with which to prevent and fight communicable disease.

The important thing for the layman to decide is, what is the dependable disinfectant.

He cannot decide from his own knowledge, but he can follow the lead of those who know.

Lysol Disinfectant

is used in big hospitals everywhere to prevent disease from running riot within its precincts. Lysol is the favorite disinfectant of the medical profession. Boards of health urgently recommend its use in home, office, store, and factory.

The constant, systematic use of Lysol to disinfect sinks, drains, toilets, garbage cans, cuspidors, and dark, sunless corners will keep these disease-breeding places absolutely germ-proof.

A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant; a 25c bottle makes 2 gallons.

Lysol Toilet Soap
Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream
Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The southwestern disturbance is central tonight over Tennessee in moderate form and rains and snows continued generally in the Ohio Valley and the Southwest and rains in the Gulf and Atlantic States except Florida. There were also light local snows in the lake region and the extreme Northwest. Elsewhere the weather was fair, with continued high pressure throughout the West.

It is much warmer in the South Atlantic States and Alabama and much colder westward through Texas. It is also colder in the Central States, the upper lake region and the Plains States and slightly warmer in the extreme Northwest.

Post Office Notice.

Postmaster Patten has invited attention to the following announcement:

Parcels will be received destined for prisoners of war of all nations who are in prison camps in Siberia.

Parcels containing articles of merchandise acceptable in the domestic mail service, other than perishable foodstuffs, will be received, up to a weight limit of fifteen pounds, at the postage rate of 12 cents a pound or fraction of a pound, under the conditions hereinafter indicated.

Parcels must be substantially packed and strongly wrapped to insure contents being received in destination in good condition; be addressed to the prisoner for whom intended at the particular prison camp in Siberia, and bear in addition the words: "Care of Danish Vice Consul, Vladivostok, Siberia, via San Francisco." No further transmission beyond Vladivostok is to be provided for by the department.

Parcels cannot be registered, insured, nor sent c. o. d., and need not have customs declaration attached nor have their covers marked with the number of any special export license.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Recede and Recover Under Indifferent Trading—Call Money 6 Per Cent.

Yesterday's stock market was a repetition of Wednesday's, the lack of public interest being disclosed in aimless price movements which represented the in and out operations of professional traders. Considering the trading list broadly, the bearish element had the better of it. At the close of business fractional declines predominated, with larger recessions noted here and there among the motor, petroleum and other industrial issues. Railroad stocks participated only to a small degree, but where net changes of quotations were recorded in final dealings they were chiefly on the downward side. Dealings in rail shares have been inclined to contract this week, one reason being, presumably, the indication supplied in meetings of railroad managers at Washington that differences of opinion existed among them as to the advisability of including some sort of earnings guarantee in the statute now being prepared by the conference committee. Director General Hines's discussion of legislative needs for the carriers, as presented in his speech Wednesday night, was studied with considerable care in the financial district, particularly his statement on the need of consolidating the railway lines in groups for the sake of strengthening their financial future. In the next few days it is expected that the conference committee will begin to deal with some of the more profound problems outlined in the Cummins and Esch bills, and then the suggestions made by Mr. Hines and other railway experts should receive fresh consideration both at Washington and in the country at large.

The reasons for stock market sluggishness in the last few days are not clear in all respects. Call money was easier yesterday than for some time past, the rate standing at 6 per cent. In view of the emphasis which has been laid upon credit conditions since Nov. 1, it might be expected that indications of freer supplies of call money would be a signal to bullish traders to devote active attention to stocks which rose rather easily during the first two business days of the year. The relative inertia of industrial issues this week seems to show that the long rather than the short view of stock market credit is promoting caution, nullifying the effect which cheerful reports of high-pressure operations at factory and refinery would have under normal conditions. If fear of restricted credit is checking speculation, it certainly is not acting in a similar manner upon plans for raising new funds for corporations and municipal governments. Plentiful offerings of securities every day have attested this since the year opened. That the investment outlook is improving is shown by the practical completion of the offering of about $25,000,000 Belgian Government bonds looked for within a few days.

The foreign exchange market again contained evidences of weakness. Sterling declined 2 cents to the pound. Marks slipped down to 2 cents each, with transactions reported at a slightly lower quotation. The movement occurred under light business and was not accompanied by new developments.

CHICAGO BORROWS AT 4.45.

Puts Out $11,900,000 4 Per Cent. Bonds at 93.75.

A banking syndicate composed of Brown Bros. & Co., the Bankers' Trust Company, W. R. Compton & Co., R. L. Day & Co., the Equitable Trust Company, the First National Bank, Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., Merrill, Oldham & Co. of Boston, the Northern Trust Company of Chicago, Remick, Hodges & Co., and Stacy & Braun received the award yesterday of an issue of $11,900,000 City of Chicago twenty-year 4 per cent. serial gold bonds at 93.75, or on a basis to cost the City of Chicago about 4.45 per cent. for the money.

It is expected that a public offering of the bonds will be announced soon. Bankers interested in operations of this sort were pleased yesterday at the rate of interest which the bonds attracted.

CALL FREIGHT RATES UNJUST TO NORTH

Tariffs to South Atlantic and Gulf Ports Protested by State Commerce Chamber.

WITHDRAWAL IS DEMANDED

Barring of Five Socialists from Assembly Is Denounced, but Resolution Is Tabled.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York went on record yesterday at its regular monthly meeting as opposed to discriminatory tariffs from so-called central freight territory to Gulf and South Atlantic ports as announced by the United States Railroad Administration some time ago. The Chamber unanimously adopted a resolution protesting continuance of the rates and demanding their withdrawal.

A resolution was introduced denouncing the action of the Assembly in barring the five New York Socialists. This resolution seemed to meet with the approval of the majority of those present, but before a vote could be taken one of the members brought up the point that it was the policy of the Chamber to avoid all political questions. Fearing that action on the resolution might set a precedent, an amendment tabling it was unanimously adopted.

A report represented by the Committee on Foreign Commerce and the Revenue Laws read in part:

"These rates, by disregarding all heretofore recognized rules of rate adjustment, assume to put the South Atlantic and Gulf ports on a parity with North Atlantic ports on all export traffic. The originating territory described is naturally tributary to the North Atlantic ports from standpoint of distance, of direct rail service by main trunk lines, and natural trend of all traffic. For these reasons through export rates have not heretofore been published to South Atlantic and Gulf ports and there is no legitimate reason for inaugurating them at the present time.

Rates from Ohio Cited.

"This action on the part of the United States Railroad Administration constitutes the strongest possible case of unjust discrimination against the North Atlantic ports. The distance from Youngstown, Ohio, to New York is 494 miles; the distance from Youngstown to New Orleans is 1,131 miles. Notwithstanding this great difference in mileage, the rate from Youngstown to New York is made the rate from Youngstown to New Orleans.

"For example, the rate on iron and steel articles—32 cents per 100 pounds—is in disregard of the long and short haul clause of the Interstate Commerce Act arbitrarily applied through Cincinnati, where the rate to New Orleans and also to New York is 30 cents per 100 pounds. The distance from Cleveland to New York is 503 miles; the distance from Cleveland to Jacksonville is 1,074 miles. Nevertheless, the Cleveland-New York rate of 32 cents on iron and steel articles is applied to Jacksonville through Ohio River crossings, where the rate both to Jacksonville and New York is 30 cents per 100 pounds under this new tariff.

"These instances of the application of rates are fairly typical of the discriminatory character of the new tariffs for the entire territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio, and while the North Atlantic ports ask no favors in rate making from territory geographically tributary to them, their interests through this action of the United States Railroad Administration are assailed with the evident deliberate intention of bringing about competition through gateways not entitled by their geographical location to share in the traffic.

"This action doubly penalizes the railroads. It forces the southbound roads to carry freight 1,400 miles at the established charge for 400 miles and return their cars mostly empty and deprives the eastern-bound roads of their natural traffic."

The reason for the new and discriminating freight rates, according to the report, are that the Shipping Board has been allocating to all Southern ports, whether such ports have an established foreign trade or not, steamship tonnage that evidently cannot be filled from the territory naturally tributary to such ports. The chamber states that this is plainly an effort on the part of the United States Shipping Board, in conjunction with the United States Railroad Administration, that inland rates be established to force business from producing territory that does not geographically belong to any of the ports thus served. Such action is economically unsound and creates an additional burden on transportation which cannot be justified upon any business basis or national expediency.

The chamber adopted reports and resolutions of several other committees and listened to Major Stanley Washburn, war correspondent and Secretary of the Root Mission to Russia. Major Washburn said that through Bolshevist propaganda everything in Russia has been destroyed and Germany will go into Russia and again burden the country with political intrigue. Partly as the result of this, he asserted, the next menace which the world will have to face will be an alliance of Germany, Japan and Russia.

Stock Exchange Transfers.

The following proposed transfers of membership were announced at the New York Stock Exchange yesterday: James Carstairs to Wynne Purviance, partnership transfer; John A. Black to Jesse Hoyt for $108,000, and D. H. Peabody to William P. O'Connor for $109,000. The last previous sale was announced at $101,000.

BELGIUM TO GET $25,000,000 LOAN

Offering Expected Next Week of Advance in Form of Three to Five Year Notes

BY A BANKING SYNDICATE

Financial Institutions to Handle Issue Designed to Supply Country's Needs for Months.

The Belgian loan, it is understood, will be formally announced early next week. It is expected that the amount of the advance will be $25,000,000 and that it will be in the form of three-five-year notes, to bear 6 per cent. in the coupon rate and to be offered on a basis to yield the investor approximately 6¼ per cent. As an added inducement, it is believed, there will be an exchange feature attached which will make the notes extremely attractive.

The syndicate of banks and banking houses which will offer this issue will include the so-called "Belgian group," consisting of J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company, the National City Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and Kidder, Peabody & Co. It is expected that the Chase Securities Corporation, the Central Union Trust Company and the Equitable Trust Company also will participate.

This financing, it was said yesterday, will provide for all of Belgium's needs in this country for the next several months, probably until late in the Spring or early in the Summer. Belgium has been able to supply dollar credits for much of its purchasing here for some time past and is expected to continue to do so for the present. The $25,000,000 which it will receive as a result of this operation, added to what it is able to provide in other ways, is expected to keep the country well in funds until about the time of the maturing of the $50,000,000 acceptance credit, which will fall due June 30.

How that obligation will be taken care of is not ascertainable at the moment, but bankers who have been interested in Belgian financing said yesterday that it will be handled in a way so as not to prejudice the market for whatever Belgian bonds or notes may be offered in the meantime.

RUBBER DIRECTORS ANNOUNCE DIVIDEND

Common Stockholders Get $9,000,000 as Result of 12½ Per Cent. Disbursement.

BIG PROFITS FOR COMPANY

Has $17,800,000 in Cash and Liberty Bonds—Regular Dividends Declared.

The long-expected extra dividend on the shares of the United States Rubber Company materialized yesterday, when the Directors announced that a 12½ per cent. stock dividend would be paid on Feb. 19 to holders of record of Feb. 5. This will amount to $9,000,000 on the common stock. The disbursement is in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the junior issue, which will be paid Jan. 31 to stock of record Jan. 15. The quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock was also declared, this being payable Jan. 31 to holders of record Jan. 15. An extra disbursement on the common shares has been talked of for many weeks, in fact, it was practically promised at a meeting of the Directors last Fall, when the common shares were placed on an 8 per cent. annual basis.

In conjunction with the announcement the company in the following statement said:

"While the detail statement of the operations of the company for the year 1919 is not yet completed, it may be stated that the volume of sales and the net earnings of the company for the year 1919 are the largest in the history of the company.

"The surplus earnings for the year 1919 will doubtless be ample to cover all dividends paid during the year, including the cash dividends and the common stock dividend of $9,000,000 this day declared.

"At the close of the year the company had no outstanding notes or obligations other than current accounts and acceptances necessary in the conduct of its business. The cash in bank was over $15,000,000, and $2,500,000 of Liberty bonds were in its treasury.

"The very substantial enlargement of the company's tire plants at Detroit, Indianapolis, Hartford, Providence, and Kitchener, Canada, now in progress will, it is estimated, when completed, more than double the present volume of the product of tires. The work is being pushed forward with all possible dispatch, the cost thereof being paid from current funds as the work progresses.

"The outlook for 1920 is most propitious. In the absence of unforeseen unfavorable events the volume of business should be materially larger in 1920 than in 1919, with corresponding increase in profits."

CLEVELAND AUTO PLAN.

Stockholders to Vote on Increasing Capital Stock.

The Directors of the Cleveland Automobile Company have called a meeting of the stockholders for Jan. 22 to pass on a proposal to increase the common capitalization from 14,000 shares of no par value to 300,000 shares without nominal or par value. The move is a preliminary step toward splitting up the present common shares on a 20 for 1 basis, so that the outstanding capital will be 280,000 shares. The stock is now selling for about $1,050 a share, and on a subdivision basis the price would be reduced to something in the neighborhood of $55 a share.

The Cleveland Automobile Company was organized last February by Chandler Motor interests, and holders of stock in the latter company were given the right to subscribe to Cleveland 8 per cent. preferred stock on the basis of twenty shares of preferred for each share of Chandler. With each subscription to twenty Cleveland preferred went four shares of Cleveland common stock as a bonus.

French Bonds

By the acquisition of Alsace-Lorraine, France should shortly be in a position to export iron and potash. The large deposits of both are greater than home consumption will require. An increased export business will tend to hasten the return of French exchange to normal.

Costs $405
5000 francs French 4s

WOULD POOL ROADS IN RAIL SYSTEMS

John Henry Hammond Suggests Cummins Bill Amendments to Safeguard Income.

OFFERS VALUE DEFINITION

Proposes That Income Shall Be Cumulative and That Excesses Make Up Deficits.

John Henry Hammond, Acting President of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, thinks the provisions of Section 6 of the Cummins bill, with a few changes, would make a satisfactory solution of the railroad problem. The section of the bill referred to provides for the division of the country into districts, and the carriers into ratemaking groups, and that rates shall be established yielding 5½ per cent. upon the aggregate value of the railway property of the carriers in the district, held for and used in the service of transportation.

Mr. Hammond also says that the Esch bill from the ratemaking standpoint means disaster. His proposed changes in the Cummins bill as they were offered at a recent meeting of the Association of Railway Executives in Washington follow:

"1. That the right to receive this net operating income shall be cumulative, a deficiency in any one year to be immediately made good.

"2. That until the values of the properties in the district have been determined by the commission the aggregate property investment accounts of the carriers in the district shall be adopted by the commission as the proper value for ratemaking.

"3. That each carrier in determining its net railway operating income may consolidate its balance sheet and income and expense accounts with the balance sheets, income and expense accounts of all carriers which it controls through lease or stock ownership, to the extent of its ownership, so that the entire system shall be entitled to dispose of its net railway operating income as provided by the act. Other security holders of controlled roads should not be adversely affected.

"4. That in determining the actual or relative values of properties for ratemaking, or computing earnings, or for the purpose of purchase, lease, consolidation, or exchange of securities, the commission shall be required to consider not only the cost of reproduction but the earning power of a property under normal conditions, operating ratios, physical condition, terminals, gradients, possibilities of traffic development, advantages of location, and similar elements of value.

"The reason for the first change is obvious. The commission may fix rates too low, and this must be made good. Railroad credit must be restored and 5½ per cent. at best is probably too little, but with the contingent fund we may survive, and if revenues are found insufficient the law can be amended. It is the best we can expect at the moment.

"As to the second suggestion, I believe that the aggregate property investment accounts as a ratemaking basis will be sufficient temporarily. They have been accepted for this purpose by the National Transportation Conference, the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, and by the National Association of Security Owners.

"The act provides that in case a carrier shall receive net operating income in any year of more than 6 per cent. of property value, after allowance for nonproductive improvements, one-half of such excess between 6 and 7 per cent. shall be placed in a reserve fund and the remaining one-half per cent. paid to the general contingent fund. Of the excess above 7 per cent. one-fourth goes to reserve and the balance to the general fund. This is not a limitation on dividends, but on earnings from property used in transportation, and prosperous carriers may still pay dividends in excess of 6 per cent. if they have surpluses.

"The object of the act, as I understand it, is not to rob one railroad for the benefit of another, or one set of security-holders for another set. It is to meet a practical situation. Suppose you have a carrier with branch lines, some of which are very prosperous, others not even feeders, but suckers, not earning their charges. It seems unfair to deny to the system the right to retain excess earnings of some of its prosperous subsidiaries to make up for deficiencies of others—and the stockholders of very valuable properties should not be unfairly sacrificed. I have endeavored to meet this situation by my third and fourth suggestions, viz., for the consolidation of balance sheets and income and expense accounts of systems and by providing that in determining values for any purpose—ratemaking, computing earnings, purchase, lease, consolidation or exchange of securities, the commission must consider not only reproduction cost, but normal earning power, operating ratios, physical condition, gradients, terminals, advantages of location, traffic possibilities, &c."

WANT ECUADOR TO PAY.

Railroad Bondholders Protest Against Continued Default in Interest.

Bondholders of the Guayaquil & Quito Railway of Ecuador, meeting in the offices of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne yesterday, adopted resolutions protesting the continued default in the payment of interest and sinking fund on that and other issues by the Government of Ecuador. It was also resolved that the matter should be brought to the attention of the State Department and also to the Pan American Financial Congress which meets in Washington on Jan. 19. The resolutions read in part:

"Whereas, The Guayaquil & Quito Railroad is an American enterprise the construction, maintenance, and operation of which is a triumph of American courage, energy, and engineering skill to be regarded with pride by all Americans and entitled to the protection of their Government, and which was undertaken at the urgent request of the then Government of Ecuador, and

"Whereas, The default on its first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds amounts to about $6,000,000, representing unpaid interest for seven and a half years and unpaid sinking fund installments for eleven years, the payment of which was guaranteed by the Government of Ecuador,

"Resolved, That the bondholders call to the attention of their respective representatives in Congress that the Government of the United States has not been able so far to secure adequate protection to them and their investment."

It is provided that a committee of five be appointed to take such steps as may be proper to carry out the purpose and spirit of the resolutions.

LIVERPOOL NEWS SENDS COTTON UP

MARKET REACTS LATER

Fall in Foreign Exchange and Worry Over Federal Reserve Board's Policy Reflected.

A much stronger tone in Liverpool and the circulation of rumors that some big European purchases of cotton were about to be consummated inspired yesterday's cotton market at the opening and lifted it 30 to 40 points in the early trading. One of the rumors regarding foreign business about to be arranged had it that local bankers had agreed to supply funds for extensive German purchases and that the staple would be removed at once. This, combined with some short covering and the usual trade buying, gave the market a particularly strong tone.

The Liverpool market, which had been reactionary for a day or so, turned strong again yesterday, with both spots and futures advancing on fairly good business. The Liverpool cables came in much better than due and, all in all, the situation appeared very favorable all through the morning.

In the afternoon, however, a further fall in foreign exchange rates and a revival of worry over what the Federal Reserve Board is likely to do in the way of restricting credits served to change ring sentiment, and on some profit-taking by the early longs the market reacted rather sharply. The reaction took all of the forenoon's gains and 18 to 30 points additional.

This in turn was followed by another upward movement, but in the final hour the market merely backed and filled, without any positive trend, and closed at substantially where it had been in the previous night. Net changes were confined within a limit of about five points either way.

New Orleans was closed yesterday, but this fact did not prevent the New Orleans traders from participating in the morning's buying, nor did it stop them from selling again in the afternoon.

Exports for the day were 27,318 bales, making the total for the week to date 141,634 bales and for the season to date 2,962,464 bales. The week's movement has been something of a disappointment, as it had been hoped that the 3,000,000 bale mark would be passed by this time. However, if to-day's exports come up to what they were this day a week ago this high mark will be passed before nightfall.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Cleveland Police Search Chicago for Woman Accused by Embezzler.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Search for Mrs. Lillian J. Wilson, for whom a warrant has been issued, charging her with receiving a part of the $50,000 admittedly embezzled from the city of Warren by Charles H. Kistler, former City Treasurer, took a Cleveland detective to Chicago today. Information was received by the police that Mrs. Wilson was in Chicago after they had failed to find her at her home here. Mrs. Wilson has denied that she received any of the money. An injunction restraining her from disposing of any of her property here has been granted.

EGGS—Receipts yesterday 5,813 cases. The supply of fresh gathered eggs was light and the market had recovered from the spasmodic decline noted Wednesday. Dealers were having more difficulty in supplying their trade with desirable qualities and the few lots coming in by express were picked up quite promptly; prices showing a full recovery and closing with considerable firmness, although the market would be sensitive to any material increase of supply. Storage eggs fairly active and desirable qualities firm; prices ruled firm and slightly in sellers' favor. Seriously defective goods were still pressed for sale and moving slowly. White eggs were firmer and there was a pretty good demand for choice to fancy qualities. Fresh gathered, extras, dozen, 82c; extra firsts 81@82c, firsts 79@80c, seconds and poorer 65@73c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 56@57c; firsts, 53½@54c; seconds 47@53c; under grades 30@46c; storage-packed 59@60c; dirties 39@42c; checks 35@38c. New Issue

35,000 Shares

W. E. Tillotson Manufacturing Company, Inc.
(A New York Corporation)

CAPITALIZATION

	Authorized	Outstanding
Preferred Stock 7% cumulative (par value $100) Redeemable after January 1, 1924, at 105	$750,000	$750,000
Common Stock (without par value)	50,000 shares	50,000 shares

Business: The Company has been organized to take over the business of the W. E. Tillotson Manufacturing Company, a Massachusetts Corporation with woolen mills located at Pittsfield, Mass., and which for forty years has been engaged successfully in the manufacture of the well-known "Collins Health Underwear" and "Silver Lake Worsteds." The Company's products, which have a high standard in the trade, command a ready market, the output of cloth being sold to clothing manufacturers such as Stein-Bloch, Rogers Peet and others, and the underwear through jobbers and direct to the large department stores.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds of the sale of Common Stock now issued are for additional working capital and retirement of all the Preferred Stock of the old company.

Assets: Total net assets, exclusive of good-will and the well-known trademarks, are equivalent, on a conservative valuation, to $30 per share of Common Stock outstanding. There is no mortgage indebtedness, nor is there any sinking fund requirement for the Preferred Stock.

Earnings: During the past seventeen years net earnings have averaged $175,000 per annum, equal to approximately $2.50 per share on the Common Stock after deducting preferred stock dividend requirements. In 1918 net earnings were equal to $3.20 per share; since which time they have shown a steady increase, while present operations indicate that for 1920 net earnings will be in excess of $5.00 per share of Common Stock now outstanding.

Management: The Company has entered into a management contract with the firm of George W. Goethals & Company, Inc., who also own a substantial interest in the Common Stock of the Company. The record of this firm as managers of industrial properties is well established.

Future Prospects: Production has been greatly increased by the recent completion of a new mill building and the reorganization of operations by George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., and it is estimated the output will be doubled in 1920. Conditions in the textile industry insure a ready market for maximum capacity production

HOOVER'S REMARKS DISTURB EXCHANGE

PRESS OPINION IS DIVIDED

Some Papers Agree That Straight Business Principles Must Prevail in Deciding Problem.

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Associated Press).—The recent statement of Herbert C. Hoover as to the financial needs of Europe had an unsettling effect on exchange business today, Paris, Milan and New York rates on London moving adversely. The market construed the statement as meaning that the hoped-for relief measures were receding rather than coming nearer.

New York exchange jumped considerably under large business. It opened at 3.75, from yesterday's close of 3.77; dropped to 3.73, and then recovered to 3.74. The opinion prevails in the market that there can be no stability in exchange without official or organized support, and the rate is expected likely to touch 3.50, in view of the immense indebtedness of Europe to the United States.

The evening newspapers, commenting today on the Hoover statement, take various viewpoints. The Westminster Gazette says:

"It has long been obvious to close observers that the standing check to American sympathy on the financial side is the persistent militarism of the Allies and the consequent economic embarrassment."

"Mr. Hoover," declares The Globe, "is looking at the matter purely from the American viewpoint. He does not desire that his countrymen remember that they are citizens of the world as well as of the United States. The emergency is urgent. We are sure that the disposition of the American people will be to treat this matter not as a bargain between keen business men, but as a difficulty to be settled among friends."

The Standard says: "Mr. Hoover sounds unsympathetic, but it is good, hard sense. There is no use whatever in arranging loans and credits if the only result is to increase waste."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Mr. Hoover throws a cold douche upon the gusher spirit in which some parts of Europe are disposed to turn to America. The necessity of getting back to work may not be the whole remedy for present economic problems, but it is really the most essential part of it."

Charges France Prepares for War.

MADRID, Jan. 8.—The newspaper A B C, discussing the League of Nations, declares that France is preparing for the next war. "We think, like Carlyle, to obtain peace in Europe it is necessary to reduce France to a third-class power," says the newspaper.

MUST REBUILD ENGLAND, SAYS VISCOUNT ASTOR

Country Needs 800,000 New Houses, He Tells the Society of Architects at London.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—England must be rebuilt to meet successfully the housing needs, was the opinion expressed today by Viscount Astor, Parliamentary Secretary to the Health Ministry, before the Society of Architects. The country needs not the half million houses so often spoken of, but eight hundred thousand, and said.

Viscount Astor declared that the problem must be viewed not with the idea of clearing up the plague spots in the various cities, or setting out a few garden cities. He was optimistic that enough skilled labor would be available in the Spring and Summer to meet the requirements.

A previous speaker had lauded the Ministry's housing work, though it has been much criticised by the press.

Viscount Astor said he had not expected that such fame would be thrust upon him, in view of the fact that he had failed to get it on the turf when he lost the Derby by a head, and because recently he had been relegated to the status of "the husband of Lady Astor."

Italian Count Kills Fiancee and Self.

ROME, Jan. 8.—Count Riccard Petrucelli today shot his fiancee, Countess Elena Tosi. He committed suicide immediately afterward. The tragedy is said to have been due to jealousy.

From a letter addressed to us by Mr. John E. Zimmermann, Treasurer of the Company, copies of which are on file in our offices, we summarize the following:

The Penn Central Light & Power Company is essentially a producer and distributor of electricity for light, heat and power.

Territory covered by transmission and distributing systems through Mifflin, Huntingdon, Blair and Cambria Counties, has an aggregate population of over 300,000 and the principal cities and towns served are Altoona, Lewistown, Huntingdon, Mt. Union, Hollidaysburg, Juniata, Patton and Burnham.

Earnings, since incorporation in 1910, have never failed to show, from year to year, materia increases both in gross and net.

	1917	1918	1919 (December estimated)
Gross Earnings	$1,344,561	$1,585,138	$1,869,992
Net Earnings	501,049	642,644	696,142
Fixed Charges, Amortization, etc.	324,932	368,002	383,483
Balance for Dividends, Sinking Funds, and Renewal Reserve	$176,116	$274,642	$312,658
Full 1920 Dividend on 30,000 Preference Shares			96,000

Franchises covering electric light and power, gas and street railway service are, in the opinion of counsel, perpetual and free from burdensome restrictions.

Preference Shares are entitled to cumulative quarterly dividends at the rate of:

$3.20 per annum in 1920
3.60 per annum in 1921
4.00 per annum in 1922 and thereafter

After full quarterly dividends are paid on the Preference Shares, the Common Shares may receive quarterly dividends at the rate of $1.00 per annum in 1920 and 1921 and $1.50 in 1922 and thereafter. On and after January 1, 1922, any additional distribution of dividends shall be at the same rate per share for both classes of stock.

Authorized Issue of 32,000 shares of Preference Stock may not be increased unless net earnings for twelve consecutive months out of the last preceding fifteen months, equal at least $6.00 per share on Preference Stock outstanding, and to be issued.

No Mortgage or other lien may be placed upon the property of the Company and no notes maturing later than one year from date of issue, nor stock having priority over or equality with Preference Shares, may be issued without consent of the holders of a majority of Preference Shares outstanding. But no such consent shall be required for the issue of any bonds heretofore or hereafter certified under the terms of any now existing mortgage of the Company. The holders of Preference Shares are given the power to elect a majority of the Board of Directors, should the dividend on such Shares for two quarterly periods, whether consecutive or not, remain unpaid.

Operation of these properties is under the management of Day & Zimmermann, Inc.

Net Assets of the Company, upon completion of this financing, will be substantially equal to $100, for each share of Preference Stock.

All legalities will be passed upon by James Collins Jones, Esq., for the Company and Messrs. Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, for the Bankers.

The Biggest Ever

The Boston Evening Transcript during 1919 published the largest amount of Financial Advertising in its history.

This record was made in spite of the fact that it refused to publish many thousands of lines which did not measure up to Transcript standards.

Some Boston papers will tell you that they carried more lines, which is true. The Transcript, however, can claim that it published MORE high-grade financial advertising than any other Boston paper. It carried each week MORE of the best bankers taking regular space than any other Boston paper.

1920 will probably be another big year for financial advertising. It will be the Transcript's endeavor to protect its readers and advertisers by refusing to accept highly speculative and doubtful business.

Transcript readers have the money to invest in high-grade securities. If you wish to reach such a class of investors you will see that this paper receives a large share of your 1920 advertising appropriation.

The Transcript wishes you a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

TELLS OF JAVA AS GREAT AUTO FIELD

Man Who Is Making American Cars Popular Says Demand Will Increase.

CROWDS AT SHOW LARGER

Exhibit Reveals Tendency of Many Makers to Build Larger Chassis.

One of the surprises of the automobile show week, and which contributed to the interest of the luncheon of the Maxwell-Chalmers factory heads and dealers at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel yesterday, was the introduction at that function of R. T. Zecha as "the man from Java who is making American motor cars popular in the Dutch East Indies."

Mr. Zecha made a hit by referring to the Ford cars as the "cheap Henrys." He admitted that more of that make were used in his country than any other type, but he added that he had made a forty days' trip to this country with the object of arranging for a large shipment of Maxwells, as he felt that the 200,000 residents of Batavia, the capital of Java, were now ready for a car of a little higher value. The population of Java, he added, is nearly 40,000,000, and he predicted that although 200,000 American cars have been exported to that country annually for the last four years, the demand would be vastly greater within the near future.

The prospects of American automobile makers in supplying the world with motor vehicles, said C. C. Hanch, general manager, and T. J. Tuner, sales director, are practically unlimited. This world demand, according to Mr. Hanch, who recently returned from a European tour inspecting motor conditions, will make the much-discussed saturation point for American cars visionary, as the European makers will not be in a position to fill their home demands for some time to come. While Iowa and Nebraska have an automobile for every 6½ persons, Great Britain only has a car to every 223 population; France, one to 408, and Italy one to 600 persons.

The attendance at the passenger car show in the Grand Central Palace was far in excess of any previous day, and the same was true of the truck exhibition in the Eighth Coast Artillery Armory in the Bronx. Several sales of trucks to large business firms were made. The business representatives were especially interested in the latest models of trucks carrying from one and a half to three tons, of which the largest number are in use, but, where strong roads are available, there is a steadily increasing call for those up to five tons capacity.

Major H. W. Clark, formerly with the American army in France, and who was later detailed to Armenia and adjacent countries, added to the interest of the transportation conference by a graphic description of how 120 American motor trucks sent by the Near East Relief carried food and clothing to thousands of starving Armenians in almost inaccessible localities of the country.

"Of all the means of transportation we had there, including the camel and big wagon trains," said Major Clark, "the American motor truck was the most important and serviceable."

One of the features in the passenger car show is seen in the tendency of many makers to build a slightly larger chassis with improved spring suspension for greater riding comfort. The new Scripps-Booth, for instance, appears this year with a wheel base of 115 inches, an increase of three inches. The Liberty is increased from 115 to 117 inches, the Oakland to 115 inches from 112, while the new light six Westcott has a chassis wheel base of 118 inches. The larger six remains as formerly with a 135-inch chassis.

Disc wheels are also more numerous than in previous shows, and they give any car a very snappy appearance. The new Paige light six motor in the five-passenger touring car is the special feature of the Paige exhibition, and another of the attractive cars is the seven-passenger sedan finished in green with great disc wheels.

An interesting feature of the new Cleveland light six is its large oil cups projecting from the covers of the overhead valve mechanism, being easy to fill without removing the valve cover. Self-oiler bearings are also used beneath the frame.

The Exide battery distributors of New York and the Eastern territory held a convention during the day at the Hotel McAlpin Annex, attended by more than 200 delegates and presided over by F. F. Sampson, manager of the New York depot. The Hupmobile dealers had a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore, and among the important evening events apart from the annual dinner at the Astor of the Society of Automotive Engineers, was the dinner of the Studebaker officials and distributors at the Hotel Astor. At the Biltmore John N. Willys entertained several hundred local and out-of-town dealers of the Overland and Willys-Knight cars.

Faith and a Vision

of Canada's future caused us during the past fifteen years first to purchase and then to distribute among our clients entire issues of mortgage securities of more than forty large Canadian Corporations, including:

Bell Telephone
Laurentide Power
Canada Cement Co.
Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co.
Price Bros. & Co.
Abitibi Power and Paper Co.
Steel Company of Canada
Riordon Pulp and Paper Co.
Canadian Cottons
Donnacona Paper Co.

They have all yielded steady incomes ranging from 5% to 8%. In many cases, they have appreciated largely in principal value since their issue.

If you are, or may be, interested in Canadian securities, write us for a list of offerings. Address:

Jewelry Retailers Did Well.

So good was the business done by the retail jewelry trade all over the country during the holiday season just past that record-breaking orders are expected when the salesmen go out on their fall-in trips. Not only were the regular stocks of the retailers well cut into by the consumer demand, but a large proportion of the goods sent on memorandum was retained than has heretofore been the case. Production is still practically at a standstill as a result of the jewelry workers' strike, which is now entering the fourth month. According to trade reports, some of these men, who either would not work more than thirty-nine hours a week here, or would not be allowed to do so by the local union, have gone to other manufacturing centres where the working week is forty-eight hours long.

More Gray Goods Records Made.

Two new high-price records were established in the local market for gray goods yesterday, when spot Eastern 32½-inch 64-60s sold for 22¾ cents a yard and Eastern makes of 60-48s of the same width were disposed of at 20 cents for delivery in February and March. Southern makes of the latter were sold at 18¾ cents for similar delivery. February-May shipments of the 64-60s were bought at 22 cents. Other printcloth sales were not of particular interest. Nearby goods are generally scarce, which caused buyers to seek distant points for as far ahead as the mills were willing to trade. Among the other business of the day were sales of 6.50-yard sheetings at 17 cents for deliveries ranging from February to June.

Co-operative Clothing Factory.

A report to the effect that a clothing workers' union intended to establish a co-operative factory was not taken in a very serious way by manufacturers yesterday. The scheme was characterized as "an attempt to bring the millennium." Another opinion advanced was that in order to prove successful any enterprise must have the undivided attention and interest of those concerned. The larger the number of those interested in the business, it was pointed out, the more scattered and divided would be the effort and the chances of success so much less. All in all, the manufacturers approached for their views were not impressed with the announcement of the new undertaking.

Marking Values Helps.

As a means of adjusting losses and damages in transit, Willard B. Stevens, Secretary of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association, has advised members of the importance of placing values on their shipments. In many cases, he said, a settlement has been effected much easier when the value has been marked on the goods. When no valuation is placed on the goods to be delivered the negotiations with the carrier are very apt to be unnecessarily long drawn out.

Court Delays Help Thieves.

Various agencies bending their efforts to reduce the record number of silk, fur and other dry goods robberies believe that one of the chief reasons why better results are not attained lies in the cluttered-up condition of cases in the courts. With so many cases to try, it was explained, the prosecuting attorneys are apt to accept a plea of guilty in a minor degree so that which could be established in order to keep down the great number of cases. With the example of only light sentences before them should they be caught, the thieves who prey on the wholesale houses feel encouraged to continue their work, where the profits are large and the punishment small.

Important for Ready-to-Wear.

Based on what the women's ready-to-wear manufacturers have to say about it, next week will be one of the most important in the history of the industry. During that time an unprecedented number of buyers are expected in the market and the outcome will show, it is said, whether the sellers' market will continue or whether conditions have shifted around in favor of the buyer. Owing to the condition of the raw material market and the still threatening labor controversy, the garment manufacturers feel sure they will continue to hold the "balance of power." There have been many indications, however, that buyers are not to be stampeded this season into bidding up the market on themselves. Evidences are at hand that price, neglected for so long as the most important factor in purchases, will regain its place.

Not Satisfactory to Clothiers.

Conditions in the local clothing market have yet to be regarded as ideal from the standpoint of labor conditions, that of woolen supplies or the attitude of buyers. These, in the opinion of one clothier, make the situation about as bad as it could be. There are hints that the local industry may decide to ask a full investigation by either the Government or disinterested parties in order to place the present difficulties before the public and at the same time effect a more settled state of affairs. The manufacturers feel, it was said, that if the true conditions were once known some of the many of the present abuses would not be tolerated.

Over 700 Reservations Made.

More than 700 seats have already been reserved for the Spring promenade of the Retail Milliners' Association of America, which is to be held at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday, Feb. 4. This, according to Business Manager S. V. M. Goldberg, is approximately half of the seating space which the association has engaged, and it is probable that no seats will be left after Jan. 25. The widespread interest in the show is indicated by the fact that applications for exhibits and for tickets of admission have been almost as numerous from several other trades as from the millinery industry itself. Seating reservations have come from Canada and from practically all sections of the United States. In some instances merchandise managers and store owners, with their entire fashion department buying staffs, have reserved places.

Raw Silk Still Advancing.

So sharply have advances taken place in the market for raw silks at Yokohama that within twenty-four hours after the market opened on Tuesday last, after being closed since Dec. 24, prices were 100 yen per picul higher. This put Sinshiu No. 1 at the record level of 2,000 yen, but according to cables received by L. Cowtan & Co. of this city, it was not definitely known whether that figure had actually been paid or not. Stocks available at Yokohama were set at 13,500 bales, against 37,500 bales at the time a year ago. Canton is also excited, and late cables reported it impossible to give accurate quotations. Shanghai is particularly active for tsatlees. Milan reflects the rising prices of the other markets, with "extra classic" for single weaving quoted at 450 lire per kilo. The local market has followed the advances of the primary centres.

Glove Market Reports Bullish.

Reports coming from the glove trade regarding both foreign and domestic goods for the present year are exceedingly bullish. Prices, they say, will almost literally be "out of sight," and in some parts of the trade there is uncertainty as to just what the public will do when the news is broken over the retail counter. One effect of the reports referred to, it is asserted, has been to bring buyers into the market earlier than usual for their goods, this being, as true of some of the larger houses, the first year held off in the hope of breaking the market, as it is of the less important ones. The big buyers, it is further asserted, learned from a rather bitter experience last year that there was substance in what the manufacturers had to say about the scarcity of goods and of high prices.

CONTROL DIAMOND MARKET.

Agreement Reached Giving London Syndicate World Trade.

Hereafter London will control the world's supply as well as the price of diamonds from South Africa, according to an announcement of the Minister of South African Mines at Johannesburg, which states that a London syndicate has completed plans to control the South African diamond trade. It is understood that an agreement giving the syndicate control was made at a recent conference of four groups of producers and representatives of the Union Government, and of what was German Southwest Africa, for the purpose of stabilizing the market.

Under the new arrangement each mining district will supply a fixed percentage of the diamonds for the world's markets. For instance, DeBeers will supply 51 per cent., the Premier, 18 per cent., Jagersfontein, 10 per cent., and the South West Protectorate, 21 per cent. The amount which these districts will be called on to supply during a given period will be based on the actual sales of the preceding three months.

The prices will be fixed every quarter and the syndicate will pay the producers 5 per cent. less than the average price obtained in the preceding three months. The syndicate will receive 5 per cent. above the basic price, and the additional proceeds will be equally divided between the producers and the syndicate.

Joan of Arc SMOCK

Abe Millman Says

"Why shouldn't I be the largest manufacturer of smocks in the world? Wasn't I the first to create them? Does any manufacturer turn out more real, live, winning numbers, and can anybody compete with my values?"

Today's Special Offering

If you could see the stunningly stylish smock I am today featuring, for $27.00, you would wonder at its remarkable value.

This number is made in round and square necks, daintily hand-embroidered with vari-colored silken flowers, and made of Ramona Linen—in sizes from 8 to 20, and 34 to 44. In colors tastefully blending into shades that carry a most appealing charm, as follows:

IVORY, BISQUE, LEAGUE GOLD, ADRIATIC, ORCHID, SILVER GRAY, FLESH, BLUE DAWN, PEACH BLOOM, APRICOT, BERMUDA, COPEN

27.00 PER DOZ.

To illustrate the garments featured would subject them to imitation. I, therefore, will show from day to day only the original sources from which they were designed.

SPECIAL ASSORTMENTS

Order by wire or mail our special assortments in $300 and $500 lots, in prices ranging from $16 to $48 a dozen. Newspaper cuts and advertising matter go free of charge. Due to the unstable manufacturing conditions, and also the novelties these assortments comprise, samples cannot be sent out.

This line can be seen in our showrooms or in your city when our salesman calls.

SWIFT & CO. DENY BEING PROFITEERS

Resentment of Shareholders Expressed by Louis F. Swift at Annual Meeting.

URGES EMPLOYES TO INVEST

Creation of Department to Develop Human Element Among Workers Announced—Drop in Earnings.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. — Shareholders of Swift & Co. resent any implication of profiteering, according to President Louis F. Swift, who maintained in his address at the annual meeting of the company this afternoon that the charge was untrue.

Employes of the company were urged to get in debt for the company's securities or something else worth while and when they got out of debt to get in again.

The retirement of F. S. Hayward, Secretary of the company, was announced. The establishment of an Employes' Relations Department, with John Calder at its head, was also made known.

In his address Mr. Swift said:

"Every shareholder of Swift & Co. naturally resents criticism of the company, and he resents more than anything else the implication of 'profiteering.' Swift & Co. is not a profiteer.

"I have said before to employes of Swift & Co., 'Get in debt.' It has turned out to be a good thing. Many employes have told me that going into debt to buy Swift & Co. stock was the best thing they ever did financially; that it has been the means of their acquiring a permanent investment returning a reasonable income that otherwise they would not have had. So I say again—get in debt, not for clothing or for luxuries, but for some investment of intrinsic value that is worth saving for. As soon as you get one thing paid up, buy something else and get in debt again.

"I hope that all the employes who purchased Swift & Co. stock will hold it as an investment and I feel sure that they will find it worth their while.

"There will be a change in the office of the secretary of Swift & Co. F. S. Hayward, who has been secretary since 1911, is retiring from business. He is one of our oldest employes, having started with the company thirty years ago as auditor at Kansas City and having been successively a plant manager, general office manager at Chicago and secretary.

"We have recently established a department of employes' relations under the direction of John Calder. It will be our object through this department to cultivate and further develop the human element in our business. We now have 23,000 employes who have shown their interest in the company by subscribing for its shares. With our Employes' Benefit Association, which last year took care of 9,100 persons and paid benefits amounting to $398,000, and our Pension Fund and various social activities, we feel that Swift & Co. is a good concern to be associated with and we are trying to make it better.

"Your Directors have for some time, as evidenced by the segregations that have been made, had it in mind to confine the business of Swift & Co. to the activities directly related to the slaughter of meat animals and the products therefrom and to the handling of what is called produce, namely, poultry, butter, eggs and cheese.

"While we have felt that we have had a perfect right both morally and legally to be engaged in any related lines that we could manufacture and distribute economically, there seems to have been a certain amount of public sentiment against packing concern being engaged in many different lines of business. Our interest in these businesses has been perfectly legitimate from every point of view, but we have nevertheless thought it best to dispose of the more remotely connected enterprises. Swift & Co. therefore expressed its willingness to dispose of its interests in public stockyards, stockyard terminal railroads, and stockyard newspapers if a legal way can be found, and to discontinue handling various lines, principally canned goods and a few minor articles which have been sold in small quantities but which do not aggregate more than 5 per cent. of our total business.

"We trust that the public will realize that we have made these concessions with a sincere desire to co-operate in allaying the agitation which is harmful to our business and to the public at large.

"We called your attention last year to the high inventory prices and to the fact that a shrinkage in values would be bound to occur sooner or later. Such a shrinkage has occurred and has produced a drop in earnings, as our figures will show.

"Considering the decline in values in consequence of the withdrawal of foreign buyers from the market last Fall and the low price of foreign exchange affecting our exports we have done fairly well, having paid 8 per cent. dividends and carried $5,806,721.34 to surplus account.

"Our total sales were over $1,900,000,000. Our profit was equivalent to 1.15 cents on each dollar of sales of all kinds of products.

"The present wholesale prices of meats are much lower than they were a year ago and are lower in proportion than other food products."

URGE SNUB TO KREISLER.

Some Philadelphia Orchestra Subscribers Advocate Vacant Seats.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—A silent protest through absent treatment has been urged for Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian violinist, to appear with the Philadelphia Orchestra at tomorrow and Saturday's concerts.

Mrs. William Furness Jenks of the Lenox Apartment was among the first to question the appearance of Kreisler.

"I have been a subscriber to the Philadelphia Orchestra for several years and also a subscriber to its fund," she said, "I protest against the appearance of this man as an alien enemy."

Miss Cornelia Frothingham, who lives at the Gladstone, read the following letter over the telephone to seat holders:

"More now than during the war even do we need clear-eyed loyalty and straight thinking. Those of the class of '20 among the subscribers to the Philadelphia Orchestra who feel the impropriety of allowing Fritz Kreisler to perform or play with the orchestra Friday and Saturday

"Those who feel this way will leave their seats vacant at the two performances. The only thing that prevented Mr. Kreisler from joining the forces against the United States was a wound received before the United States entered the war."

Mr. Kreisler will be the soloist tomorrow and Saturday," said Arthur Judson, manager of the orchestra, today. "No protests against his appearance have reached the Philadelphia Orchestra."

Defaulting Bank Teller Sentenced.

Albin Swenson, 2,000 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, former paying teller in the Bronx Branch of the Columbia Trust Company, 2,610 Third Avenue, has been sentenced by Judge Louis D. Gibbe to serve not less than two years and not more than five years and 7 months in Sing Sing Prison. Swenson pleaded guilty to grand larceny. It was alleged that since 1915 he had diverted $24,300 of the bank's funds to his own uses.

34th Street Board of Trade Elects.

Officers of the Thirty-fourth Street Board of Trade were re-elected yesterday for 1920 at a meeting in the Hotel McAlpin. The officers are Vivian Green of the Veegreen Holding Company, President; James E. Cuddy of Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Vice President; William H. Koelsch of the New Netherland Bank, Treasurer, and Captain William B. Gibbs, Secretary.

CHALLENGES WILSON AND GERARD TO DEBATE

Independent Candidate Invokes Unique Provision of South Dakota Primary Law.

Special to The New York Times.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 8.—Under the primary law in this State if an independent candidate for President issues a challenge to a regular nominee for a joint debate, failure on the part of the challenged candidate to meet in at least one joint debate in this State prohibits the Secretary of State from certifying the name of the challenged nominee to the contest for the primary election. In this line James O. Monroe of Chicago, Independent Democratic candidate, has issued his challenge to Woodrow Wilson, and, in case he has not properly placed his name before the people, then to James W. Gerard, the Democratic minority selection, for at least one such debate in South Dakota prior to March 1.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF GREENWICH FUNDS

Louis Lanz, Town Bookkeeper, Arrested—Accounts Said to be Several Thousand Short.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 8.—Louis Lanz, town bookkeeper, was arrested today and held for a court hearing on the charge of stealing town funds. The books are under examination by accountants. A shortage of some thousands of dollars is said to have been disclosed.

Lanz, from his position, was very well known in the town. He also is district deputy for the Connecticut and Rhode Island District of the Woodmen of the World and has other fraternal order connection. His age is 40 and he was born in Germany.

DON'T WORRY, LIVE LONG.

Columbia Physician Also Urges Moderation in All Things.

Don't worry and be moderate in all things if you want to live to be 70 or more. This recipe for longevity was given yesterday by Dr. George L. Meylan, director of the Columbia University gymnasium, after an investigation of the modes of life of those who live long and those who die prematurely.

"There is abundant evidence," says Dr. Meylan, "to justify the belief that the average duration of life could be increased from ten to twenty years by the general adoption of the principle, 'moderation in all things.'" Deaths by infectious disease or violence are excepted. The characteristics of people over 70 years old, Dr. Meylan finds, are that they do not worry, have a happy disposition, and eat, drink, exercise, and enjoy themselves moderately.

ARRESTS ALLIED MISSION.

Roumania Officer in Hungary Angered by Criticism.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—The arrest of several military representatives of the Allies by a Rumanian officer in occupied Hungary is reported in a Prague dispatch through Geneva, today.

The message says that the members of a military mission sent by the Allies to the Arad district to inspect prison camps and report on alleged atrocities of which interned Hungarians were said to have been the victims, were arrested by the commanding officer of a concentration camp, who became enraged at the severe criticisms of conditions made by the mission.

No information regarding this incident has been received in diplomatic circles in Paris. It is pointed out, however, that communication with Budapest from this capital has been extremely difficult for some time.

BAD LUCK TO DIE ON FRIDAY.

Murderer Superstitious About a Friday Death Sentence.

Frank Kelly, the negro convicted of murdering Catharine Dunn, in a letter written in Raymond Street jail, where he is awaiting sentence which is to be pronounced today, asked Edward J. Reilly, his counsel, to do all in his power to have sentence imposed on any day other than Friday. In the letter Kelly said:

"Will you please speak to the Judge and the District Attorney and ask them to put off my day to be sentenced to any day except Friday. My belief is that Friday is a hoodoo day, bad luck to try to do anything. I believe that if I am sentenced on Friday I will have bad luck in my appeal and with my case altogether. I would rather try to kill myself than be sentenced on that day."

HANGMEN ASK HIGHER PAY.

England's Public Executioners Present Claim to Parliament.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—England's public executioners, the hangmen, want their pay increased, and their claim has been presented to the House of Commons by a member of that body. Augustine Hallwood inquired whether the Government knew that it was paying the executioners no more than in pre-war days. A Government representative replied that the matter would receive consideration.

The hangmen recently were deprived of the privilege of taking away the rope with which the criminal was hanged. This reduced one of the sources of their revenue, as the rope could be sold for a good price to curiosity collectors.

INFLUENZA SWEEPS SHIP.

Five Dead, 7 Critically Ill on French Steamer at Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8.—The French steamer Malte, from Havre and Vigo with passengers and cargo for Rio Janeiro and this port, arrived here yesterday with five passengers dead, seven dangerously ill, and a large number of others suffering from influenza which broke out in its most dangerous form a few days ago.

The ship's doctor reported that daily he had attended fifty patients since the disease first was reported, and that the epidemic continued to spread. The ship has been ordered into quarantine.

Cotton Broker Sued on Contract.

Joseph C. Cooper, a cotton broker of 71 Wall Street, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for $78,967 damages by the Parker-Moore Company, following a dispute over a cotton contract. The complaint alleges that Cooper arranged through the National Cotton and Grain Company for the purchase of 1,500 bales of cotton for January delivery by representing that the cotton was to be taken by a commission representing a foreign Government. The plaintiff alleges that the commission did not materialize and that it lost $78,967.

Col. A. S. Bacon's Daughter a Bride.

The marriage is announced of Miss Marie Alexandra Bacon, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Alexander S. Bacon, and Capt. Francis H. Critchlow, a lawyer of Salt Lake City, Utah, which took place on Jan. 1, at the home of the bride's parents in Brooklyn. The bride is a graduate of Vassar, class of '16. Mr. Critchlow was a captain with the 62d Coast Artillery overseas during the war, and is a Princeton graduate, class of '16.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Burr Printing House property, occupying the entire block in Frankfort Street from Jacob to Cliff Street, and the adjoining buildings at 15 to 23 Jacob Street, and 95 and 97 Cliff Street, were sold yesterday to William H. Klenke, representing George H. Chatillon.

The Chatillon interests are the owners of the four adjoining structures at this point, and through this purchase now control a plot of 25,000 square feet, with frontages of 153 feet on Cliff Street, 100 feet on Frankfort Street, and 146 feet on Jacob Street, which is the largest block front south of the Brooklyn Bridge held under one ownership.

Fraser, Spier & Meyer were the attorneys for the estate selling the Burr Printing House plot, which in itself contains about 15,000 square feet. It is considered likely that the new owners will improve the entire plot at the termination of the present leases. Such a transaction would involve approximately $1,500,000. Laurence McGuire represented the sellers in the transaction, which was negotiated by the Charles F. Noyes Company.

Sale of $1,750,000 Park Avenue Apartment Funding.

Negotiations are pending for the sale by Max N. Natanson of the twelve-story apartment house on the northwest corner of East Seventy-seventh Street and Park Avenue, renting for $200,000 and held at $1,750,000. The structure has a frontage of 155 feet on East Seventy-seventh Street, and 102.2 feet on the avenue.
